Administration Weighs Move To Finance Defense Program

President Roosevelt and his Congressional leaders yesterday were reported considering seriously holding Congress in session to enact emergency taxes to finance new national defense spending.

While no definite decisions had been reached last night, indications were that the House Ways and Means Committee might be asked to start work in the near future on a special defense tax program.

Informal polls of Congressional sentiment were said to favor preponderantly steps at this session to pay the additional cost, instead of postponing action until January.

Tentative figure mentioned as the goal of the tax program was $600,000,000. Congressional tax experts were studying the advisability of compiling a tax bill with increased borrowing, and an increase in the national debt limit, now nearing the $45,000,000,000 ceiling.

Flight-Training Funds Asked

As House and Senate tax spokesmen conferred, there were the following additional defense developments:

President Roosevelt asked Congress for an additional $32,000,000 to give flight training to more than 100,000 American youths next year.

Formation of a war industries board responsible directly to the President to supervize industrial mobilization for defense was said by the New York Times to be recommended in the still secret report of the advisory board headed by Edward B. Stettinius, jr., which was disbanded last fall.

Secretary Morgenthau conferred with representatives of the machine tool industry on plans to produce the machinery, jigs, dies and gauges for turning out arms. Afterward, he announced $200,000,000 must be spent in this key industry to carry out the preparedness program.

The House cleared its calendar to take up two major emergency defense measures today. They are bills to speed up shipbuilding and authorize 10,000 planes, 16,000 pilots

Democracy Gets Tough

Congress Speeds Drastic Laws To Curb Fifth Column in U. S.

Roosevelt's Warning Heeded as Senate Passes Limit on Alien Employment; House Favors Immigration Service Shift

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Heeding President Roosevelt's warning against spies, saboteurs and traitors, Congress took steps paralleling those of World War days yesterday to curb subversive activity and restrict aliens.

The Senate passed far-reaching legislation barring Communists and "Nazi bund" members from jobs with concerns engaged in interstate industry and limiting employment of aliens in such industries to 10 per cent of the total workers.

Unanimous approval was given by the House to the President's reorganization order transferring the Immigration Service from the Labor to the Justice Department, where more effective control of "fifth column" activity among aliens is said to be possible.

Legislation was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee requiring the Nation's estimated 4,000,000 aliens to be registered and fingerprinted. The measure also would sharply increase penalties of existing law against efforts to subvert the Army and Navy by distribution of un-American literature, or other means.

The Senate wrote the alien, Communist and bund restrictions into the LaFollette civil liberties bill, which forbids employers in interstate industry using "strikebreakers" or other oppressive labor practices. The measure was then passed, 47 to 20, and sent to the House.

Originally proposed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, after a long investigation by the Senate Committee on Civil Liberties, the measure was aimed solely at "abuses" by employers, such as the use of industrial spies,

Defense Needs May Bar New Auto Models

Morgenthau Reveals Tools May Be Needed For Airplane Use

The automobile industry may produce no new models for the 1942 season for defense reasons, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said yesterday.

Machines that make the tools, jigs and dies from which automobiles are shaped, the Secretary revealed, may be needed next year to turn out machine tools for airplanes and other defense weapons.

One of the largest automobile manufacturers—believed to be General Motors—had already offered to continue producing 1941 models through the following year, canceling the usual style and mechanical changes, Morgenthau said.

At the same time, Morgenthau assured the public that new models would be available for 1941. After a morning conference with machine tool makers, he said he felt sure that it would not be necessary to interfere with the retooling of auto plants during the next month, the last month of retooling for the plants prior to the start of production on the 1941 models.

"It is in the public interest to let the automobile people complete their retooling," Morgenthau said.

If 1942 models are abandoned, officials said last night, the industry will continue to operate, though perhaps at a somewhat reduced rate due to a decline in orders from motorists that would normally buy a new car every year. Labor would profit by a more even rate of production during the year, officials said.

The automobile industry, rated the fourth largest in the Nation, sold 3,577,058 cars and trucks last year and 4,808,974 in 1937.

'Sitdown' Held Not to Violate Sherman Act

Supreme Court Splits, 6-3, in Apex Case Over Union Damages

Divided by vote of 6-to-3, the Supreme Court yesterday held that restraint of interstate commerce by a labor union in a sit-down strike involving violence "of the most brutal and wanton character" did not infringe the Sherman antitrust law.

In a decision of major importance, the court ruled that the Sherman law applies to unions only in case their interference with interstate commerce is for the purpose of suppressing competition.

Damages against the union, the court implied, should have been sought through State courts rather than through Federal law.

Speaking through Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, the court majority, which included the five New Deal appointees, ruled that the C. I. O. American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers had not contravened the Sherman Act in carrying on a sit-down against the Apex Hosiery Co. of Philadelphia. A Federal District Court had assessed damages of over $700,000 against the union.

Justice Stone maintained that the Sherman Act is not intended "to police interstate transportation or to afford a remedy for wrongs . . . actionable under State law," but to prevent restraints on trade such as price control, discrimination between purchasers, or monopolization of supply.

On the other hand, Chief Justice Hughes, joined by Justices James C. McReynolds and Owen J. Roberts, suggested that the majority opinion might open up "vistas of new uncer-

London, May 27.—British forces in Flanders were described in informed quarters tonight as facing a situation of increasing gravity, despite violent counterattacks against German forces pressing for a grip on the entire seacoast of northern France and Belgium.

While official statements said the British had gone to the relief of Belgian and French forces on their flanks about 30 miles southeast of Calais and had stood off the Germans, the general picture showed the Allied armies hemmed in a narrowing corner.

The Germans appeared slowly broadening their wedge of steel between the French army south of the Somme and the Allied forces north of that salient in Flanders.

With the salient broadening, it appeared the position of the British Expeditionary Force was becoming more critical with each passing day.

Bombing Raids Staged

Whether the gap between the Allies could be closed remained to be seen, but every hour it stayed open made the Germans on the coast stronger, and the position of the hemmed-in Allies more untenable.

The Royal Air Force sought to relieve the pressure by heavy bombing raids.

[Dusseldorf, just over the German frontier from Belgium, was bombed repeatedly late tonight, according to a United Press dispatch from Berlin.]

The German air forces, meanwhile, were centering attacks on Channel shipping, including hospital ships, and inflicting serious loss of life, authoritative British sources said.

The day was one of incessant fighting on the northern front, with street clashes in Calais, whose fate was still in doubt tonight while battle planes thundered overhead. British naval guns pounded away at Nazi columns.

At the end of the day the British war office reported the British front "remains intact."

The war office announced temporary cancelation of telegraph service and a ban on all mail weighing more than 2 ounces to the British Expeditionary Force because of

Joint Committees Favor New Roofs On Capitol Wings

A joint Congressional committee, headed by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, and Representative Rabaut (Democrat) of Michigan, recommended yesterday that the architect of the Capitol, David Lynn, be directed to request whatever appropriation he considered necessary for the construction of new roofs on the Senate and House wings of the Capitol.

Lynn, who previously had estimated that the replacements would cost approximately $500,000, was directed to start the repairs as soon as practical.

The committee found, upon the basis of an engineering study made by experts, that the huge glass roofs presented "a dangerous situation" in that cast iron trusses rested on wooden blocks.

Sleeps in Taxi, Robbed of $1,200

A chief petty officer of the destroyer Abel P. Upshur, docked at Charleston, S. C., was robbed here of $1,200, it was revealed last night.

The victim, Edward M. Chambers, told police he had come here to visit friends last Friday. At Union Station, he ordered a cab to take him to the Naval Air Station at Anacostia. On the trip, Chambers said, he fell asleep, was robbed of two pocketbooks containing $1,200, and thrown out of the taxi somewhere in Anacostia.

American aviation, already turning out 175 certified pilots a day, can readily increase that production to "several times 10,000 pilots in any year," Robert H. Hinckley, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics authority, told the National Aviation Forum yesterday.

Not only is pilot production under the CAA training program high in quantity, but it is in other respects as well, he said. In fact, "it is so good that learning to fly, under its direction, is 37 times as safe as was flight training for the country as a whole one year ago. That is a safety improvement in one year of 3,700 per cent!"

Though yesterday was billed as Private Fliers' Day in the four-day conference and air show at Bolling Field, weather took a hand and left Washington-bound private fliers stranded at airports all along the Eastern seaboard. Instead of the 300 confidently expected, only about a score of private planes were staked down at Bolling last night.

"An instrument ceiling all around here," said officials and explained that private fliers were coming to Washington anyway, by train, automobile and transport plane for the private fliers' dance at the Willard

Britain Warns Nationals To Flee Italy

French Border Closed, Rome Hears; Swiss Deny Theirs Is Barred

By the Associated Press

Rome, May 27.—With war fever flaming throughout pro-German Italy, diplomatic circles reported without confirmation late tonight that Italy had closed her French and Swiss frontiers.

(Dispatches from Switzerland, however, said there was no evidence the border had been closed, and that both highway and railroad stations were open as usual. Neither was there any confirmation from Paris.)

The British embassy tonight advised inquiring nationals to return home, especially if they had families, unless they had urgent reasons for remaining. British newspaper correspondents also said their employers advised them to be prepared to leave.

Meanwhile, hundreds of Americans stormed shipping offices and sought passage home in belated response to the advice of United States diplomatic officials that they leave as soon as possible.

The United States liner Manhattan began taking on board at Naples the first of about 2,000 Americans who will sail for New York She will leave Genoa June 1.

Wave on Wave of Infantry Aids Artillery and Tanks; Nazis Unleash 3-Pronged Attack Toward Ypres

The War Today

THREE GERMAN SPEARHEADS are stabbing at the heart of the shrinking, battle-rimmed Flanders "pocket" holding approximately 1,000,000 nearly isolated Allied troops. Grave alarm spread in Allied capitals as Germany threw all the force it could muster into the drive to cut up and crush the French, Belgians and British in the north.

HEAVIEST NAZI THRUST penetrated the Belgian lines along the Lys River on the eastern side of the pocket, just north of the French-Belgian frontier. In what the French called the biggest offensive since Verdun, the Germans drove almost to Ypres, aiming at Dunkerque.

FROM THE SOUTHWEST, two German columns aimed north from Arras through Lens, and east from St. Omer, seeking to join each other and the main spearhead north of Lille, France's fifth city.

FRANCE ADMITTED ALLIED retreats before the main Nazi push, and farther south, in the Valenciennes area, reported "withdrawals" to prepared positions west of the Scheldt. Against all three German columns, the French reported counterattacks.

GERMANY'S CORRIDOR TO THE SEA, along the Somme Valley, despite French attacks on the southern flank, widened as a result of Allied withdrawals from its north flank in the Cambrai-Bapaume-Arras triangle, necessitated by the threat of the Nazi drives across their rear.

EASTWARD FROM THE SOMME to the Maginot line at Montmedy, both French and Germans reported only repulse of enemy counterattacks.

Lunges Toward Ypres

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 27.—German forces lunging through the Allied line in Flanders almost to Ypres, added a length today to the steel wall with which they are trying to split the Allied armies in northern France and Belgium.

The German goal was control of the English Channel coast on which they already have a foothold at Boulogne and claim another at Calais.

Whether England or Paris would be the next Nazi objective could only be conjectured.

Communications Bombed

It is noted, however, that Germany—as in Poland and Norway—has not departed from the solid military policy of destroying the enemy's army as the best way of conquering.

On this basis some observers argue that not England, but the French army, standing between the Germans and Paris, must face the next blow.

The Germans have been making efforts to soften resistance against either an advance on Paris or a direct invasion of England.

British ship communications with France have been bombed constantly, with the high command reporting a heavy toll on transports and supply ships.

Having bottled up about 1,000,000 British, French and Belgian soldiers in the coastal plains of Flanders and Artois, the Nazis were trying to break up the defense by splitting the trapped Allied forces.

700,000 Allies in Trap

Two German thrusts, one wheeling eastward from St. Omer and the coast and the other pushing northwestward from Arras, were reported tonight progressing rapidly toward a meeting north of Lille.

The second was said to have penetrated northeast of Lens, north of Vimy Ridge, and the first to have advanced close to Ypres, on the opposite side of the gap which the Nazis are attempting to close.

(French military dispatches, reporting a German crossing of the

Revitalized Drive

By the Associated Press

Paris, May 27.—A revitalized German offensive, rivaling the violence of World War assaults on Verdun, forced the Allies to fall back and take their stand today on a new line defending the English Channel.

To offset somewhat the Nazi gains in the north, where at numerous points they crossed the Lys River, last water barrier on the way to the Channel, the French central army in the Somme sector, south of the Nazi salient to the sea, hammered the Germans back to regain several villages.

The Germans put everything available into the campaign to crush the French, British and Belgian forces in Flanders. They threw wave on wave of infantry, a thundering artillery bombardment, dive bombers and armored columns into the drive for a quick decision.

The cabinet reviewed the military and political situation with Generalissimo Weygand, and then announced Premier Reynaud would broadcast an address to the nation at 8:30 a. m. (2:30 a. m. E. S. T.) Tuesday morning.

Widens Wedge

With the Lys crossed, the Germans were in an improved position tonight to move toward Ostend and Zeebrugge on the channel.

The success of the attack was particularly evident in the way it widened the wedge between the northern Allied armies and the central French armies.

The gravity of the situation at that point was not hidden by the Allies. The exact width of the German wedge was impossible to determine because of the rapidly shifting lines, but it was wider.

The bottleneck of the German corridor to the sea, which once ran between Bapaume and Peronne, now is bounded by the Somme on the south and the heights around Arras on the north. From the Somme to Arras is approximately 30 miles.

The battle raged overnight into the first major night operations of this war while the Allies withdrew from their Scheldt River positions in the Valenciennes sector to a pre-

His Hat Off to Enlisted Men

General Criticizes U. S. Officers For Blunders in War Games

Camp Beauregard, La., May 27 (AP).—In a critical review of the army's greatest peacetime maneuvers, Maj. Gen. M. J. Brees reported to assembled officers today that had the concentration been on a larger scale similar to what might be expected by general mobilization, "they might have bogged down."

Gen. Brees, Commander of the Eighth Corps area and chief maneuvers control officer, criticized senior officers and praised enlisted men in his far-reaching report.

He asserted that "some of the so-called attacks without use of supporting weapons were so absurd as to be farcical. In most cases the fault lies with our senior officers."

Gen. Brees said one of the "important objectives" of further maneuvers planned for August in four army areas would be to eliminate difficulties encountered here and to perfect concentration.

"Our noncommissioned officers are the backbone of our army. They acted on their own, intelligently, with initiative, with a keen and complete understanding of what it was all about and of what they were trying to do. My hat is off to our enlisted men, be he private, corporal or sergeant.

"There should be no question but that maneuvers of this scale, and even larger, should be held yearly."

The general also criticized disinclination of the infantry to take the field when there were no trucks to ride in, lack of liaison between forces, inadequate use of aviation observation, and many other deficiencies of the army at present.

Commercial Television Barred Till Systems Are Standardized

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

The Federal Communications Commission, which six weeks ago was put on the spot for holding up the infant television industry, yesterday turned the tables by deciding to withhold commercialization until the industry agrees on unified transmission standards.

At the same time, as if in anticipation of a prompt acceptance of its challenge, the FCC said it will procede at once to license "experimental" television stations throughout the country. Among the applications which will be considered is one by the National Broadcasting Co. to erect a station in Washington.

While insisting that the new industry, which promises to employ thousands of men, must be protected from monopolistic control, the commission said that "a single uniform system of television broadcasting is essential—so far as basic standards are concerned."

"The public should not be inflicted with a hodge-podge of different television broadcasting and receiving systems," the FCC added.

"As soon as the engineering opinion of the industry is prepared to approve anyone of the competing systems of broadcasting as the standard system, the commission will consider the authorization of full commercialization."

Principal contenders in the television field are the Radio Corpora-

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

IN THE WHISPERING GALLERY

SLIDES TO 3RD: In the deepest confidence, President Roosevelt has dropped offhand, offguard remarks to nonpolitical callers which, if they could be revealed, would be hailed instantly as prime evidence that he is counting—planning definitely—on a third term . . . slips of the tongue.

Harlan Miller

Meanwhile, Mrs. F. D. R. talks wistfully of riding her new saddle horse at Hyde Park "when Washington duties are less heavy." Would they be any lighter during a third term?

* * * *

FORGOTTEN? During the last fortnight, since the big drive began, the name of Tom Dewey has scarcely been mentioned at all.

* * * *

FDR'S EGG: For some occult reason, political or otherwise, the President's last fireside chat was the most tepid he has ever uttered in an hour of crises. Many who used to call him "that man" would have gone for a draft-Roosevelt-third-term movement if he had spoken out strongly.

* * * *

The country was waiting for inspiration in an hour of peril unveiled; it wasn't inspired. The impression is spreading here and across the land that Mr. Roosevelt, for years a mile ahead of public opinion, seems now a furlong behind it.

* * * *

FLEET FOR SALE? Well-informed Englishmen here are saying grimly that Britain would never, never put her fleet at the disposal of a neutral nation, even if the alternative were scuttling it or surrendering it to Hitler.

* * * *

Which means, to be brutally frank, that the British want a declaration of war in exchange for the fleet—whose survival in either the Atlantic or the Pacific would give the U. S. A. three or four extra years to arm. It looks like hard bargaining.

"—no fish, just torpedoes"

TORPEDO PRACTICE: Fishermen along the Potomac River are melancholy because they say fishing between Piney Point and Point Lookout, where the Potomac empties into Chesapeake Bay, has been forbidden between 7 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. on week days during torpedo experiments.

* * * *

Quite plaintively, the fishermen say that permission to fish on Sundays and holidays means little, because the fish don't bite anyhow on Sundays and holidays.

LINDY AIRED: Col. Lindbergh himself phoned three times to the Columbia broadcasting studios here before he arranged his last political radio talk. But he leaned over backward to emphasize that he wasn't "asking for radio time."

* * * *

Instead, he made it clear that he was merely offering Columbia a chance to broadcast an exclusive Lindbergh speech, because N. B. C. and Mutual had already had a whirl at his other two political broadcasts.

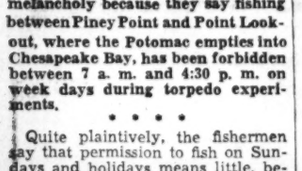
* * * *

It seems that by playing the three chains against each other and peddling his deep thinking to each in turn, he is assured of radio time whenever he wants it . . . His last broadcast revived the hysterical chatter that he is vice presidentially willing.

* * * *

Incidentally, the phrase "hysterical chatter" has been described at the State Dept. as a typical "Bill Castle phrase." Castle is a former Undersecretary of State who might be Secretary of State in a Republican regime.

But last time he was credited with collaborating on a Lindy speech he denied it whole-heartedly.



"—what is a fifth column?"

FIFTH COLUMN: Origin of this suddenly popular phrase mystifies many people. It was probably first used by Gen. Franco who said, when four columns of his troops were surrounding Madrid, that he had a secret "fifth column" inside Madrid which would rise up and smite the Loyalists.

STOOGE READY: In diplomatic circles here it's said that the Nazis have already picked out their "Quisling" to take over Mexico for the pro-Communazi cause. He is a Mexican general, Juan Accarate, now minister to Berlin, who has been filled full of Munchner beer and Nazi ideas. In Mexico the Nazis and Communists work in close cahoots.

Representative Fish Urges G. O. P. Committee To Postpone Convention Till July 25

'Wisest Thing' to Do, He Says; No Change Indicated, However

The Republican National Committee yesterday heard another proposal to postpone the national convention until July 25, but it was indicated there would be no change in the present June 15 date.

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, said he was writing Republican National Committee Chairman John Hamilton a letter urging the postponement.

"It would be the wisest thing we could do in the light of present war conditions, and it would be the soundest thing we could do politically," said Fish.

The New York Republican proposed scheduling the Republican convention ten days after the Democrats meet, which would give the G. O. P. a preview of Democratic candidates and a later look at the international situation.

Landon Opposes Delay

In the absence of Hamilton, Republican National Committee spokesmen said any change in the convention date has been decisively rejected by Hamilton and by Republican leaders he has consulted. Former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, among others, has emphatically opposed postponement.

Congressional Republicans, meanwhile, were preparing to force a roll call vote when the resolution to adjourn Congress is presented, it was learned. One House minority spokesman predicted Republicans will vote almost unanimously to keep Congress in session through the summer and will pick up enough Democratic votes to make the ballot close.

Faced with planking a campaign platform in advance of the Democrats, Republicans who will meet a week early to map a program yesterday were studying defense and foreign policy recommendations of the Glenn Frank committee report.

The report, expected to become a basis of Republican resolutions committee studies, urged strong defense of the Western Hemisphere and a political and economic foreign policy "flexible enough that, in a rapidly changing international situation, we can adopt the measures that will, at any given time, most effectively serve" American welfare and a more rationally ordered world.

Members-designate of the resolutions committee will meet in Philadelphia June 17 to open platform discussions. Meantime Landon, in his swing East and West, was reported attempting to forge a closer band of party unity for the campaign ahead. Landon, while in Washington, talked with leaders of all factions of the party and continued his intermediary role of adviser-consultant in New York. The 1936 G. O. P. nominee has yet to take sides in the candidate race.

On the Democratic front, Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones yesterday disavowed any ambition to be Vice President in a letter to former Gov. W. P. Hobby, of Houston, Tex., publisher of the Houston Post.

Jones replied to a proposal by Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe of Houston that the Texas State convention instruct delegates for Jones on a third-term ticket.

Jones wired Hobby:

"In your May 23 issue Mayor Holcombe, without my knowledge, proposed that due to changed conditions abroad the Waco convention instruct the Texas delegation to vote for President Roosevelt for reelection for me for Vice President. I am conscious of the very great honor such an instruction would be and appreciate the esteem that prompts the suggestion. But aside from any ambition that I might have to be Vice President, and I have no such ambition, I do not think the harmony agreement of some weeks ago should be disregarded."

In the so-called "harmony agreement," Texas third-term leaders agreed not to block Garner's indorsement by the Texas convention and Garner supporters disavowed any "Stop Roosevelt" intentions.

Don Ameche Testifies for Block Booking

The House Interstate Commerce Committee heard a popular witness yesterday at its hearing on proposed legislation to outlaw block booking and blind selling of motion pictures. The witness, Don Ameche, is shown favoring the spectators. He does not favor the legislation

Don Ameche, film star, expressed opposition before the House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday to proposed legislation to outlaw compulsory block booking and blind selling of motion pictures.

The actor, nattily attired in a light gray suit, told the committee—and an audience filled with women—that it would be "impossible" for producers to comply with proposed provisions which would require them to furnish theater operators with a synopsis of a picture before it was produced.

Pictures change too much in the making, he explained.

Representative Brown (Republican), of Ohio, asked the actor whether he had written a letter, received by committeemen, opposing the legislation.

"I also received a letter from Mickey Rooney expressing his opinion on moral and economic phases of this legislation," Brown added, and the spectators roared.

Ameche said he could not remember whether he wrote the letter or whether some one else had written it and he had merely given his approval.

Representative Wolverton (Republican), of New Jersey, told him not to feel embarrassed if he didn't write the letter because "members of Congress frequently have their secretaries write letters for them."

Brown said letters from Hollywood actors, which discussed moral and economic factors of the proposed legislation, "made a great impression on me, especially those from Mickey Rooney and Shirley Temple."

Hailstorm Hits Maryland Shore Area

Salisbury, Md., May 27 (AP).—A violent hailstorm cut a 12-mile wide swath through the Delmarva peninsula tonight, leaving crop destruction in its wake.

Strawberries, just coming to market, were damaged. Tomato plants, set out about three weeks ago, were beaten down and young corn was slashed.

The storm was reported in the Cambridge area and swept across the shore past Salisbury, where 1-inch hail stones covered the ground. Its path was apparently 40 to 50 miles long, southeastward toward the Atlantic Coast.

Delmar apparently got the northern edge of the storm, while it tapered off between Salisbury and Princess Anne. Deal Island also reported being on the fringe.

Blimps Hold Rendezvous Here Today

Seven Silver Airships Due to Arrive at Noon; Four From Lakehurst

Washington today, weather permitting, will see the largest concentration of lighter-than-air craft since the World War.

Seven silver airships—four from the Navy base at Lakehurst, N. J., and three from the Goodyear hangars at Akron, Ohio; Hasbrook Heights, N. J., and Washington Airport—have a rendezvous above the Nation's Capital at noon.

The Navy blimps, including the 300-foot K-2, the country's largest, were scheduled to take wing at Lakehurst at 6:30 a. m. The continuance of dense fog along the Jersey coast, however, will lead to postponement of the flight until tomorrow.

Part of the Atlantic Coast patrol, utilized for intercepting merchantmen and sighting mines and submarines, the Lakehurst blimps constitute two-thirds of the Navy's lighter-than-air force.

Preparations were made last night to moor the Goodyear blimp Rainbow, which will come from Akron, to a nose mast at Washington Airport for the night. The Goodyear Reliance, from Hasbrook Heights, is scheduled to land at the airport before the noon assembly aloft.

Plans called for an hour of formation flight above the city, with the 150-foot Goodyear blimps trailing the Navy ships.

Scores of private planes, here for the National Aviation Forum, are expected to swarm around the helium-inflated "sausages."

Commanding the Navy squadron from the K-2 will be Lieut.-Comdr. R. F. Tyler, who first saw airship service in the World War. Pilot for the K-2 will be Lieut. L. P. Furcolow; for the K-1, Lieut. W. M. Hanger; the TC-13, Lieut. F. A. Trotter, and the TC-14, Lieut. D. M. Entler.

Lieut.-Comdr. Karl Lange will pilot the Goodyear Enterprise; Lieut. J. H. Boettner, the Reliance, and Lieut. K. L. Fickes, the Rainbow. Lange, Boettner, Fickes, Furcolow and Trotter are members of the Navy Reserve Corps, the last two on active duty.

Stamp Valued At $15,000 Displayed Here

In the lobby of the Willard Hotel is a postage stamp, not as large as a special delivery stamp, valued at $15,000. Behind a thin pane of glass, it is unguarded, but no one is worried about thieves.

The item is a 25-centavo Honduran airmail stamp, only two of which are in existence. It is blue, with a 10-centavo rate in the corners and is overprinted in black, "Correo Aero—25 centimes." Its value comes from the fact that it and one other were printed before the printer discovered black ink would not contrast sufficiently against the dark blue and changed colors.

No one will steal it, said Emil Bruechig, New York stamp dealer who placed it on exhibit in connection with the National Aviation Forum, because it couldn't be sold at any price. "It's better than diamonds," he explained.

Despite many requests, no formations or stunt flying will be presented by the Army Air Corps for delectation of visitors to the Air Show at Bolling Field, Capt. C. S. Irvine, general manager of the exhibition, announced yesterday. He said to bring tactical units here for that purpose would interfere too seriously with the intensive training program now affecting all units of the Air Corps.

Concrete will be poured on the first runway at the National Airport at Gravelly Point today at 10 a. m., with appropriate ceremonies. A matter of routine in construction of the field, this proceeding chanced to occur opportunely during the air forum.

The Aviation Writers Association took advantage of the concentration here of its members for the air forum to hold its annual meeting and election yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel. All officers were reelected.

They are Devon Francis, of the Associated Press, president; Maurice Roddy, Chicago Times, and James Bassett, Los Angeles Times, vice presidents, and Michael H. Froelich, Aero Digest, secretary-treasurer. Benny Turney, of Oklahoma City, was named governor of the new Southwest district and Walter T. Bonney, of Springfield, Mass., of the New England district.

Twenty boys from Powell Junior High School last night built a model airplane in the studios of the National Broadcasting Co. for a broadcast of Air Youth of America. They were directed by Art Vhay, technical director of AYA, who discussed their work with them in a broadcast over the Blue Network.

Next Monday at 6 p. m., Winthrop Rockefeller, one of the sponsors of AYA, will speak over the same network.

Hinckley Tells Training Plans

Hotel last night.

Hinckley told the forum that the Nation's qualified colleges and flight training schools "can handle at least five times as large a program and can turn out 50,000 private pilots in the coming year without any loss of efficiency and safety." He predicted the program, in addition to providing military pilots, would cushion civil aviation production when the emergency ends, but at the same time sounded a warning.

"Always remember," he said, "that some day there will come an end to this emergency and when that day comes what will we then do with the geared-up production of our aircraft plants and our extensive aviation personnel? Then the Government should be in a position to grant new routes—perhaps doubling present mileage—to expand the air-mail service, and even foster a real air-freight service.

"We do not need pipedreams or panaceas. We do not need to upset the applecart. All we need to do—if we will concentrate our vast energy and ability on it—is to organize ourselves at once for production of the best aircraft and air personnel, in the largest quantities of which we are capable. Every time we have done that in any field we have been unbeaten."

Speaking at the morning session at the Department of Commerce auditorium yesterday morning, Gen. George Marshall, Chief of Staff of the Army, recalled the confusion of World War aircraft production and its aftermath of charges and recriminations.

"We must approach this present situation in a state of calm determination not to be foiled by the emotions of the moment, or by any of the multitude of difficulties which are certain to be involved in a tremendous and sudden expansion," he said.

Enthusiasm Not Enough

"The most important lesson of the World War effort," he said, "relates to the American tendency, under the emotional strain of a great emergency, to assume that vast projects can be completed on the basis of enthusiasm without regard to the practical realities of the problem." He recalled the "tragic disillusionment" when planes and trained pilots failed to materialize after a few months with an appropriation of $640,000,000 and great publicity.

"My thought," he said of the present emergency, "is that we should promise only what we can reasonably expect to achieve. The impulse of patriotic America is a wonderful thing, but its impatience to overcome the deficiencies of past neglects can be a destructive force. The present situation, whatever the cause, is a matter of fact which cannot be altered by argument. Today all of us must cooperate, must think of ourselves as a team in a united effort to produce the most practical result in the shortest possible time."

America must have a "blitzkrieg of airmindedness," declared William B. Stout, president of Stout Engineering Laboratories, if it is to keep pace with Europe's normal use of the air, even in peacetime. The current pilot training program, he declared, can lead to 100,000 trained pilots, requiring airplanes to fly and quantity production will lead to good "flivver" planes reasonably priced. From these, he added, present "glaring deficiencies," particularly poor vision, must be removed.

Helicopters, which raise themselves vertically and hover over one spot, may be the flivver planes of the future, according to Igor I. Sikorsky, of the United Aircraft Corporation's Vought-Sikorsky division, which has a helicopter at the air show. He said he believed helicopters played an important part in Germany's capture of the Liege fortress.

Detailing the experience of Purdue University with the CAA training program, Dr. Edward C. Elliott, university president, said it is better that we should "provide our youth opportunity to become trained voluntarily to fly rather than later to compel them involuntarily to fly. If our youth must go into the air, they should go with heads up. "At this particular hour," said Dr. Elliott, "and during all the unnumbered uncertain hours ahead, wisdom compels realism. The Nation needs a united, practical patriotism, a patriotism without panic, without pessimism, without politics, without penury; a realistic patriotism that expresses itself in trustworthy planning, in tested planes and, above all, in trained pilots."

Easier and safer flying in simpler airplanes was predicted by Fred E. Weick, chief engineer of the Engineering & Research Corporation.

C. S. (Casey) Jones, pioneer aviator, described conditions in South America with regard to aviation and urged that larger efforts be made to cultivate it as a market and as a neighbor. He suggested training more South American pilots, a stabilized merchandising system and more visits there by aviation higher-ups from this country.

Reviewing the transfer of the Civil Aeronautics Authority from an independent agency to the Department of Commerce, Col. Edgar S. Gorrel, president of the Air Transport Association of America, felt the change would not impair its efficiency. He warned, however, against "short tempers" in the aviation industry, which "has been affected by changes in the governmental organization dealing with it all too frequently in the past."

The American Association of Airport Executives, meeting with the forum, adopted a resolution urging an immediate program looking toward establishment of "a national network of strategically located airports capable of housing and operating" the 50,000-plane air force suggested by President Roosevelt. The resolution referred to the "absolute futility" of the President's program unless airport and hangar facilities are developed correspondingly, and urged that Congress adopt the 1939 recommendations of the C. A. A.

At Bolling Field, the Transcontinental & Western Air four-motored stratoliner was christened by Mrs. Hinckley. Postmaster General Farley and Hinckley made brief talks.

The Postoffice Department demonstrated mail pick-up devices and announced that today an autogiro shuttle service would be established from Bolling to Washington Airport. A postoffice has been set up at Bolling Field and special cachets will be applied to covers for collectors.

The air show at Bolling Field, with exhibits by 125 aircraft manufacturers, makers of engines, instruments and equipment, the Air Corps, the Navy and Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Weather Bureau, the WPA, the National Youth Administration and other agencies, will be continued today and tomorrow. Today will be Air Transport Day, with air transportation the keynote of the forum and the show.

Hoover Urges Single-Headed Administration Of Defense Program; Hits Back at Roosevelt

Calls Boards, Political Coalitions 'Foolish;' Offers 7-Point Plan

New York, May 27 (AP).—A "single-headed administration" to direct the United States' vast defensive armament program was proposed tonight by former President Herbert Hoover.

In a Nation-wide radio speech on "National Defense," he termed boards and political coalitions "foolish" in emergencies and advanced the following program for "real preparedness:"

"1—That a munitions administration can be created in Washington.

"2—It should have a single-headed administrator with assistant heads for labor, agriculture and industry.

"3—This administrator should be an industrialist and not a politician.

"4—He should have authority to appoint a nonpartisan advisory board representing the Army, Navy, labor, transportation, manufacturing and agriculture.

Up to Administrator

"5—The whole of the purchasing and manufacturing for the Army and Navy from private industry should be done by this administrator. The business of the Army and Navy is to state what they want. It is for the munitions administrator to deliver it.

"6—A research organization should be created to constantly improve these products.

"7—All appropriations for such work should be made to this organization."

"This is a form of organization that will get speed and economy," Hoover declared. "Urgency, speed and economy are not bureaucratic virtues."

He based his recommendations on three lessons which he said had been learned during and since the World War.

Experience had shown, first, that large volume procurement of munitions must be separated from Army and Navy establishments, he said, adding that this was a job for "management and labor," a job that "requires that thousands of factories be coordinated to do their part."

Need One Responsibility

The second lesson was that such operations could not be "controlled by boards, councils or conferences, he said.

"The whole genius of the American people was demonstrated over 150 years that when we come to executive action, including the office of the President of the United States, we must have single-headed responsibility.

"It is just as foolish to set up a board to conduct munitions business as it would be to set up a board to conduct the Presidency of the United States."

"The third lesson taught by experience," he continued, "is that we must get these vast expenditures of money out of politics—get them out of sectional pressures and out of group pressures . . . That is the only way we can prevent profiteering and eliminate waste and assure efficiency."

Defends His Regime

Hoover defended his own Administration from what he termed President Roosevelt's "implications" that previous Administrations "had been derelict in providing national defense," saying that up to 1934 Mr. Roosevelt considered the outlook for world peace and disarmament so promising that in that year "he himself reduced" this country's rate of arms expenditures by about $100,000,000.

The President's statements in his "fireside chat" last night, Hoover added, "have a partisan flavor."

"The peaceful democratic government of Germany collapsed into dictatorship under Hitler two months after Mr. Roosevelt was elected," he continued. "It was in Mr. Roosevelt's Administration that Europe began to rumble with aggression and armament. . . . The total of 60 nations increased expenditures (for armaments) from $4,000,000,000 in 1932 to $17,000,000,000 in 1938. The suggestion that we should have armed against menaces that had not been born seems overdone.

"During this last five years we have had warning time and again, publicly and privately. The Congress has increased appropriations year by year since 1934. It even permitted relief funds to be used for defense. We obviously have not gotten preparedness."

"Did we wish to engage in criticism," Hoover went on, "we could point out that for years, as officers responsible for national defense, we had a Secretary of the Navy too ill to attend to his duties. Then he was replaced by a temporary appointment. For three years the differences between the Assistant Secretary of War and his superior have been public knowledge. . . ."

"What America must have is such defenses that no European nation will even think about crossing this 3,000 miles of ocean at all," he said at another point. "We want a sign of 'keep off the grass' with a fierce dog plainly in sight.

"My own view is that we need first a strong Navy. We need a skeletonized but more flexible Army. We need large additions of skilled personnel in our reserves, air-pilots, tank-drivers and gunners. And we need equally the organization of our industrial capacity to produce our weapons and supplies. . . . We do not want 50,000 planes put away in hangers. These planes would be obsolete in a year. I do not suppose that this is the President's proposal. . . . What we need is organization in Washington capable of bringing about a coordination in American industry that can produce 50,000 airplanes in a year if they were called to do it. If we could demonstrate that we could supply the Army and Navy with 4,000 planes during a single month, that would be ample notice to the world to keep off our grass. . . ."

and a chain of air bases for the Navy.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, warned the Nation not to expect an early completion of the arms program, declaring "impatience to overcome the deficiencies of past neglects can be a destructive force."

Senator Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, who holds a captain's commission in the Reserve Corps, returned from Army maneuvers with a plea that the emergency defense program be enlarged to provide a standing Army of 750,000 men and 2,000 additional tanks.

Legislation was introduced by Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee to authorize new buildings and additional land for Army posts costing $18,500,000, and permit nonflying Army officers to serve as members of plane combat crews.

Tax Leaders Confer

Pending completion of a Treasury study on defense financing, Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Cooper (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of his special tax subcommittee, conferred with Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee.

Asked if his committee would consider new levies, Doughton said:

"It begins to look like we may, but we will know more about it after we've talked with the President. No decisions have been reached.

"Of course, if we have a real, scientific tax bill, covering the whole field, it would take us all summer, but if we enact an emergency proposition to meet the present situation it shouldn't take so long."

Senator Harrison declined comment, but sounded out sentiment for action now in a series of conferences with colleagues.

Harrison formerly recommended to the President that the whole tax question be deferred until January, on the theory that the Treasury would be able to meet fiscal demands until next February or March. He had favored a special December session if a tax urgency were to develop.

May Recess for G. O. P. Convention

Sentiment has crystallized since for an immediate solution, it was said, and Harrison was ready to bow to that course if the President and Treasury recommended. One tax spokesman asserted that the present time is auspicious "from the standpoint of patriotic national support."

Expectation of leaders is that an emergency tax program can be put through Congress without sharp opposition before Congress recesses or adjourns for the Democratic National Convention, July 15. A recess for the Republican convention, June 24, may be necessary. Leaders previously have been shooting for a mid-June adjournment.

Harrison is known to have considered a 10 per cent horizontal increase in taxes as one quick means of meeting emergency revenue needs. Other proposals which have been advanced, and have been carefully mulled over by the Treasury and Congressional tax experts range from an excess profits or "windfall tax" on unusual industrial profits to lowering of income tax exemptions. Some sentiment has even been voiced for a general sales levy.

The $32,000,000 asked by President Roosevelt for civilian pilot training would swell to $37,000,000 the amount set aside for the program next year. With $4,000,000 appropriated this year, about 10,000 youths have been given from 35 to 40 hours preliminary flight instruction, while an additional 1,800 have received from 10 to 25 hours advanced training.

"The success of the initial program, now nearing completion," a letter from the Budget Bureau said, "justifies the belief that the Civil Aeronautics Authority is fully prepared to carry out immediately an expanded program which will provide for preliminary training of 45,000 citizens, for the secondary training of about 9,000, and in addition to provide for various types of advanced or refresher training for another 40,000."

Dewey Offers Defense Plan, Urges Nonpartisan Board

Dallas, May 27 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, tonight criticized the Administration's start of the Defense Program and proposed his own five-point plan including a non-partisan national defense board.

In an address before the executive committee of the Texas Republican Central Committee, Dewey suggested that National defense should be based on these points:

1. "We must first decide what we are going to defend. It is imperative that the Army and Navy know what areas they must protect.

2. "non-partisan national defense board to plan and direct our program of rearmament should be immediately established. This board . . . should have real power and full authority.

3. "The National Administration must remove from office its Socialists, Communists and fellow-travelers. It has been shown repeatedly that the Government departments are plentifully sprinkled with subversive activities. . . . We want no Fifth Column in our Government.

4. "The Administration must abandon its war on business. . . . We cannot wait until next January. Enterprise must get going now. The unemployed must be given a chance to go to work.

5. "Our national morale must be revitalized."

In an interview Dewey assailed President Roosevelt's fireside chat of Sunday night "as very disturbing in its bland confidence that all is right with our hopelessly inadequate national defense."

He attacked "the even more disturbing evidence that he fails to recognize that the job of national defense is one for expert industrial leadership; and needs to be taken out of the hands of the incompetents who have made a mess of national defense in the past."

Gannett Renews Attack

Portland, Oreg., May 27 (INS).—President Roosevelt's "political blitzkreig" has bled the Nation through "enormous taxes, low production at high cost, and tremendous relief loans," Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher and Republican Presidential aspirant, declared tonight in a speech before a Multnomah County Republican Rally.

Gannett, likening the President's preparedness message to the "Invasion of Mars" radio fantasy of 18 months ago, charged that Mr. Roosevelt is "trying to scare the country into giving him a third term."

Warning that "tyranny is on the march," he told his audience that the "Roosevelt-created panic" must be halted.

Nazis Drive 3 Salients Toward Ypres

Lys River north of Lille after breaking through the Belgian line, indicated a third Nazi thrust directed at the vicinity of Ypres, famed World War battleground and 20 miles northwest of Lille.

Authoritative sources said this maneuver was aimed at cutting off the British and French troops in the sector, leaving the Belgians to be taken in two small pieces by a smash through westward from Ghent.

It was authoritatively estimated that about 700,000 British and French troops were in the Lille trap.

Evidence that the Allies were countering with a similar pincher movement to chop off the German spearheads through Flanders and Artois appeared in today's communique of the German high command.

The French, the communique indicated, were attempting to separate the Germans on the coast from the main Nazi army by attacks from the south, but it declared that strong Nazi resistance was holding apart the prongs of the Allied pincers.

German war reports have made repeated reference recently to driving back Allied tank attacks at points all the way from Rheims westward to Amiens. They also have mentioned heavy German air activity as far south as Paris.

Whether the Allies were planning a move to rescue their men and equipment inside the German pocket seems not to concern the Nazis.

They are proceeding methodically to break up the encircled area into smaller pieces to make capture or destruction easier and more certain.

Today's communique, stressing air and naval achievements, reported these blows:

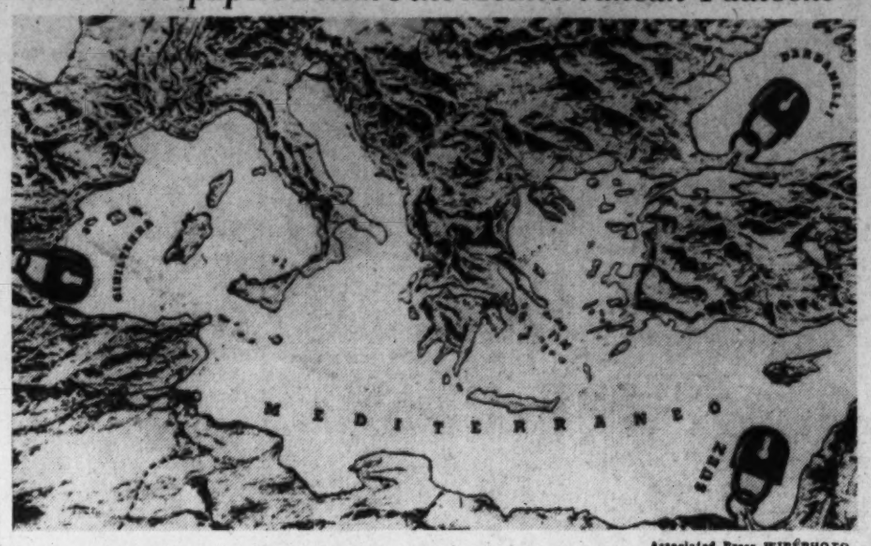
A British destroyer was sunk in Ostend Harbor and an Allied submarine was sunk off Helder, former Dutch naval base, by torpedo motorboats which the German navy has brought into increasing use along the Channel coast.

The waterfront of Dunkerque set aflame by air raiders "to frustrate attempts of the English to bring parts of their encircled troops across the Channel to England."

Destruction of 73 Allied warplanes, including 32 shot down in air fights and 15 by antiaircraft fire, to 15 German planes "missing."

A German tank, target of several Allied warships at Boulogne, was said to have returned the fire and set a destroyer aflame.

Italian Newspapers Picture the Mediterranean 'Padlocks'



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Despite British hopes of mollifying Italian bitterness against the Allied blockade, tension between the two countries grew today. This is a copy of a map, published in Italian newspapers, showing how they picture the country "locked" in the Mediterranean. Most Italians believed any relaxation of the contraband control would fall short of meeting Fascist "aspirations" as long as the British held the keys to Gibraltar and the Suez Canal rison, expected to sail from Genoa June 2.

Another chance—pessimists said it was a slim one—remained in the liner Washington. She is expected to sail from Italy June 15 but the belief was expressed that the Washington might not be able to complete her next eastward voyage to Italy before this country became a belligerent.

A passenger on the Manhattan said the liner halted off the Azores on the afternoon of May 23 at a time when Italy's war preparations were

British contraband control is one of the sore spots which has caused war sentiments to rise and Italians today ignored British hints of a possible agreement in the dispute.

Most Italians expressed belief any relaxation of the contraband control would fall short of meeting Fascist aspirations for territory and other concessions as long as Britain held a firm hand on Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, the two gateways to the Mediterranean.

Newspapers clamored with more insistence for "freedom" in the Mediterranean.

The Rome newspaper, Il Tevere, published a full-page map showing how Italian warplanes and ships could overcome British and French forces in a triangle formed by Alexandria, Haifa and Cyprus.

The blocking of the Suez Canal by sinking a steamer in it would cut the Allies off from reinforcements and supplies, it said, while an immediate Italian air attack from Sicilian, Libyan and Dodecanese bases would "overthrow" French and English air forces in Egypt, Palestine and Syria.

London, May 27 (AP).—British and French squadrons in the Mediterranean tonight kept their decks cleared for action, and the government ordered curfews on the two great fortresses of Gibraltar and Malta for everyone except soldiers and sailors in uniform.

"heavy military traffic."

Meanwhile, Britain called her men aged 28 and 29 tonight for military service. The 28-year-olds are to be registered June 15 and the 29-year-olds a week later, it was announced.

The new registration was expected to add 600,000 men to the armed forces and raise Britain's army to the 3,000,000 mark.

Informed sources said the government desired to have available a sufficient number of men to meet any call.

Sir Edward Grigg, undersecretary of the war office announced 400,000 volunteers have been "raised and organized" to fight German parachutists if they attempt to land in Britain. Sir Edward said a large proportion of these volunteers already had been armed.

Emphasizing that regular troops were "ready to tackle enemy landings from the air," the undersecretary of war said the "volunteers are only a part of our new system of defense."

The Royal Air Force, a communique said, battered German communications and airdromes and troop concentrations in the rear of Arras. Allied antiaircraft guns raked the clouds for enemy planes and brought down a "number" of them.

Twenty-eight German planes were reported destroyed or seriously damaged in 24 hours during one of the most farflung raids yet staged by the Royal Air Force. Five British craft were missing.

Traffic Disorganized

Road, rail and river traffic was disorganized over a wide area from the Rhineland to the French frontier, the Air Ministry reported, in raids which lasted throughout last night and today.

The Air Ministry added 150 high explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on airports at Brussels and Charleroi.

Flames were said to have leaped skyward after attacks on Antwerp.

Flushing, on the Dutch coast, and Venlo, on the Dutch-German border, also were attacked.

In other attacks, the air ministry asserted, a bridge on Belgium's main rail line was believed destroyed, a direct hit scored on the railroad tracks south of Aachen (Aix-la-Chappelle), in Germany, an important rail junction in Belgium wrecked, and a convoy of 24 vehicles blasted to pieces.

Gen. Haining Shifted

Lieut. Gen. R. H. Haining was named vice chief of the imperial general staff today under Gen. John Greer Dill in the reorganization of the British high command.

Maj. Gen. B. C. T. Paget, commander of the Eighteenth Division, was appointed chief of the general staff of the home forces with the acting rank of lieutenant general. Paget led the British withdrawal from Norway.

He will be under Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, who was shifted from chief of the general staff to general officer commanding the home forces.

The government took new precautions against the menace of a fifth column. More than 3,000 German and Austrian women were rounded up in London for interment on the Isle of Man for the duration of the war. Scores of pacifists, war grumblers, soap box orators and suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican army were arrested.

Approximately 3,000 German and Austrian men and women now interned sought immigration permits to go to the United States.

Nazi Cross Lys, Hurl Back Allies

pared line farther west toward the channel.

The struggle raged with undiminished fury throughout today with the Allies reported checking the Germans on their new front.

The French high command's night communique said British troops counterattacked on the northern front along the upper reaches of the Lys, about 10 miles southeast of St. Omer, France, while the French persisted in their cleanup on the Somme.

To the east, the Germans launched fresh attacks in the Argonne Forest, famed A. E. F. battlefield, where their objective in that sector, east of the Aisne River, appeared to be to outflank the French front established on the Aisne to defend Paris. The French communique said the attack broke against firm French positions.

In the Flanders battle, the Germans hurled forces against three sides of the northern armies. On the north flank they battered the sector held by Belgian troops on the Lys in a thrust toward Menin, on the French-Belgian border north of the important industrial town of Lille.

Some small German gains there—at the cost of "enormous losses"—were acknowledged by the Allies.

On the east flank the Germans smashed the point of the French-held front in the Valenciennes sector. The retreat was ordered there to straighten out the Allied line.

On the English Channel, Nazi forces pushed up through Boulogne toward Calais, 22 miles from Britain, in an effort to cut the Allies off from the sea. The French early today claimed they still held Calais, but admitted tonight the city's fate was uncertain.

The severity of the combat was not disguised in military dispatches reporting seemingly unending streams of German troops rolling over the Allied lines.

A war ministry spokesman tonight said the Germans concentrated most attacks during the day against the Belgians along a 25-mile front in the Menin sector. The battle raged on there tonight.

Nazis Hope to Bare Churchill's 'Plot' To Sink U. S. Liner

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Berlin, May 27.—German officials "hope" to be able tomorrow to show foreign correspondents "material" regarding Winston Churchill's alleged plan to sink the President Roosevelt, of the United States Lines, after it has left Galway, Ireland, for New York with American refugees from the war area.

Authorized quarters said this morning that the German foreign office had "informed" the American Embassy of Churchill's plan and was "staying in constant contact" with the embassy. American diplomats, however, said that no such "contact" has been made, beyond an acknowledgment of the American note regarding the President Roosevelt's sailing plans.

Leche Trial Opens; 2 Aides May Turn State's Evidence

Alexandria, La., May 27 (AP).—Former Gov. Richard W. Leche, charged with mail fraud in the Louisiana "scandals," went on trial alone today after two codefendants pleaded guilty to a similar charge.

A jury was selected to try Leche after L. P. Abernathy, former chairman of the Louisiana highway commission, and George Younger, Alexandria truck dealer, changed their pleas from innocent to guilty. U. S. Judge Ben O. Dawkins deferred sentence.

J. St. Clair Adams, Leche's attorney, said he understood Younger and Abernathy had been promised leniency for entering guilty pleas and testifying against Leche.

The indictment charges the trio and a fourth man, now deceased, split a "profit" of $113,370 in the purchase of 233 trucks by the highway department from Younger's firm in 1937 and 1938, when Leche and Abernathy were in office. Leche, the Government claims, received $31,000 as his share.

Jay Pierrepont Moffat, 44, Career Diplomat, Named Envoy to Canada to Succeed Cromwell

Roosevelt Selects State Department's European Expert

By William V. Nessly

Post Staff Writer

Indicating striking official recognition of the new importance attached to relations between this country and Canada, President Roosevelt yesterday named one of the highest ranking foreign service officers of the State Department as Minister to Ottawa.

Jay Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the Division of European Affairs in the department, and a career diplomat with unusually wide experience, was nominated to the post vacated last week by James H. R. Cromwell, who resigned to run for the Senate from New Jersey.

In marked contrast with previous appointments, when the post was permitted to remain vacant for months at a time, the President sent Moffat's nomination to the Senate only four days after Cromwell's resignation became effective.

Aided Welles in Europe

The new minister-designate, now only 44, has been closely linked with practically all of the outstanding developments in the Nation's relations with the rest of the world in turbulent recent years. It was he who was selected to accompany Undersecretary Sumner Welles on his fact-finding mission to Europe to assist Welles in gathering and assembling information for the President.

Served Over World

Around the world Moffat has ranged in his 23 years in the foreign service. The Hague, Warsaw, Tokyo, Constantinople, Sydney, Berne, Ottawa and Washington have been scenes of his activity on regular service, and he has served on special missions to numerous conferences at Geneva and was an adviser at the Nine-Power Conference at Brussels.

He served as chief of the old Division of Western European Affairs, then went to Australia as consul general. There he is generally credited with having laid the groundwork for the recent opening of direct diplomatic relations between this country and Australia through ministers. Following his Sydney assignment he was returned here as head of the enlarged Division of European Affairs three years ago.

His nomination came amid widespread discussion of the possible transfer of the British government and fleet to Canada in case of an overwhelming German invasion of the British Isles and recollection of President Roosevelt's assertions that Canada is embraced in the scope of the Monroe Doctrine and this country could not remain idle if a foreign power threatened to subdue her.

Educated at Harvard

Moffat, born at Rye, N. Y., attended Harvard from 1915 to 1917 when he became private secretary to the American minister at The Hague and assistant in the legation. From that assignment his activities steadily widened. He was prominent in the preparatory work for the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva and was secretary of the American delegation to the Geneva Conference of 1929, dealing with humane treatment for prisoners of war.

Officials were said to consider him one of the ablest administrators in the department.

Cafe Employers Talk With Union

A conference between employers of the Latch String Cafe, 612 Twelfth street northwest, and representatives of the United Cafeteria Employes Local Industrial Union, 471, of the C. I. O., will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. to discuss employes' demands, Jack Mink, business agent of the union, announced yesterday.

Demands of the union are a 48-hour week, a $2 a week increase in salary for all employes, two weeks vacation with pay, paid holidays, and a union shop, Mink said. The conference will be held in the office of Edmund D. Campbell, attorney for the cafe.

tion of America, which has been operating a visual broadcasting station on a regular schedule in New York City for a year, and the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, which has been granted a permit to build a station in New York. The two experimenters use different transmission standards.

The FCC's decision was somewhat of a surprise to the industry as a "green light," to become operative January 1 next, had been expected generally.

The decision was interpreted in some quarters, however, as "a face-saving" move and merely preliminary to complete commercialization before the end of the year. It was believed that the industry, faced with alternative of agreeing on standards or continuing nonpaying experimental operations, will make haste to get together.

FCC Willing to Confer

"The commission stands ready," the order stated, "to confer with the industry and to assist in working out any problems concerned with television broadcasting."

The FCC took another pot shot at David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, whose newspaper advertisements caused the commission to withdraw its former order granting limited commercialization of television September 1 and to hold a second hearing last April.

"It is obvious," the FCC commented, "that the industry as a whole does not share the R. C. A. view of forging ahead regardless of the untested possibility of improvements on the horizon.

"It further appears that the industry was not prepared to accept Sarnoff's promise of 'We live on obsolescense' as a basis for justifying a heavy public investment at current levels of efficiency."

Foreshadowing a period of Nation-wide development, the FCC said that television stations would be "apportioned among various parts of the country with the view of forestalling any concentration of facilities in particular centers of population to the exclusion of the rest of the country.

"Each station will be utilized for the predominant purpose of advancing the science of television broadcasting in its engineering aspects," the order said. "The commission invites other responsible individuals or companies who are prepared to carry on this work to apply for a license."

Calling attention to the limited number of television channels, the FCC recalled that the "radio spectrum is public domain," and added:

"There is no room for squatters and there can be no preemption in this field. Accordingly the commission deems it to be in the best interests of the public that there be a strict limitation on the number of authorizations to any one licensee for television broadcast stations."

Rules for the regulation of television chain broadcasting, the FCC said, "will be promulgated at any appropriate time."

Michigan Highway Official Elected

5,000,000 Flee Horrors Of War Zone

Red Cross Faces Greatest Refugee Task In History, Says Aide

By the Associated Press

Geneva, May 27.—Count de Rouge, secretary general of the League of Red Cross Societies, reported today more than 5,000,000 refugees are in flight from northern France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, presenting the world with "the greatest refugee problem it has ever known."

"Five million refugees, almost all women, children and aged, are fleeing the war into a country of 40,000,000 whose resources all are mobilized to fight the war," De Rouge said, returning from a visit to Paris.

"Every conceivable tragedy marches with them."

The French executive of the International Red Cross said there were 3,000,000 refugees from Picardy and other northern battlefields, 70,000 from Luxembourg, 50,000 from the Netherlands already and nearly 500,000 more still on the way.

"Many of those caught in the battle zones may never get through alive," he added.

"At least 100,000 small children, too tiny to tell of their families, were separated from them in the rush."

The immediate and crying need of all refugees, he said, was shelter while the French government is moving them into safe south central zones.

"For the moment the problem is not food and clothing, but simply finding roofs and shelter for these people. The French foodstores are sufficient for the moment; clothing needs may come later, since the weather is temperate."

Ralph Magruder, Sales Manager, Dies in Hospital

Ralph E. Magruder, 42, of 928 North Ivey street, Arlington, died yesterday at 5:30 p. m., at Georgetown Hospital. A native of Georgetown, Mr. Magruder came to Arlington as a salesman for the Arlington Motor Co., Inc., in 1922. He had been sales manager for the firm since 1935.

Most of Mr. Magruder's early life was spent at Fort Myer Heights, Va., where he lived as a youth. He was educated in Fort Myer Heights School, now known as Woodrow Wilson School, and served in the United States Navy during the World War.

In 1931 he married Miss Clara Motzer, of Alexandria. The couple eloped by airplane to New York and were married there in the Little Church Around the Corner.

Mr. Magruder was a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, Masonic Order.

He is survived by his wife, his mother, Mrs. Minnie Magruder, Arlington; a sister, Mrs. Edward Thackston, Washington, and three brothers, Clifford Magruder and Earl Magruder, Arlington, and William Magruder, Los Angeles, Calif.

strikebreakers and private guards with criminal records.

No Roll Call Needed

The wave of apprehension over "fifth column" activities, however, brought quick approval by the Senate to amendments offered by Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina. La Follette and Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, protested, but the alien, Communist and bund restrictions were approved by voice vote.

Senate approval of the Immigration Service transfer is expected to follow shortly. The resolution speeds up the effective date of the shift to 10 days after its passage. Under the reorganization act, orders do not become effective until 60 days after the date issued.

Debate on the resolution was marked by sharp Republican criticism of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, called her a "notorious incompetent" and declared the President lacked the "patriotism and courage" to dismiss her.

The Reynolds amendment imposes a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and five years' imprisonment for wilful infraction of the bar on employment of Communists and bundsmen.

On motion of Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, the Senate modified the alien restriction to permit employment of more than 10 per cent of such persons in localities where insufficient citizen-workers are available. The proviso also limits to 10 per cent the amount of total wages an employer in intersate commerce can pay alien workers.

Reynolds said this part of his amendment was directed at foreign movie stars employed in Hollywood studios.

The LaFollette bill would outlaw the employment of labor spies, strikebreakers and factory guards known to have been convicted of homicide or assault with a dangerous weapon. It would also make it illegal to use or possess industrial munitions or furnish them to any law enforcement agency or to use armed guards outside the employer's premises except to protect against theft or money in transit.

Provisions Withdrawn

Opposed by many Republicans on the ground it would hamper industry in preventing sabotage, Senator LaFollette downed much of the opponents' fire when he withdrew two provisions of the bill. Eliminated were all penalties against Government contractors and a proviso forbidding employers from investigating the political opinions of present or prospective employes.

Mary's reward came later

It was on the 9th anniversary of her marriage to the Dauphin of France that Mary was abducted by Bothwell. She was 25 years old and a great beauty, but never again did she know a minute of unallayed happiness. Her reward was to come as a proud heritage common to all Scots.

Today no name is more revered than Mary's. Her friends are legion. It was because of its friend-making qualities that long ago the proprietors of Highland Queen whisky named it for Mary, Queen of Scots. For it is an appealing Scotch, light and delicate, yet it retains rare flavor and bouquet.

Supreme Court Splits, 6-3, in Apex Case Over Union Damages

tainties in the application of the Sherman Act."

In answer to the majority view that mere interference with interstate commerce, even though purposeful, is not enough to bring strikers under the antitrust law, the Chief Justice said: "It is the direct and intentional prevention of interstate commerce that turns the scales."

Recalling that "employers are bound by the Labor Act" because of possible interference with interstate commerce, Chief Justice Hughes declared it "anomalous" if interference by employes with interstate shipments is not held to be a restraint of interstate commerce "under the broad terms of the Sherman Act."

The Supreme Court's opinion, which makes it clear that labor unions—under certain circumstances—can come within the Sherman Act, is expected to prove an important guide post for the Department of Justice in its current campaign against allegedly monopolistic practices of some unions.

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, in charge of the antitrust division, declared last night that "the opinion appears to sustain all of the pending prosecutions brought by the antitrust division where labor unions are involved, since these prosecutions are all directed against the kind of interference with competitive conditions declared illegal by Mr. Justice Stone."

"A notable victory for the CIO," commented Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel. The opinion "establishes one and for all" that legitimate union activities are exempt from the Sherman Act, he said.

In this connection, the majority opinion held that some union activities, even when they do restrict competition, are not considered restraints of trade under the Sherman Act. The Court specifically pointed out that wage agreements "may have some influence on price competition" by preventing price differentials based on wage cuts—but this is not "the kind of curtailment of price competition prohibited by the Sherman Act."

In some quarters it was held that almost the only form of union activity that can now be brought under the antitrust law is collusion with employers to fix prices. In yesterday's opinion, the court indicated again that this type of restraint is forbidden by law.

It was also said by some observers yesterday that jurisdictional disputes are taken out from under the Sherman Act, as they may be held not to interfere with competition.

"Restraints on competition or on the course of trade in the merchandising of articles in interstate commerce is not enough unless the restraint is shown to have or is intended to have an effect upon prices in the market or otherwise to deprive purchasers or consumers of the advantages which they may derive from free competition," said Justice Stone.

"Here it is plain," he added, "that the combination or conspiracy did not have as its purpose restraint upon competition. . . . The delay of these shipments was not intended to have and had no effect on the prices of hosiery in the market."

Justice Stone asserted that the record revealed "a lawless invasion" of the Apex plant in 1937, "and destruction of its property by force and violence of the most brutal and wanton character, under leadership and direction of respondents (the union) and without interference by the local authorities." But, he said, "violence, however reprehensible, does not give the Federal courts jurisdiction."

Justice Stone said that if the court held that "a local factory strike," which had no great effect on the market but did prevent interstate shipments, violated the Sherman Act, "practically every strike in modern industry would be brought within jurisdiction of the Federal courts . . . to remedy local law violations."

Not Intent of Law

"The act was plainly not intended to reach such a result, its language does not require it and the course of our decisions precludes it. The maintenance in our Federal system of a proper distribution between State and national governments of police authority and of remedies private and public for public wrongs is of far-reaching importance.

"An intention to disturb the balance is not lightly to be imputed to Congress. The Sherman Act . . . draws no distinction between the restraints effected by violence and those achieved by peaceful but oftentimes quite as effective means."

In his dissent, Chief Justice Hughes declared that when restraints "are found to be unreasonably and directly imposed upon interstate commerce, both employers and employes are subject to the sonctions of the act."

"Leaders of industry," observed the Chief Justice, "have been taught in striking fashion that when the court finds that they have combined to impose a direct restraint upon interstate commerce, their benevolent purposes to promote the interests of the industry . . . will not save them even from criminal prosecution for violation of the Sherman Act.

"If labor unions are not excepted from the act . . . the impartial enforcement of the law would seem to require that the same doctrine be applied to them," he declared.

Therefore, he said, the purpose of the union "to promote the interests of labor organization cannot be deemed to justify the direct and intentional restraint . . . imposed upon interstate commerce. . . . From no point of view, as it seems to me, can the restraint be regarded as reasonable."

"The right to quit work," he said, "the right peaceably to persuade others to quit work, the right to proceed by lawful measures . . . to attain the legitimate objects of labor organization, is to my mind quite a different matter from a conspiracy directly and intentionally to prevent the shipment of goods in interstate commerce either by their illegal seizure for that purpose, or by the direct and intentional obstruction of their transportation or by blocking the highways of interstate intercourse."

In two other opinions handed down yesterday, the Chief Justice and Justices McReynolds, Roberts and Stone were aligned against the court's majority of five New Dealers.

In one of these, the court held that only motor truck employes whose duties "affect safety of operation" are subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission in respect to hours and working conditions. The decision left some 200,000 other trucking employes under the provisions of the wages and hours law.

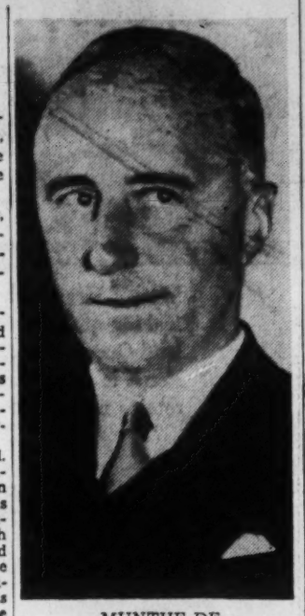
The I. C. C. regulations fix an absolute maximum work week of 60 hours for drivers, who the Supreme Court ruled, are under I. C. C. jurisdiction; while the wages and hours law provides for a 42-hour week, with overtime work permitted at a higher rate of pay.

The other 5-to-4 opinion involved the interpretation of a Federal statute suspending the payment of enlistment allowances formerly granted soldiers who reenlisted within three months after their discharge.

In a unanimous opinion by Justice Black, the court reaffirmed its action in overturning a Texas court's conviction of Bob White, colored, on a statutory charge. White was allegedly taken out of jail several times by Texas Rangers and quetioned in the woods, prior to his signing a confession.

Norse Envoy Here 30 Years Today; He's Not Celebrating

Morgenstierne Began Diplomatic Career At the Age of 22



MUNTHE DE MORGENSTIERNE

Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Minister from Norway, has an anniversary today, but he won't celebrate it. He isn't in the mood.

On May 28, 1910, Morgenstierne, age 22, began his diplomatic career as an attache at the Norwegian Legation, then on Logan Circle.

An atatache of the present legation at Massachusetts avenue and Thirty-fourth street northwest remembered the anniversary yesterday. The remembrance came as a surprise to the Minister, who debated the appropriateness of observing the event with an interview "in times like these."

"It seems almost trivial," he said.

He found it impossible to be concerned about personal things when something really important was happening in Europe. Never before, he said, has there been "such a clean-cut fight between light and darkness.' In his country and the rest of Europe, he said, the contest is between "all that man has fought for" and a return to the Dark Ages.

Sees Ultimate Victory

Morgenstierne never doubts that, ultimately, the Allies and Norway will win. The success of the invader "can't last forever," he reasons, because his aims constitute a "negation of all moral laws, all civilization."

"Permanent values have been blacked out only temporarily," he said.

More than one-third of Norway and five important cities still lie behind Norwegian lines. The Norwegian government still functions—"we cannot tell you where"—and communicates daily with its Minister to Washington whom it has made fiscal agent for all diplomatic and consular officers in the Western Hemisphere.

Morgenstierne was asked how he was able to keep from brooding over the tragedies in his homeland and his answer was—"work, hours and hours of work, all my waking hours at work." The war that brought the pain, he observed, brought work in such unprecedented quantities that the legation staff was enlarged and the Minister frequently sits at his desk till midnight.

Morgenstierne recalled that within a month of his first mission to Washington, death of the Minister, Ove Gude, and enforced absence of the ranking and only other member of the legation staff, catapulted him into the position of sole diplomatic representative of his country in America. He was, for about six weeks, the acting Minister with no more formal training for the job than his university degree.

He remembered how, with the trepidation and misgivings of one so young, he had been presented to Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson by Wilson's secretary, Hugh Gibson, later Ambassador to Belgium. He smiled at the remembrance, and once during the conversation, he laughed.

That was while pointing on a map to the town of Mo, northernmost point of Nazi penetration, he observed:

"They have 24 hours of sunshine there."

Dr. C. Frank Jones Dies in Baltimore

Baltimore, May 27 (AP).—Dr. C. Frank Jones, 77, physician and specialist in nose and throat ailments, died at his home today after an illness of several months.

Dr. Jones was born in Martinsburg, W. Va. He studied pharmacy and operated a drug store here, later receiving his degree from the Baltimore Medical College in 1895. He served as coroner and health warden and did special research work in infantile paralysis after the World War.

He is survived by his wife, the former Lena Kempel; a sister, Mrs. Ida J. Bell, of Cumberland; a brother, David H. Jones, of Clarksburg, W. Va., and a granddaughter, Harriet Kempel Estes.

Funeral services will be Wednesday afternoon.

Norfolk Bugle Corps To Lead Legion Parade

Colonial Beach, Va., May 27 (AP).—The Norfolk American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will lead a torchlight parade here June 28 in connetcion with the annual American Legion festival.

Other legion drum and bugle corps from all sections of Virginia have been invited to attend and participate in the parade and festival, which will continue through the afternoon of June 30.

Gov. Price and Representative S. Otis Bland, of Newport News, will be among distinguished guests.

Light Bulb Starts Fire, Ends Student's Career of Crime

An electric light bulb ended a career of crime for an 18-year-old university student early yesterday.

Breaking into a High's Ice Cream Store at 3400 Eleventh street northwest, the young marauder covered a 140-watt bulb with a clerk's apron to shield the light while he ransacked the premises.

The apron caught fire, and as the youth sought to stamp out the blaze, Pvt. P. H. Sams drove by in a Tenth Precinct scout car. Arrested and confronted with a revolver found beneath the counter, he confessed to a $25 holdup several weeks ago at another High's store.

At Tenth Precinct, he told police that crime seemed the only way to redeem his clothes, which were pawned to pay gambling debts. Police last night were seeking to link him to a series of recent holdups and housebreakings.

Slayer of Girl's Escort Sought In Baltimore

Man Shot in Heart As He Tried to Protect Woman From Attack

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, May 27.—Police today sought a man who, Miss Anna Petersen reported, shot and killed Frank A. Scheihing, her 25-year-old escort, last night when Scheihing fought to protect her from an attempted assault.

Scheihing was shot in the heart.

Miss Petersen, 24, told Lieut. Henry J. Kriss that the man fired several times when Scheihing, who had broken loose from wire bands, fought with him.

She said the man accosted them as they were walking to her home, forced them down an embankment, and bound them. The man fled when Scheihing fell, she said. Miss Petersen was treated at a hospital for lacerations of the face.

Couple's Death By Gas Held Accidental

Aged Victims Believed Overcome in Observing Religious Custom

Certificates of accidental death were issued by the coroner's office last yesterday in the deaths by gas of an elderly couple.

The bodies of the victims, Paul Laiefsky and his wife, Ida, both 72, of 4522 Seventh street northwest, were found in their gas-filled home after a worried daughter had asked neighbors to investigate the failure of her parents to answer the phone.

Mr. Laiefsky's body was found in a chair in the front room, while his wife's body was found on a bed in the next room by Mrs. Rose Rabinowitz, who occupies the floor above in the two-family house. One burner on the kitchen stove was lighted, while gas flowed from another.

Last Seen Friday

The victims had not been seen since Friday. Neighbors said the couple, who were Orthodox Jews, always observed the custom of cooking their Saturday food the day before in observing the Jewish Sabbath. Despite warnings, the couple believed in keeping one of the jets lighted over the Sabbath. Apparently this pilot jet had blown out, while the couple prepared to retire.

Police found a kettle of water over the other burner which was turned on with a low flame.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said the gas had escaped so slowly the victims probably had been unconscious for some time before death. The neighbors upstairs, who were away most of the day, had failed to detect any gas odor over the week-end.

Funeral Is Today

A daughter of the victims, Mrs. Irwin Kaplan, 6 Noyes drive, Silver Spring, Md., called the neighbors to investigate. Mrs. Kaplan said she became worried after learning that the couple had not attended the synagogue Saturday, which they had not missed for years.

Funeral services for the couple will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at the Sigmund Danzansky parlors, 3501 Fourteenth street northwest, with burial in Beth Sholem Cemetery.

Mr. Laiefsky was one of the founders of Har Zion Synagogue, now Beth Sholem Synagogue, and was a past president of the congregation. A native of Russia, he was a merchant and paperhanger here until his retirement about ten years ago.

Mystery Broadcast by Weygand Urging Allies To Hold Out Month Longer Being Checked

By the Associated Press

New York, May 27.—Gen. Maxime Weygand, generalissimo of Allied armies, in an extraordinary radio appeal last night pleaded with the people of the Allied countries "to hold out just one month," according to a Paris broadcast picked up here by N. B. C.

(After the broadcast, N. B. C. executives began an immediate check with Paris newsmen of the organization, but could only determine that the Paris Mondial frequently carried news dispatches not made available to foreign reporters. Thus it might be that the broadcast went on before a censorship was clamped down.

(The Paris Bureau of the Associated Press in response to a cable said that Gen. Weygand did not make a new appeal and did not broadcast. He did make a similar appeal some days ago, asking the people of the Allied countries to hold out for one month.

(N. B. C. short-wave listeners said the news broadcast came on suddenly, interrupting a musical program, which was continued afterward.

Exact Nature Probed

(A further inquiry is being made in Paris to determine if possible the exact circumstances of the announcement.)

Gen. Weygand did not speak in person. His petition read over Paris Mondial, the French government short-wave station, said:

"In a month France will be on the march to victory. Tonight we feel that this one month might well be cut down to a fortnight. Yet, in any case the military situation is improving faster and better than anyone could have imagined earlier in the week.

"The Allies are going through a period of holding the Germans at any cost and readjusting their troops and their lines in the situation forced by the great German break-through. Gigantic work has been done in this direction, and the French, all of them, with their commander in chief, are convinced that they and their Allies will not have to wait long for their chance to come. There is something in the air in Paris now—it is something big."

Gen. Weygand did not refer to the trend of battle in the channel "Bulge," but described intensified action along the Maginot forts. He was quoted:

"Along the Maginot Line, the German command tried to cut through the Maginot forts, feeling out the actual strength of the line. After several hours of artillery fire, the German sentries swarmed out of the Siegfried Line to attack.

"Wave after wave came over. It was not a battle, it was a massacre. Eye witnesses estimate that the number of German dead and wounded outside the Maginot Line was at least 25,000."

The radio report stated that after the German push on the Maginot forts had been repulsed, the Germans went out a party under a flag of truce with plea:

"We wish to ask you to cease firing for 24 hours so we can clear away our wounded and bury our dead."

Weygand Escapes Attacks

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Paris, May 27.—A dramatic story of Gen. Maxime Weygand's first visit to the war front as commander-in-chief of the Allied armies was told in the French press today.

Gen. Weygand left for the front May 21 in a French bombing plane escorted by six Morane pursuit planes. The French ships drew the fire of German anti-aircraft guns and encountered a patrol of Messerschmitts, but the German planes were driven off by French fighters.

He returned to Paris on a French destroyer, which was attacked by a rain of German bombs as it left the harbor. French anti-aircraft guns drove off the Nazi planes and the destroyer proceeded.

Council Opposes Street Renaming In Hyattsville

The mayor and council of Hyattsville, Md., voted their opposition last night to the Maryland Park and Planning Commission's proposal to change the names of streets in the town.

The change, slated to have become effective May 1, but postponed because of opposition, would make Hyattsville street names conform with those of the District of Columbia.

Last night's action resulted from a petition from the Woman's Club of Hyattsville, signed by 720 residents.

Canada to Expand Army Recruiting

R. H. Buss Dies; Ex-RFC Aide Here

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Ralph H. Buss, 50, managing director of the Detroit branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, died last night after an illness of two weeks.

Buss in 1932 became examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington and the West Indies. He returned to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago May 15, 1933, as assistant deputy governor, and on July 1, 1934, was named managing director of the Detroit branch.

Sentence Given Veteran in Park Fray Is Suspended

Judge George Neilson yesterday fined a World War veteran who Saturday tore down a banner at an American Socialist-Labor Party rally in Franklin Park. Then he suspended the sentence.

Charged with tearing down the banner and also punching the leading speaker at the rally was Benjamin Hollis Ruggles, 43, of 644 South Carolina avenue southeast, a navy yard employe. Plaintiff was Arla Albaugh, 33, of 2428 Second street northeast, one of two speakers.

"Much as the overwhelming majority of our people may abhor the doctrines of many organizations which seek to change our government," Judge Neilson said in a statement after leaving the bench, "the great arm of this Government which they would change, nevertheless protects their own property rights."

Judge Neilson had dismissed an assault charge and fined Ruggles $25 for destroying property.

Britain's New Front

The appointment of Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, erstwhile chief of the imperial staff, as commander in chief of the British home forces is further proof, if any were needed, of the seriousness with which the Churchill government envisages the possibility of a German invasion of England.

The Allies admit that Boulogne is in enemy hands. The Germans also claim the capture of Calais, which the British and French deny. But even with all the Channel ports in their hands such an invasion, in the opinion of competent military and naval authorities, would be no easy task for the Germans.

According to Rear Admiral Yates Sterling, jr., retired, an action of that kind would require a minimum force of 500,000 men at the outset. They would first have to be massed along the Channel. To transport these troops a fleet of at least 500 ships would be needed with large additional tonnage for the shipment of heavy artillery, tanks and military supplies.

It is conceivable, of course, that part of the invading army might be landed in England by parachute and by landing planes, assuming some British airdrome could be captured and held. Yet before any substantial number of German troops could get to British soil they would have to overcome the bitter opposition of the British fleet, Britain's coastal defenses and the Royal Air Force. Should German troops nonetheless succeed in landing the invaders would still have to contend with the military force which Great Britain has kept at home and which Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside has now been chosen to command.

"It would seem wiser for Germany," Admiral Sterling concludes, "to keep her soldiers' feet on land. The final result of such an attempt might be catastrophic for Germany."

It must be assumed that the German high command is fully aware of all the obstacles in the way of a successful invasion of England and the risks involved in such a venture. It is not at all unlikely, therefore, that the threat of action against Great Britain is merely a feint to keep the British busy building up their home defenses and in that way making it difficult if not impossible for them to aid France.

But of this the British cannot be sure. That is why every measure of precaution to meet the threatened assault from Germany, whether aerial or military, is now being taken by the British authorities. Fifth Column elements are being rounded up, children have been evacuated from southeastern coastal towns, patrols have been established to guard every bridge, jetty, wharf and dock, sportsmen beyond military age have been organized into corps of "parashooters" and other defense measures have been adopted. Should the blow come the British are determined not to be unprepared.

Politics And Defense

A few days ago Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell, commanding officer of the New York National Guard, called attention to the expense entailed by the maintenance of useless Army posts in some parts of the country. He also urged that we "take political interference with Army planning and the pork barrel out of national defense."

These words of advice and warning should be kept in mind. For there are already indications that politicians are trying to secure "pork" for their constituents in the form of new plants for the manufacture of munitions and airplanes. Extensive preliminary surveys by experts will enable the authorities to determine how many new plants are needed and how much additional output can be secured by fuller utilization of existing equipment. In any case, such decisions should not be influenced by political pressure or by pleas from interested commercial and civic bodies.

Safety and accessibility, closeness to labor supplies, and other advantages assuring speedy and economical carrying out of defense plans should be the sole determinants of the location of munitions plants. Training centers and military posts likewise should be placed where they will be most useful, regardless of the pleas of politicians to whom defense funds may be quite as tempting as rivers-and-harbors appropriations.

Unless the pork barrel is taken out of national defense in this way, as Gen. Haskell urges, the program is certain to be needlessly wasteful and slow of execution.

The Great Illusion

In this period of excitement over the war in Europe the ability to analyze facts calmly is a great asset. Whatever dangers beset the United States, they will be multiplied to the extent that the people yield to panic. This is a time when our democracy should prove its strength. And the first element of the strength we seek is the ability to recognize our problems and proceed in a cool, deliberate way to meet them.

To the extent that President Roosevelt brushed away illusions and hysteria, his address of Sunday night was a real contribution to our defense effort. Unfortunately, however, the speech was not all in that vein. Even while pleading for more realism in our approach to the problems of national security, the President left some major gaps in the set of facts which he is willing to face.

Mr. Roosevelt was on solid ground when he defended the record of his Administration on national defense. Our Navy, Army and air force have been notably strengthened in recent years. Frequently the President has asked for more money than Congress has been willing to grant for this purpose. Probably he should have taken the initiative in planning a larger defense program some months ago. But at least he must be recognized as the leader of the movement in that direction now under way.

It was scarcely in the interests of realism, however, for the President to declare that we have the largest, best equipped and best trained peacetime military establishment in the history of the country. The fact is that we have never in peacetime had anything more than the mere nucleus of an Army. To compare our armed forces at present to those maintained under different circumstances in the past means nothing whatever.

At several points in his address the President raised hopes that he would deal with the whole broad problem of strengthening our economic system to meet the test now confronting it. First, he advised: "Let us have done with both fears and illusions." Later he declared: "But as this program proceeds there are several things we must continue to watch and safeguard, things which are just as important to the sound defense of a nation as physical armament itself." Yet he gave no consideration whatever to the issue of raising the money which the Nation has already decided to spend.

The President is properly eager to avoid any reversal of social gains that have been made under his Administration. But he seems to draw no distinction between social gains and unrestrained spending that brings the specter of bankruptcy ever closer. There was nothing in his address to suggest that any economies will be sought in items not essential to defense to prevent an alarming increase in the national debt.

Apparently the President's illusion of an endless source of borrowed money that may be tapped by the Government without concern for its repayment is far from being shattered. That illusion is just as dangerous to the security of America as is the lack of guns, airplanes and other military equipment. Of course, it is difficult for the President to recognize this grave weakness in his program with an election just around the corner. But it is no less vital to the welfare of the Nation on that account.

Japan Looks On

Whatever the outcome of the present titanic struggle in France and Flanders, it is certain that repercussions will be felt in every corner of the world.

So far the outcome remains in doubt. That helps to explain why, despite the increasingly belligerent tone of the Italian press and of Fascist spokesmen, Mussolini has postponed giving the signal for war against the Allies. On the other side of the world, similar considerations of prudence have no doubt been at least partly responsible for Japan's unreadiness to upset the status quo in southeastern Asia. But, just as Italian belligerence has grown with each Nazi victory, so Japanese restlessness has increased as Germany has emerged as the possible victor in the European struggle.

The other day, for instance, Yakichiro Suma, spokesman of the Tokyo foreign office, declared that Japan's policy of noninvolvement in the European war might become one of involvement. What this cryptic statement means is not clear. But it is not in the least unlikely that, should the plight of the Allies become worse, Japan would seize the opportunity to establish her domination over the Dutch East Indies. For the time being Germany is proclaiming her disinterestedness in the fate of these Netherland colonies. This has encouraged some Japanese to favor the conquest of that area before Hitler changes his mind.

By no means all Japanese are convinced, however, of the wisdom at this time of Japanese aggression against the Dutch colonies in the Pacific. For instance Katsuji Debuchi, member of the House of Peers and former Ambassador to the United States, declared recently in an article in Gaiko Jiho that:

> "It would be better for Japan to refrain from talking big about the expansion of her 'economic sphere' and what not, on the one hand, and to announce in a more clear-cut manner that she has no iota of political ambition toward the South Seas in spite of her sincere desire for further consolidation of her economic ties."

A wise policy on the part of Japan, he went on to say, "would be not only to respect the existing rights and interests of the world powers, particularly Britain and the United States . . . but to welcome their collaboration in the development of the Far East . . ."

How this struggle between the commercial-minded element represented by Mr. Debuchi and the territorial expansionists will terminate is not certain. It is very probable, however, that a factor of considerable magnitude will be the outcome of the struggle in Flanders.

Guns For The CCC?

The release of 500 Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees to the merchant marine is not to be compared with proposals for militarizing the CCC—proposals which have been resisted on good grounds since the corps was first created. The youths selected for training as marine radio men and apprentice seamen are all volunteers, and they will be given honorable discharge from the CCC before their new education period begins.

The sea training program should point the way to an acceptable compromise between those who would change the nature and purpose of the CCC by putting guns into the hands of the enrollees, and those who maintain that these civilian camps should not be militarized. When CCC boys are needed for the merchant marine, the Army, Navy or any other service connected with the Nation's defense they may well be given an opportunity to transfer their enlistments. But such transfers should be entirely voluntary.

The comparatively small numbers involved in the current transfer will not satisfy the proponents of a CCC in arms. Indeed, Representative Johnson, of Oklahoma, is offering a bill to provide as much as two hours' training a day for 300,000 in CCC camps. His bill is misdirected. The Civilian Conservation Corps was formed to save our natural resources and to provide employment for young men who could not find work elsewhere.

If the Army has need of young men, they doubtless will be available from CCC camps and other sources. But there is no reason to confuse the widely differing functions of conservation and military defense.

The Tax Forum

No general agreement emerged from the District Bar Association's forum on local tax problems held Sunday afternoon. The discussion illustrates once more that the type of taxes to be imposed is a controversial issue on which there are many opinions among experts and laymen as well as among members of Congress.

It is significant, however, that no one is satisfied with the present chaotic revenue system which Congress has set up for the District. There were strong arguments in the forum for preservation of the income tax. But the present law must be modified to make it applicable to all persons living in the District, or perhaps all those drawing their income from this area, if it is to prove satisfactory.

The present Congress has flagrantly refused to correct its blunder in requiring local income taxes from only those persons legally domiciled in the District. No doubt the chief reason for that attitude is the desire to avoid an issue touching the interests of many Government employes who vote in the States. But one other factor has been the lack of any definite tax plan reflecting the wishes of District residents.

It may be impossible for local groups to reach an agreement on so controversial an issue. Yet every thoughtful discussion of tax problems contributes to better understanding of this issue and smooths the way for an ultimate solution. Other civic groups may well emulate the Bar Association in submitting the present confused revenue system to thoughtful analysis, with the interests of the community foremost in mind.

'Fifth Column'

From the Des Moines Register.

Some of our readers are asking the origin of the term "Fifth Column" to describe disloyal elements within a country, ready to rise at the proper moment and make the way easy for invaders.

It was the Nazi invasion of Norway that gave the term its present currency, but its origin goes back to the civil war in Spain.

When the rebellion was still young, the Nationalists boasted that they had four columns converging on Madrid and a "fifth column" inside Madrid, ready to rise when they gave the signal. The defenders of Madrid later conceded that these disguised insiders were sabotaging, sniping, and disrupting the government lines of supply in every possible way.

Early Riser's View

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A word in reply to a letter in The Post of May 24, headed "Early Radios" and signed "Daily Reader." I happen to be an early riser, an apartment dweller, also an early radio player, and would like to know if he can tell me what broadcasting stations begin their programs at 5:30 a. m. Of the four stations here, two begin their programs at 6 a. m. and the other two at 6:30 a. m. So his "greatest annoyance" is 30 minutes to an hour shy at this point. Then his "if one has to rise early and go to business let him do it quietly." May I ask what of the nuisance who rolls in from 1 to 4 a. m., broadcasting from too much party, and disturbs the peaceful sleep of the early riser?

Unpreparedness

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While listening to the President's address to Congress, I was indeed startled to hear his statement that we were in a state of unpreparedness. After the vast amount of money collected from the taxpayers in the last seven years, I would like to ask the question, who is to blame for this terrible state of apparent inefficiency? Is it the War or Navy department? Or does the fault lie in Congress? Or is the President himself to blame? As Commander in Chief, he certainly must bear some of the responsibility when you consider the powers the Congress has conferred upon him.

Labor's Rights

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What plot lies behind the plan to scrap the Walsh-Healy Act? And what is the Walsh-Healy Act?

The Walsh-Healy Act is a law passed by the Congress of the United States which requires that all Federal contracts let out to private concerns must have these contracts fulfilled under conditions which abide by the Wagner Act and trade union regulations.

Munitions and airplanes for Uncle Sam are manufactured by private industry, and labor, both organized and unorganized, benefits under the Walsh-Healy Act. To scrap this law at so crucial a time can mean only that the Administration is playing a game which aids Wall street and the war profiteers by taking from labor its hard-earned legal rights and heading the Nation's workers toward the infamous Industrial Mobilization Plan.

If we are to keep American boys from losing their lives on European battlefields in a fight which helps or benefits no one but the warmongers, then our task is to rally our forces and show Congress and the Administration that we intend to keep war labor laws and our civil rights intact.

A YANK.

For Free Speech

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read the text of Senator Byrnes' reply to Col. Lindbergh's recent speech.

While I am more inclined to agree with the Senator's view of things, as one who has not yet been carried away in either direction by the war hysteria I deplore the attitude of Mr. Byrnes, and others who have had occasion to comment in a similar vein—that Lindbergh has no business speaking on the subject. He is a good flier and all that, but when it comes to foreign affairs . . . etc.

The logical corollary of such a theory is that no one has any business speaking on foreign affairs except our foreign service officers, who aren't allowed to, and the President and Mr. Hull who read the cables. Fortunately that is not yet the case in this country at least. Every man, woman and child sufficiently literate to scan the headlines or twist the dial of a radio has a theory on foreign affairs, military strategy and countless other topics about which they actually know little or nothing. Likewise, their representatives in Congress, such as Senator Byrnes, feel free to expound their own theories or those of their constituents on most any subject without first establishing a reputation as an authority in the particular field.

The much-abused colonel may be wrong in his ideas about American policy but Senator Byrnes, Dorothy Thompson and others can't simply "read him out of meeting" on the grounds that he is a flier as opposed to a columnist or Senator.

Flight From Holland

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I learn from your letterbox that a correspondent is quite alarmed over British "propaganda" (his word). In my own case, I do not need British or any propaganda to make me know that the fate of civilization rests with the Allies. Members of my own family who had been in Holland had to cross the North Sea in an open fishing boat to the safety of England, fleeing in terror before the mechanized and pitiless troops that were mowing down and burning out civilians who had leaned backward in an effort to keep neutral and at peace.

Abused Radios

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of May 24 I note the letter from Daily Reader in regard to the early programs and I fully agree that an abused radio is the worst nuisance in this country. I have had to move more than once on account of the neighbor's radio, and I hope to see the time there will be no programs earlier than eight a. m. nor later than eleven p. m.

Probably if enough people will write your paper something can be done to eliminate this greatest of all annoyances.

Relief Ban

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The relief bill has passed the House—barring aid to Communists.

What about the Philosophical Anarchists!

The bill does not bar aid to Independents, Farmer-Laborites or Progressives. Why?

Of course I know we must proceed slowly, by degrees. But Democrats and Republicans have sufficient superiority of numbers to ignore the puny opposition. AMERICAN.

Pro-Germanism Suspected

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Undoubtedly to the amazement of a great many people the news ticker carries an item that Senator Gerald Nye, who comes from one of the German and Scandinavian settled States in the "dust bowl," has presented a bill asking for a postage stamp commemorating "nine years of continuous debt defaulting" by "certain" European nations.

The "certain European nations" can logically be construed to be England and France. It would appear that there is at least some intent to stab England and France in the back at the most critical moment in their history, and to strike a blow in Adolf Hitler's behalf by provoking ill feeling and animosity in this country toward them at this time. In the light of the savage, murderous and inhuman course of Hitler in this war, and of his unscrupulous double dealing and rapacity in events leading up to it, such action on the part of Senator Nye can have no defense on any contention of our own national interest.

Some months ago I took occasion to make a minute examination of the senatorial record of Mr. Nye and some of his associates who have been the leading exponents of the doctrine we know as "isolationism." I was unable to find a single instance where the Nye vote had not been cast on the side to be deemed more favorable to the Hitler interests and manifest objectives. In other words, every vote of Senator Nye on a question of foreign policy of this country as it might affect English or German interests could be considered a stab at the interests of England and at the relationship and understanding existing between this country and England.

Isolationism by any reasonable measurement of its consequences has given to this country a bountiful crop of depressions and unemployment, crop surpluses and bounties to farmers, and public relief, including inhabitants of the "dust bowl." Some of the biggest raids on the Federal Treasury have started in that area, together with moves for severing ties with Europe, which is exactly the thing from which Pro-Germanism would benefit in the greatest measure. Mr. Nye has resisted almost every measure or appropriation since he came to the Senate having for its aim putting this country on a basis of adequate defense, or to establish any agency which, today, might serve in some degree as a curb upon the ravages of Hitler in Europe. He has consistently sought to promote misunderstanding between this country and England, and even with Canada. He has fought practically every appropriation for a more adequate army and navy.

The question simply raises itself as to whether there is a Pro-German organization in this country, and the extent and lengths to which it spreads. We have seen Mr. Nye, and for that matter, Mr. Borah, fight the NRA and other domestic moves of the Government to recover from depression if the projects did not involve squandering in the "dust bowl" the taxes paid by those Eastern States which pay more taxes than they get benefits or expenditures in return.

In so far as England's war debts are concerned, and it is reasonable to believe that Senator Nye has England in mind, it might be well to look at a few items on the other side of the ledger. England received nothing for the loss of her investments in this country after the Cornwallis surrender. England's fleet, behind which Americans have lived in safety and security for 75 years, was the line of protection behind which Americans stood from the German fleet in the Spanish-American war. We have loaned Germany a little over two billion dollars in gold in Government and private loans since 1918, in Hoover moratoriums, Dawes and Young plans, and the like, and not a nickel has been repaid. We left England and France to deal with and try to solve world problems growing out of the World War, and to prevent rearming by Germany, while we hid behind "isolationism," or entrapped them into disarmament conferences or with some of our crazy "peace treaties." England has respected our Monroe Doctrine, and its navy today is a major reason why that doctrine survives.

To Aid Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the discussion, now going on, of possible protection against an invading foe, the services of one very capable organization has been overlooked. I refer to the National Rifle Association with its three thousand member clubs having a membership of more than a hundred thousand men—and some women—all experienced in the use of firearms. The clubs are in every State in the Union. Inasmuch as the rifle association is supported by Federal funds, it would be entirely proper to call on its members to come to the aid of their country. Why not start organizing now?

The Post Impressionist

In Defense Of Puttering

The other day I read in Mary Haworth's column that a woman was complaining because her husband puttered around while she perspired freely over the steaming washtubs to support the family. Deeply injured by the thought that the fine old art of puttering has fallen so low, I am prompted to come to the defense of this practice.

I freely confess that I am a putterer, an inveterate and incurable one, descended from a long line of distinguished putterers.

Now there are several types of puttering; more than 100 varieties of putterers. But in the majority of cases the would-be putterers are merely dilettantes who pursue the art in a scandalously soulless fashion. Instead they should be classed as dabblers, those who go through a lot of motions without accomplishing anything. The true putterer goes through no motions and his lack of accomplishment is upon the true artistic plane.

As an example of pure and unalloyed dabbling there is the hypersensitive soul who adjusts pictures that hang askew upon the walls. Immediately after the fault which jangles his nerves is corrected he turns his back and the picture again slips its moorings.

Then we have the esthetic dabbler who picks the lint off your blue serge suit. He's never happy until he has pulled a thread as long as the Atlantic cable from your coat. This type is the conscientious but garrulous chap who makes amends for his misdeed with "I'm so sorry," and then laughs at your predicament. Fortunately, the mortality rate for this type is very high and they never ascend from that level to become first-rate putterers.

Still another type is the meticulous dabbler who wants—nay, insists, upon helping you polish your car. He invariably drops the polishing chamois on the ground where it is sandy. He never bothers to shake it out when he picks it up, either. His forte is dragging this self-same chamois in one long swipe over the side of the car. You can usually hear the finish leaving. His prototype is the woman who carves her initials in a plate-glass window with her diamond ring.

By now you can see that the dabblers are without the essence of art.

The highest type of putterer is the man who borrows your snow shovel the first day of October and lets the CCC boys dig you out after the first blizzard of the year. They also have to dig him out, because most of his energy is used up in puttering. After he has once spawned the idea, it metamorphoses until developed into mowing the lawn with your mower the next summer. It would require the return of the buffalo herds to get the grass off his lawn in the summer and a dog team to go 30 feet from the house to the mail box in the winter.

My favorite type of puttering is repairing things around the house. I drive in loose nails, then, dissatisfied with the result, I extract them and forget to make replacements. I tried that last winter on the jam shelf in the basement. The results were amazing!

I have taught the art of puttering to several friends, but I'm afraid that they'll never become first-class putterers. There's Fred whom I've taught actually to wipe his hands on the guest towels. My wife goes him one better—showing promise—by wiping her lipstick off on them.

My daughter has reached the stage where she can set her highball glass on the top of a polished table and miss the coaster by a good 6 inches. I'm proud of her. As soon as she can get the olive out of a martini, she's arrived.

I'm really at my best when it comes to borrowing books, which incidentally, I never read. A few years ago I started "Anthony Adverse." It's still somewhere around the house. I forgot where I put it. But I'd safely say that I would know it immediately, even without the jacket, for I have my own peculiar way of turning down the pages and penciling criticisms. I also am adept at breaking the binding in one deft flip of my wrist.

Only a dyed-in-the-wool putterer can kick a throw rug into an unrecognizable heap of material at the first attempt. So proud am I of this achievement that I let them lie for others to admire and to envy my proficiency.

I don't play bridge, but I've seen plenty of players who show evidence of future greatness as putterers, quite unbeknownst to themselves, as they draw doodles on score pads.

The person who invented buffet luncheons must have been a putterer at heart, because too much energy is expended in accomplishing nothing, that is, nothing substantial in the way of victuals.

The knack of puttering, according to my theory, is due entirely to the presence or absence of the "Z" chromosome. No, I've never actually isolated one, but there must be such a thing or the world would not be so sharply divided between the putterers and the dabblers. It seems to be hereditary, and few dabblers ever become putterers no matter how hard they try!

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

All Or Nothing

THE NATION needs and the Nation deserves, and it is expecting, better leadership than it is getting from its public men. This applies to the President no less than it does to the Republican candidates: thus far all of them have been talking as if the same old speeches which they have been making these many years could be adapted with only a few verbal changes to the extremely critical situation in which the country finds itself.

Thus, the Republicans are under the impression that the same principles which would make for industrial recovery in a peaceable world are valid for developing the Nation's military power in a very war-like world. They are as grievously mistaken as were the British Conservatives who thought they could arm Great Britain and yet carry on their business as usual. The President and his New Dealers, if one may judge by the Sunday evening broadcast, are still under the impression that the whole collection of measures which restrict production and enhance consumption can be maintained while, as a kind of sideshow, the Nation seeks to develop armaments. They are as grievously mistaken as the British Labor Party which clung until last week to the notion that a good deal less than the maximum national effort and sacrifice would be enough to protect their country.

NEITHER THE Republican leaders nor the New Dealers seem to have realized the magnitude of the task which confronts us, or to have grasped the elementary lessons of the European experience. Not only are they all talking politics, either as critics of the Administration or as self-justifying apologists, but what is much worse, they are betraying the fact that their minds are still closed, and that they do not know what they are doing. They are, of course, all of them ready to authorize on paper a gigantic armament program and to appropriate whatever funds may be theoretically necessary to carry it out. But from the way they talk, it would appear that they themselves do not know, and therefore the people are being misled about, what this program must mean in terms of duty and work and sacrifice.

It is unfair to the people not to tell them the truth. For only if the people know the full truth will they be able to stand the shocks that events may be preparing, or be nerved to the effort which will be required. It is false and misleading and dangerous for the Republicans to pretend that they can give this country the armed strength it needs and also a normal prosperity. It is false and misleading and dangerous for the New Dealers to pretend that they can arm this Nation without asking anybody to make any sacrifice. It cannot be done, and the notion that it can be done, or that it is right to make such promises because there is going to be an election, betrays a degree of mental and moral unpreparedness which will lead here, as it has elsewhere, to the tragic policy of "too late and too little."

THE PRINCIPLES which govern a nation that is organizing its military power are fundamentally different from those which govern it when, securely at peace, it is aiming at prosperity and social reform. Unless our leaders in both parties, and the people after them, understand these principles, the whole effort for adequate defense will bog down inevitably and inexorably in confusion and failure.

How radically different are the principles which are now operative will be brought home to us, perhaps, by considering first the relation of our existing national debt to the outlays which will be necessary. The Republican leaders have been making speeches saying that because we have a debt of 45 billions we are starting with a handicap of 45 billions. Astounding as it may sound at first, this is entirely untrue. The existing national debt has no direct relation to the Nation's capacity to arm. For this debt is an internal debt, payable in dollars within the United States, and a debt of this character is important only in a civilian economy. In an economy in which military requirements take precedence over all other considerations, an internal debt may affect the methods of financing armaments but it does not affect at all the capacity to produce armaments. If anyone doubts this, let him remember that a bankrupt Germany has carried out the greatest armament program in all history.

Not only may we dismiss from our minds the notion that the high national debt is in itself a handicap to the efforts we must make, but we may go further. We may say that because our debt is solely an internal debt while we possess virtually unlimited purchasing power externally in the form of gold and of export surpluses, we are as respects financial means invulnerable. Money is no limitation upon any effort we need to make; the only limitations are to be found, first, in our capacity to obtain delivery from Asia and Europe of critical strategic materials which we may be prevented by other powers from buying under ordinary commercial conditions in the open market.

THE REASON why an internal debt is immensely important in a civilian economy but not in a military is as simple as it is fundamental. In a civilian state the maximum revenues of the government are those which it can obtain by taxation and by borrowing. Revenues are not unlimited because excessive taxation will cause the taxpayer to try to escape the tax collector by seeking refuge somewhere beyond his reach; and excessive borrowing destroys the confidence of investors and causes them to hoard their savings.

But in a state where military requirements are paramount the whole property and the whole work and the whole savings, and finally the lives of the citizens, are in principle dedicated to the national defense. The peace time limitations which arise from the individual's freedom to give or withhold his savings and his services no longer apply. When the safety of the nation is at stake, this freedom to give or withhold is suspended; in the last analysis there is in principle no volunteering. There is only obligatory national service which no one may refuse. How far the national service is in fact to be made compulsory is a matter of expediency of administration and not of principle. How far it is expedient to retain the method of voluntary service and voluntry contribution depends upon how effective it proves to be under the spur of patriotism and the latent power of the nation to compel the individual to serve it.

A NATION has not begun to prepare itself in the modern world until it has made the principle of universal service for national defense the basic axiom of its morals, its thought and its policy. The more clearly it grasps the necessity of universal service, and the more wholeheartedly it accepts it, the more readily can it organize itself without exorbitant sacrifice and fatal delay. For only on the principles of universal service do the problems of organizing a people for adequate defense become soluble.

In spite of the Republicans and of the New Dealers, the organization of defense is not a matter of superimposing an armament and training program upon the undisturbed normal activities of the country. It is a matter of giving the national defense undisputed priority over all the normal economic activities of the people. In order to do that it is not enough, as the President implied, to expand armaments merely by taking up the slack of existing unemployment. A little can be done that way, but we shall deceive ourselves if we do not recognize that the bulk of the effort must be derived from curtailing our normal consumption and of rededicating a large part of the labor and the materials from civilian to military purposes.

We shall not have to give up butter in order to have guns. But we shall have to give up many gadgets, private and collective gadgets, if we are to have an air force and a navy and army capable of defending our vital interests in this hemisphere. And the sooner our public men tell the people that they will now have to live under a regime of duty and of sacrifice, the more the people will believe in them, the more the people will be spiritually prepared for the ordeal through which they are destined to pass.

FOR THESE reasons it is imperative that the government should make clear to the nation that a program of national defense is radically incomplete if it consists only of Congressional authorizations, Congressional appropriations, and Administration activity to place contracts and train men. An indispensable part of the program, because in no other way can the whole program be made effective, is the acceptance of the paramount principle that the nation has a prior claim on every one's services and his possessions. On the foundation of that principle the ordinary processes of borrowing and taxing can be used—provided that it is clearly understood that the national defense has priority over all other considerations, and that what cannot be done by voluntary agreements and by inducement may be done by command.

If the principle is clearly grasped, then it follows that the object of government finance in a time like this is not to raise "money" but to curtail private consumption in whatever degree may be necessary in order to enhance production for military purposes. If, for example, the military airplane industry needs machine tools in order to expand, then the civilian users of machine tools must give it priority. Priorities of this type are the essence of the problem, and while in part they can be made effective by agreement, in the last analysis the government has the right and the duty by taxation, by what amounts to forced borrowing, and by direct rationing to make certain that private luxuries and private conveniences do not compete with and interrupt the organization of the national defense. That is the object of all fiscal policy in a time of national emergency, and we shall save ourselves infinite trouble if we recognize it now.

PERHAPS PUBLIC men cannot afford to tell the people all at once the stern facts of the life which they have now to lead. But they themselves must not fail to understand these fundamental things, and they must be ready, if catastrophic events develop, to give the country leadership without which panic and confusion may overcome lucidity and courage.

Let the politicians understand that if worst comes to the worst, the only remedy for fear will be the total recognition of the naked truth, and the only remedy for demoralization will be the conviction of the people that there is a high duty to be discharged and that there is great work for them to do. For it is by sacrifice and not by flattery, it is by dedication to service and not by illusions of escape, that men conquer their fears and become invulnerable.

No Time For Politics

AN OPINION prevails that should the Nazis win in Europe, they will soon begin to move into this hemisphere, in collaboration with their friends, the Japanese, the Italians, the Russians and assorted Latin-American elements who hate the United States. Although Col. Lindbergh would call it hysterical chatter, already there is solemn speculation as to whether the British would scuttle their navy or surrender it to the Germans by way of appeasement or send it over here to act as an Atlantic navy for us and, incidentally, to keep it alive and in their own hands. It would be very nice for the U. S. A. if they do this last, but it would be unwise to count on them to do so, unless some assurance of such an intention has been quietly transmitted to President Roosevelt, as seems most unlikely.

Anyway, whatever is to happen will happen so soon that Mr. Roosevelt will still be President when it does happen and that brings us to the fact, or mere probability, if you prefer not to accept the fact just yet, that the precious half-year of time remaining of his present term has got to be used for rearming and not just wasted on political strife and rivalry.

WHETHER WE LIKE Mr. Roosevelt or not, whether we trust his selections of men for important jobs or have confidence in his ability to get things done, this half-year must not be run down into the lower half of the glass with nothing done. Better a little done than nothing done at all, and one thing that can be done without waiting for the factories to make the switch-over from paper clips and mashie niblicks to the tools and vehicles of war would be the creation of a draft plan and the preliminary training of a great army even without arms and engines.

One reason why Hitler's army hits so hard is that every young man in the Reich has had to spend his time in the phony labor corps which drilled with spades and, on entering the army, was hardened physically and accustomed to life under discipline. There probably are other ways in which this time can be utilized, such as the schooling of mechanics and specialists in other lines.

The economic problems will be fought over a nickel at a time, but it would be well to realize that this program and, if war comes, the expense of that will just about finish the kind of capitalism that we know and which, without admitting as much, the American people are so anxious to preserve, because only under capitalism does the American kind of civilization and liberty exist.

The British have gone totalitarian for the time being, with a promise to themselves that they will get their freedom back and a mental reservation consisting of two words, we hope. They won't get their freedom back if they are licked and they are not sure of getting it back if they should win, because they will be broke and it will be impossible to put their people back to work in the industries of peace.

THE UNITED STATES may face the same future. Nobody knows what we face, because we haven't decided what we are going to do, but it takes no fortune-teller to foresee that from now on there will be not only a new deal but a new kind of game in which we will have to learn the values of the cards as a starter. Thus, in his world-revolutionary mission, his onslaught against capitalism, Hitler, who kidded the world for a long time with his attacks on bolshevism, will impose a new order on us even without ever coming to blows.

Mr. Roosevelt is stubborn, reckless and improvident, and I will agree, too, that he is the one who is playing politics with the fate or safety of the Nation, but we can't get him out of there until the first of next year at the earliest and are stuck with him during a period that simply cannot be allowed to run out with a record of nothing, or nothing much, done.

He will assign some inexperienced henchmen to run the armament business, and some wet-eyed spell-binder to procure the weapons for the Infantry, according to his mischievous custom of flouting the pride and patriotism of men who know such jobs and want to serve the country. But we will just have to make do, whatever he does and hope to God that, in spite of everything, we will have something to show for our time which is limited.

The money isn't important. When this adventure, whatever it may be, is concluded, money won't mean what it means today.

As The Battle Rages

Meaning For America

Paris, May 27.

TODAY IN FRANCE there is no "political situation" to be analyzed and described. French policy can be stated in one sentence: Army, government and people intend to win this great battle in the north at any and every cost, and then at any and every cost to hold out through the battles of the summer until planes and supplies from America, and from the British and French empires enable them to face the German armies with something like equality of number in aviation and material. If they can win through to that point they can win through to final victory.

Every single American plane will count; every day earlier that it can reach the French pilot waiting to take it into battle will count. Perhaps it will help turn the scales at some vital point at some vital moment. If there is a single reserve American Army plane that can be spared it ought to be flown or shipped across the Atlantic tomorrow.

Since this ferocious struggle began in Belgium and Flanders civilian refugees have been flooding down across the country making every crossroads, every railway junction a station of misery. They arrive in boxcars huddled in the straw. They come by road in every conceivable sort of vehicle. In the Bordeaux region three days ago I saw two fire engines that had come through from Brussels. Baby carriages, a sewing machine and bundles of every shape were piled on one boxcar. Ten or 15 people were packed into the other, the women with children and babies on their laps, their heads covered with pieces of oilcloth to keep off the rain.

Thousands of bicycles, with everything they have in the world strapped on the handlebars. Many of them have been on the road for 12 or 14 days. From Lille a woman reached Paris with a baby tied to the handlebars and a child of 6 pedaling alongside on a tricycle. A stunt bicyclist in a Belgian circus arrived with a family of four children disposed in various ways on his machine and on his shoulders. Some are on farm horses, some afoot. I was told of an old couple, the man with hernia, the woman rheumatic, who had made 70 kilometers afoot in nine days.

THESE WANDERERS number not less than 5,000,000. That is to say, at least, ten times as many refugees now are pushing down toward southern France as pushed up from Spain a year ago. The difference is not only in numbers. The Spaniards were given asylum in a country at peace and were looked after as well as possible in a sudden emergency. Many of them were sturdy young soldiers. The present refugees, ten times as numerous, largely older men and women and children, stream across a country locked in a death struggle. Red Cross nurses, volunteer workers, Boy Scouts and municipal authorities give them every possible help. Guards are stationed at crossroads to direct the traffic. Emergency canteens have been opened. But the means are horribly limited and the maximum national effort must be concentrated in another field.

When a long train of boxcars packed with refugees was shunted onto some siding to allow troops and supply trains to pass, it often finds itself alongside another train bringing wounded back from the front. Here are represented three colossal duties—to hold the fighting front, to bring back the wounded to hospitals, and to distribute the refugees through the south and west of the country. France must perform the three tasks in that order of urgency.

An American in Paris tonight cannot help thinking that even Americans at home who have not yet understood the meaning for us of these battles ought, nevertheless, to be moved to help save the lives of the mothers and wives and children of the soldiers who are fighting for them. Anyone who has heard first-hand accounts of the courage of these civilians under the ceaseless bombing and machine-gunning of the low-flying German planes, who has seen the stoicism of the survivors, haunted as they are by the fear that they may never see their menfolk again, must seize every means possible to tell at home how many lives there are to be saved by prompt American generosity and to vouch for the fact that never were there people more worth helping.

AND THERE ARE bright spots. There is the old man who pushed his invalid wife in a grocer's handcart all the way from Lille to Soissons taking her down into the ditch or under cover from German planes more than 200 times in the 150 kilometers. There is the mother who arrived at the Gare-du-Nord with all her ten children, yes ten, safe and sound. For eight months she had been training them that whenever any of them were out together for whatever purpose the oldest must always take the hand of the next younger. They walked out of the Paris station hand in hand.

In a station near Tours yesterday I saw an old lady with a most determined and courageous air. In appearance she reminded me somehow of Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother. She said she was Belgian; but may be, like Mrs. Roosevelt, she had Dutch blood though mixed with French instead of Hudson River Valley stock. Across her chest she had slung a red blanket rolled up like the bandolier of a grenadier. Though she had only wet carpet slippers on her feet, and though in each hand she carried a bundle of bedding that must have weighed 30 or 40 pounds, she was stepping about briskly and marshalling her three grandchildren and her blind old dog like a general.

All this misery, the taking of all these lives duplicating now in the towns and fields of France the horror spread across Poland and Norway and Holland and Belgium, has been calculated and ordered by one man—the barbarian chief mounted in his twentieth century machine. His mechanized hordes go out to battle in airplane, tank, motorcycle and camion.

The United States is proud of its scientific achievements, its mass production of machinery, its inventors and engineers who have helped spread good living more widely among all classes of the population. Yet here in Europe one barbarian has been able to make the rumble of a machine, the throb of a gas engine, fearsome and detestable. Is it too much to hope that at this moment American aviators who have won the admiration of their countrymen for their skill and daring, and inventors and manufacturers who have made great fortunes and achieved world renown by their mass production of automobiles, should vehemently repudiate the murderers who have made the peaceful symbols of American commerce and progress into hateful symbols of destruction?

WHY IS THIS not the moment for an eminent American aviator to make a broadcast devoted wholly to denouncing aviators who kill women and children in village streets and on country roads and appealing for millions of dollars to enable the American Red Cross to help the survivors? Why might not a prince of American automobile manufacturers head a list of $1,000,000 contributors to show that though he admires science and efficiency he hates them when a race of twentieth century barbarians turns them to calculated destruction? And if the United States Government orders other ships to Europe to take home American "refugees" why should it not overcome petty fears and instead of sending them empty, pack them with medicines and food and blankets for the real refuges who are dying here in Europe for lack of those supplies?

Our shipping board has hundred of idle ships. Why should it be afraid to turn them over to the American Red Cross to be marked with Red Cross symbols and engaged in bringing to Europe some of the surplus wheat and cotton that is rotting in the storehouses of the Surplus Commodity Corporation?

If the United States cannot produce words and acts like these, Adof Hitler will already have come close to winning his greatest and final victory. He will have conquered the genius of America—its free spirit, its courage in time of emergency, and will have permanently debased the meaning of its scientific progress.

So long as the French and English lines hold in Flanders or at any point further south, there is time for Americans to choose. They need pay for their moment of aloofness and safety by helping others expose themselves to German guns and bombs and by helping care for the wounded and homeless. If the Allies fail then the Germans are no longer at Saint Quentin and the Channel but at our own gates flushed with victory, using as their partner every predatory force existing in every part of the world. Speaking very realistically it is cheaper in blood and money to help others to fight the war of 1940 than to fight the war of 1945 ourselves, alone.

Though I am not a military critic I have confidence the French and English can hold the gates. But for them to continue to hold them, for them to mass the power for final victory, they need our money, our planes, our supplies, our encouragement, our admiration, our love.

So here in Paris, the most civilized city I suppose the world has ever seen, with its dark streets turned to gray tonight by a late moon, I appeal: for the French and British armies—planes and all available material. For the refugees—money. And during the battles that will still remain to be fought, even after an Allied victory in these next few days, every farsighted and energetic action by our Government and people that a civilized conscience and cool good sense demand in the high interest of the United States.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Silence And Golf

The cow pastures of the country are being swept by noisy debate over the question whether silence is as necessary to golf as tradition demands. Ever since the first Scotchman took his funny stance and prepared to batter the enlarged quinine pill from trap to trap there has been an unwritten law calling for complete silence up to the moment of impact.

It's been considered almost unconstitutional to whisper, giggle or wiggle a toe in a squeaky shoe when a golfer was about to take his swing. Tradition held that no golfer could function except when enveloped in a deep hush.

A baseball player could be expected to do his best work, even with the boos of 20,000 infuriated fans ringing in his ears. No football star had ever paused during an 80-yard run to a touchdown to complain, "Cut out that noise, or I can't go on!" But it has been okay for golfers everywhere to fly into a temper if a bystander as much as jingled a key ring.

There has been supposed to be a terrific strain imposed on a hacker as he stood over the little white ball and glared at it intently, sensitive even to the stirring of a dry leaf. Men have been browbeaten, denounced and assaulted for speaking above a whisper as Gregory Q. Dubbs went into a huddle with fate, desire, ambition, destiny and the consciousness of his limitations.

John Kieran, the big bird, quiz, plantlife and sports expert, was among the first to call for a debunking of this ancient custom, and others are seconding the motion. Mr. Kieran used to play golf and he is reported to have been as obstreperous as the next fellow when deep silence wasn't observed. But he plays only when obliged to now and has reached a point where he talks loudly all during his drive and putt. In fact he likes to answer questions in the middle of his backswing. It is the power of the radio over matter or something.

A few days ago some of the country's best golfers staged a tournament in which quiet was forbidden. Jazz bands played at the tees, beerhall quartets performed and firecrackers were dropped behind players. The noise did not bother the boys and seemed to show that a good golfer is a good golfer whether or not he is in a quiet zone.

The idea is being tried out at clubs all over the country this spring. So far the golfers are doing nicely. But the hackers are blaming everything on inability to concentrate, as usual.

The Other 7 Years

By Mark Sullivan

Why Our Defenses Ran Down

THERE IS A THING which is not momentarily pressing, yet is permanently fundamental. It is a thing which is in the past, yet which explains our present, and must guide our future. For discussing it, an apt starting point is President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" last Sunday night.

Mr. Roosevelt dwelt upon our unpreparedness when he took office in 1933, our preparedness since then. Over and over he compared the seven years preceding him, with his 7 years—to show that when he took office, the country was low in armament, and how he has built it up:

"The army of the United States in 1933 consisted of 122,000 enlisted men. Now, in 1940, that has been practically doubled."

"In 1933, when this Administration came into office, the United States Navy had fallen in standing . . . to a relatively low ebb . . . Between 1933 and 1940 your Government will have spent $1,487,000,000 more than it spent on the Navy during the seven years before 1933."

"In 1933 we had only 355 anti-aircraft guns. We now have more than 1,700 . . ."

Again and again, a dozen times, Mr. Roosevelt repeated that pair of contrasts—as it was in 1933, as it is in 1940; compared the seven years preceding him, which were Republican years, with his own seven years. He may have felt called upon to do this, in defense against charges that we still lack sufficient preparedness, or charges that our appropriations for preparedness have not been spent wisely.

But omit whatever motive Mr. Roosevelt may have had. I repeat what he said merely as a text for something much larger.

LET US INQUIRE just why it was that in 1933, our American armament was low; just why the Republican administration preceding Mr. Roosevelt did permit our armament, especially our Navy, to fall to a low level. Let us inquire, not to justify the Republicans nor to blame them. Let us inquire to discover, what in fact this inquiry will reveal, one of the broadest lines in the pattern of our times, the clue to the most important condition that now confronts America and the world.

We, and the world, fought the Great War. We, and the world in its distress, said it must not happen again. We, and the world, sought for cure and prevention. We sought for security, for opportunity of nations and men to live in peace.

We sought a particular kind of security—collective security. Nations were to achieve peace for themselves and each other by agreeing with each other not to fight.

In pursuance of this ideal, the League of Nations was formed, a mutual promise entered into by 55 of the world's 63 nations. In pursuance of this ideal the Kellogg-Briand pact was signed by 56 nations. In pursuance of this ideal the Nine-Power pact was adopted.

Thinking that collective security had been achieved or was about to be, we thought we could now disarm. In 1922, all the great nations and some minor ones, meeting in Washington, entered into a treaty by which they agreed to sink some of their ships, refrain from building others, and otherwise reduce their armaments. This naval limitation treaty was to last 15 years.

It was in pursuance of this naval limitation treaty that America reduced its armament. That treaty, our obligation to that treaty, is the reason American armament was low when Mr. Roosevelt took office in 1933.

BUT WE ARE SEEKING something larger here than justification of what Presidents Hoover and Coolidge did, and something larger than any refutation of what Mr. Roosevelt implied last Sunday night. In the situation here described is the clue to the cause of the most somber condition of our times.

One by one, the treaties for collective security failed. The League of Nations did not prevent war. The Kellogg-Briand pact did not prevent war. The Nine-Power pact did not prevent war.

Finally, as the end of the 15-year term of the naval limitation treaty approached, that, too, failed. Japan announced she would not renew it. Because Japan would not renew, the others could not. That is why, after 1933, during Mr. Roosevelt's Administration, we began to increase the Navy which, under the terms of the treaty, we had reduced.

But the utter breakdown of attempts at collective security, the complete failure of attempts to achieve peace by mutual agreement, had another effect on America, a profound psychological effect. We became like a people terrified, almost hysterical, jittery. In that mood, we said: "If we and the world cannot have peace by collective action, then America shall have peace by its own individual action."

It was in this spirit, the spirit of tying our own hands, that we wrote the neutrality measures of the Roosevelt period. That transition—from the collective method of peace to the individual method—was one of the most epochal events of the age we live in.

But now we discover that peace by individual action is no more sure than peace by collective action. We are abandoning our neutrality statutes, coming to see them as fantastic.

Finns Are Asked To Aid Their Land

Finnish Minister Hjalmar J. Procope and August Kuisto, member of the Finnish Parliament, urged members of the Finnish American Society Sunday to devote their energies to raising funds for the reconstruction of their native land.

Procope spoke to 100 members of the society at a picnic in Rock Creek Park, and later, at the Y. M. C. A. Building, they heard from Kuisisto. Contributions totaling $40 were received.

Mrs. Procope was a guest at the picnic. With the Minister, she watched members of the society pitch horseshoes and play softball.

Bulow Seeks Quorum to Free Ramspeck Bill

Senator Hopes to Get Measure Before Committee Tomorrow

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

The Ramspeck bill for broadening the merit system may get a start on its way out of the Senate Civil Service Committee tomorrow.

Senator Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, committee chairman, said he hopes to get a quorum together tomorrow morning for the first of at least two executive sessions to study the bill and new amendments.

Earlier, Bulow had sought to bring at least seven of the committee members to the executive session. Only four members, however, are needed to make the quorum, and Senator Bulow indicated yesterday that he was prepared to work over the bill with this number.

Defense Blocked Bill

For the past two weeks, it was pointed out, efforts to speed action on the measure were blocked by the rush of defense legislation, which tied up several members with other committees.

Senator Bulow said it would depend on the committee how many executive sessions would be needed to revise the bill and draft a report. He said there was doubt whether it could be done in one meeting, but added that two meetings might be enough.

Two major amendments to the present bill are expected to be made by the Senate committee. As the bill left the House it authorized the President to extend the classified service to jobs not now in the merit setup. It also prohibited bringing Washington employes from States below their civil service quotas into the classified service until other State quotas were filled.

The committee, said Bulow, is expected to alter the first plan so that Congress, not the President, would specify what Government jobs are to be brought into the merit system. The second plan, contained in the Keller-Nichols rider, will probably go out of the bill before it reaches the Senate floor, he said.

Citizens Fly Liners

A Commerce Department move to check up on alien seamen employed on American vessels would find slim results if broadened to fliers on the Nation's airways, it was pointed out yesterday.

Present law requires that all commercial pilots holding American licenses be citizens. This regulation, officials said, applies to all fliers holding a limited commercial license or better.

Along with this regulation, the Civil Aeronautics Authority takes key field men, inspectors for duty along the airways and in plane factories, from civil service rolls. This automatically classes them as American citizens since aliens are barred from civil service jobs.

The Commerce Department checkup is starting by making a list of alien seamen employed on ocean-going ships, to show their native country and length of service in the American merchant marine.

Officials said that while no "witch hunt" is planned, legislation may be sought to bar aliens entirely from American merchant ships in emergency.

New Fire-Alarm Headquarters Is Dedicated

Dedicated yesterday by city officials, Washington's new $602,000 fire alarm headquarters in McMillan Park, one of the most elaborate and modern alarm systems in the country, will be placed in service for the first time today.

At brief ceremonies yesterday, Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter sent out the first test alarm inaugurating the system for the benefit of visiting civic and municipal leaders, and this morning H. A. Friede, superintendent of fire alarms, will supervise the switch-over of circuits officially placing the new central office in use.

At the exercises were Capt. Patrick Tansey, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, in charge of the project; Walter E. Kern, District electrical engineer; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Arthur J. Bulger, division engineer of the WPA, and B. W. Thoron, director of WPA's financial division.

Dionne Quints Are Six Today; Rich, Healthy and Happy, Too

These Bubbling Little Youngsters Want Cake With Candles—and the Privilege Of Eating It; to Hear Their First Mass

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

Callander, Ontario, May 27.—It is possible to be beautiful, good, intelligent, rich, healthy, and beloved by everyone—if one is 6 and the Dionne quintuplets.

These five little girls own approximately $790,000 in government bonds and cash. They are pretty as pictures, radiant with health, good in the way of all well disciplined children, smart as whips with a 7-year-old I-Q rating, endowed by nature with an extraordinary gift for artistic expression, and still the darlings of a world that succumbed to their first baby pictures.

Such a rare combination of diverse blessings is little more miraculous than their multiple births, whose sixth anniversary they will celebrate tomorrow. But to Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne, this milestone in their remarkable career—their transition from babyhood into childhood—means nothing more momentous than the possibility of a birthday cake.

"I want a cake with six candles," Emilie told your aged and experienced correspondent, who had the fight of her life on her hands when she tried to get a word in edgewise among the chattering quintuplets as they romped in their grassy playground.

"Oui, oui, oui," went up a shrill chorus seconding Emilie's proposal as Marie and Yvonne paused momentarily in their attempt to pick all the dandelions in the lawn, as Annette labored valiantly to stick more dandelions in her nurse's cape, and as Cecile paused at the top of their play slide to slap at a mosquito.

"I would like a kiss, too," opined Yvonne, the coquette, as she rolled her big, brown eyes.

"A new dress," Cecile replied promptly when asked what she wanted for her birthday present.

Marie shyly whispered that she would like some flowers—roses preferably.

Tomorrow they will have their cake—and eat it, too. That is, a little of it. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who saved their lives and that of their pretty mother six years ago tomorrow, has decreed that they may have a few bites of the angel-food cage to be baked in their own kitchen.

There will be plenty of kisses and presents. Yvonne, who told me she wanted a doll, will get that, too. Dr. Dafoe will provide a new doll for each of his pets.

For the first time, the little girls, who were baptized in the Catholic faith of their parents, will hear mass. Father Victor Pilon, the young parish priest, will set up a portable altar in the quintuplets' dining room, cleared of all furniture except chairs. There the children will hear their first mass in company with the parents and brothers and sisters.

Linemen Injured In Truck Accident

Two Potomac Electric Power Co. linemen were injured yesterday on the Baltimore pike near Beltsville, Md., when a trailer truck operated by Joseph J. Barkowski, of Baltimore, Md., struck them while they were working on power lines. The truck careened into a pole, snapping it in half.

The linemen, William H. Guest, 35, of 6115 Fifteenth street northeast, and Ralph Wink, 33, of Colmar Manor, Md., were taken to Casualty Hospital by the Branchville, Md., rescue squad. Guest had a broken leg and Wink was cut and bruised. Barkowski was charged with reckless driving and was held for $300 bond at Hyattsville police station.

Trade Records of 1784 Given To Congressional Library

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress, yesterday announced the acquisition by the library of "a treasure house of priceless first-hand information" on American foreign trade in the years immediately following the Revolution.

The gift of an anonymous American rare-book collector, the new acquisition consists of three folio volumes comprising official copies of the minutes and other documentary records of the British Board of Trade from March 8, 1784, to August 23, 1786.

MacLeish said he believes that there is no other copy on this side of the Atlantic.

The first volume bears the bookplate of William Wyndham Grenville, foreign secretary under the younger William Pitt. It is believed that the volumes were prepared for his use when he became vice president of the Board of Trade in 1786.

The first volume reveals the extent to which the Navigation Acts, which closed the ports of British North America and the British West Indies to ships of the United States, penalized these colonies as well as the newly formed republic.

Sugar growers of the West Indies complain of the scarcity and added expense of supplies; Jamaica planters reported the price of barrel staves up 50 per cent and lumber 350 per cent; settlers in Quebec, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland bewailed the scarcity of flour, rice and lumber.

Other material in the three volumes, MacLeish said, is of interest to students of the commercial and administrative history of the western colonies that remained loyal to Britain as well as to students of British Empire trade in the years of adjustment following the Revolution.

MacLeish also announced the acquisition of the philatelic library of the late Federick James Melville, of London. The collection was purchased by a group of American stamp collectors for presentation to the library. Mr. Melville, who died last January 12, was known as the "international dean of philatelic writers."

Staley Death Autopsy Called For 10 A.M. Today

An autopsy in the death of Mrs. Gertrude Case Staley, 54, wife of Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, Marine Corps, retired, will be held at 10 a. m. today. Mrs. Staley was found dead yesterday in her apartment at 1750 Sixteenth street northwest.

The body lay face down on the dining room floor near a desk on which was a letter beginning, "Dear Son." The letter was dated Sunday evening, police said.

Col. Staley is in the Middle West, neighbors said. A daughter, Miss Margaret Staley, is staying with friends here.

Surviving, besides her husband and daughter, is a son, Lieut. J. J. Staley, jr.; her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Kessler, of Columbus, Ohio, and three brothers, Clarence and Noah Kessler, of Columbus, and George, of Los Angeles.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST "PACKED" PRICES

HERE'S a simple but obvious fact about buying a new car you may have overlooked.

The real measure of what the new car costs you is the money difference you pay after trade-in allowance has been deducted from the delivered price.

A high trade-in allowance doesn't always mean a good "deal." It may only mean that the delivered price has been inflated in order to make such an allowance possible. That is called "packing" and about the only way to avoid it is to get an itemized breakdown of delivered prices that you can compare with others' figures.

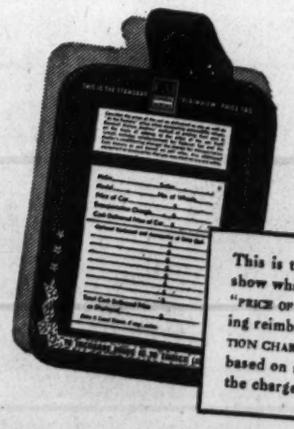
That's the reason we General Motors dealers display price charts like the one shown above and use the "plainview" price tags.

They give you the exact figure on the price of the car itself—the charge for transportation, based on rail rates—our charge for the extra equipment and accessories you select.

Thus in our showrooms you can see each one of these items that make up the final delivered price.

Furthermore, when you buy, you receive an itemized invoice that gives fully detailed information and the money difference you pay.

It's the simple and safe way to know what you're paying for when buying a new car. Come in and get all the facts.



This is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the prices of new cars delivered to customers. "PRICE OF CAR" means the price we charge for the car itself, including reimbursement for Federal Tax and conditioning—"TRANSPORTATION CHARGE" means a charge for transportation from factory to you, based on rail rates—"OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES" means the charge for any extra equipment or accessories you elect to buy.

BEFORE YOU BUY, BE SURE THE FINANCE CHARGES SATISFY YOU

Girl, 11, Raids Penny Bank to Aid Red Cross

25-Cent Donation Gets As Much Attention As Rockefeller's Gift

It was only a quarter, but it represented a lot more to 11-year-old Jennie Amann, of 2032 Belmont road northwest.

In fact, it was a major part of her life's savings. And when she sent it in to the District Red Cross headquarters, it was received with as much ceremony and expressions of appreciation as probably was John D. Rockefeller, jr.'s $100,000 contribution.

Jennie, a pupil at St. Agnes School in Alexandria, was buried in her school books Sunday afternoon, preparing for final examinations.

Books Rest in Lap

Somebody turned on the radio, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt began talking about how much the Red Cross needed money to help the children of the Netherlands, France and Belgium.

Jennie let her books rest in her lap and listened intently as the First Lady told Jennie, and a Nation-wide radio audience, that the great commandment "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself" had been forgotten.

The end of the broadcast found Jennie in deep thought. Finally she got up, went to her penny bank and took out the biggest, shiniest coin she could find there.

Then she went to her mother, held up the quarter and said, "Well, who shall I give it to?"

"For what?" asked her mother, puzzled.

Treasury Employes Give $633

And so Jennie's quarter went in with District of Columbia contributions which local Red Cross officials reported yesterday had reached $39,573.87 toward the District's quota of $150,000.

Yesterday's largest contribution, $633.15, came from Treasury Department employes. Tariff Commission employes took second place with contributions totaling $96.

The urgent need for funds will be stressed tomorrow by Mrs. Lewis Clark, member of the District Red Cross Chapter's Nurses Aide Corps, in a talk before the weekly luncheon of the Soroptimist Club at the Willard Hotel.

Hearings Postponed

The Securities Commission postponed until June 10 hearings scheduled for yesterday on methods of integrating the utility systems of the Engineers Public Service Co. and the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation.

Had it been a million dollars that Jennie Amann, 11, of 2032 Belmont road northwest, gave yesterday to the war relief fund of the Red Cross, she could not have contributed more generously than she did her quarter. It was the biggest, brightest coin in her "penny bank"

Fears of Inflation Discourage Savings, Industrial Bankers Told

"Debt has grown respectable," Dr. Charles W. Coulter, head of the department of sociology of the University of New Hampshire, told 300 bankers gathered at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday for the annual institute of the American Industrial Bankers Association.

Stating that "the family is no longer afraid to go into debt," Dr. Coulter said that fear of inflation in this country withholds many from saving.

"No democratic government can spend twice its income every year and rationalize its failure to keep its budgetary promises as national necessity, without the States, the cities and the ultimate family units feeling that they have the moral right to do the same," Dr. Coulter declared.

A survey of advertising expenditures by a committee of the institute, it was reported, showed that more than 50 per cent of advertising costs in a majority of the companies surveyed were paid to newspapers.

The U. S. Secret Service film, "Know Your Money," was shown at last night's session. Meetings will continue through a morning session tomorrow.

Belgians Pledge To Continue Fight On Allied Side

Paris, May 27 (AP).—Belgian Premier Pierlot announced tonight his government has decided to continue in the war on the side of the Allies.

He said Belgium would triumph sooner or later and remain faithful to her cause. Minimum peace conditions, he said, were independence, respect for the rights and dignity of the country (here ten words were censored).

Pierlot declared the refugee cabinet considered "all developments" and then decided unanimously to continue the fight, come what may, and called upon all Belgians to remain confident of victory.

West Pointers Inspect Aberdeen

Aberdeen, Md., May 27 (AP).—A two-day inspection of the United States Army's proving ground here was started today by 450 West Point first classmen.

Arriving by special train late last night, the cadets were quartered in the R. O. T. C. camp area. A complete tour of the shops, firing ranges and inspection of the latest types of new materials will be made.

Col. B. O. Lewis, post executive officer, said the cadets will be spectators at a demonstration of night firing, including use of antiaircraft guns, flares and bombs. Tomorrow mobile artillery, including big railway guns, will be demonstrated.

The class will return to West Point early Wednesday.

Texan Saw Germans Bomb Refugees

New York, May 27 (AP).—Sam Pierce, of Dallas, Tex., ambulance driver with the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, told in a C. B. S. broadcast from Paris tonight how he had witnessed German airplane attacks on roads filled with refugees.

"A formation of five Messerschmitts came down out of the skies and when they were about 500 feet above us they turned loose. All those who were too tired or too old to duck were the victims. They then turned after that work and shot the cattle in the fields. At the time there was not a military vehicle on the road anywhere. Within a radius of 500 yards there were about 30 killed and wounded."

Pierce said he pulled his ambulance into a clump of trees and jumped into a ditch behind a big boulder. After the attack, he picked up four badly injured and their relatives, 18 persons in all.

Pierce told of witnessing a bombing of a line of vehicles, mostly loaded with refugees, four days later.

After picking up some of the wounded he said he saw the German machines had "spotted us."

"I gave the car everything I could and we ran into a little town behind a big wall. Out of the ten ambulances that went up, three cars and drivers are missing."

Tribute to Douglass

District colored school children today will pay tribute to the memory of Frederick Douglass, noted colored leader, with exercises at his home, Cedar Hill, Anacostia.

Federal Reserve Official Scoffs At Fears for Gold

Bray Hammond, publications chief of the Federal Reserve System, last night scoffed at the fears that a German victory would render valueless the vast gold reserves of the United States.

Speaking to the District Society of Professional Engineers at their summer dinner meeting in the Grafton Hotel, he also attacked the "popular misconception" that the great stores of gold buried at Fort Knox, Ky., are idle.

The totalitarian states, Hammond said, have been forced to drop the use of gold and "go back to the clumsy and inconvenient system of barter because they are too poor to afford the luxury of a monetary system."

He pointed out that the American colonists at first had no monetary system and were dependent upon barter. He added that it was only when the pioneers began to accumulate wealth that they could put aside gold and silver in savings as the basis for a more convenient method of exchange.

Flowers Sought For War Graves

A final appeal for cut flowers, to be placed on 49,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery on Memorial Day, was made last night by Harlan Wood, chairman of the Memorial Day Veterans' committee.

Every police and fire station and public school will accept the flowers Wood said, urging that the donations be in by 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Arundel-on-Bay Population Soars

Arundel-on-the-Bay, Md., May 27 (AP).—This community is boasting a 500 per cent population gain—it went from one to six in ten years.

Mrs. Doris Stallings, census enumerator, disclosed that Elijah Wells, the incorporated town's sheriff and caretaker—and in 1930 its only permanent resident—had been joined by Mr. and Mrs. William Sevier, their two children, and Walter Tyler.

Wells' official duties hit a high in the resort season, when the town is filled with summer residents.

Mary Haworth's Mail

'Carried Away' at First Meeting With Attractive Man, Girl Expects Child; He Loves Another; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please help me work out a solution to the very difficult problem with which I find myself confronted. One night several weeks ago I met, through mutual friends, a man to whom I was very much attracted. I cannot understand why it happened, but after a few drinks, we were intimate. Both of us regretted the episode immediately.

I was particularly remorseful—after being very circumspect all my life—I had allowed myself to be carried away by a man I actually hardly knew. (Incidentally, I am 28 years old and the man is a few years older). He told me how sorry he was; but also said that he already has a sweetheart with whom he is very much in love and to whom he is engaged.

Now, the situation is complicated by my discovery that I am pregnant. Our one desire at this time is to do what is best for all concerned. The man has promised to do whatever I wish. Should I insist on his marrying me when I know he was only temporarily infatuated with me, and really is deeply in love with another girl? Please answer this letter as quickly, as possible, as we must come to a decision very shortly. Sincerely TROUBLED.

Man's Imperative Ethical Duty

DEAR TROUBLED: Let us be realists and admit that the man—in agreeing to do "whatever you wish"—has already shown that he stands, in point of honor, head and shoulders above the average irresponsible sensualist, philanderer or seducer. But, having conceded that much, I would also say that, if he wishes to show a really responsible attitude in this situation, he should go much further than simply placing himself at your command, as it were.

Undoubtedly, he was the instigator of the transient, regrettable amour which has resulted in such unnerving consequences. Therefore, I hold that he has an ethical and moral responsibility to be equally aggressive in shaping the most honorable amends that can be made. Rather than place the burden upon you of deciding what part he shall play hereafter, he should unequivocally offer to marry you; not so much out of consideration for your humiliating plight, as from protective concern for that child who will be his flesh and blood.

It is evident that your chivalric pride and "sense of fair play" would make it very difficult, if not impossible, for you to "insist on his marrying you," particularly since you appreciate the significance of the fact that he is "really deeply in love with another girl." And I feel that he is trading on your magnanimity in leaving the decision to you. He is fairly sure, I imagine, that by making a show of generosity, he can evoke an even bigger demonstration of the real article in return.

As I have said, he is not devoid of—but only wanting in—a sense of honor and intelligent perception of the responsibility he has incurred. His somewhat aloof attitude in the emergency shows that he does not realize, in their full implications, the harsh alternatives which confront you (and the nascent new life he has begot) in case he does not marry you. Those alternatives are (a) interrupted pregnancy; abortion; the taking of life (call it what you will) on the one hand, or (b) deliverance into the world of an illegitimate child, on the other hand; a child who will be his son or daughter, yet disavowed and disgraced by his father, and thus potentially or incipiently handicapped in the pursuit of success and happiness throughout life.

The sentimental or self-centered may argue that the man has a duty to his fiancee, or even to his own nature, that holds precedence over any supposed obligation rising out of this tragic, fortuitous denouement. But I maintain that he forfeited the right to serve his own happiness, or that of his fiancee, when he precipitated the current situation. As a man of honor, a man of responsible mind, even as a good citizen, he has a duty to his unborn child that ranks above all rival claims to his protection and devotion. At a minimum, that ethically imperative duty consists in giving his child a name and concomitant acceptance by society.

It would be my recommendation, therefore, that he marry you, on such reasonable, reciprocally considerate terms as you are jointly able to devise. You may never live together; it may be a so-called "marriage in name only;" plausibly explained as an impetuous and immediately regretted elopment. If you live apart consistently, a divorce should be easily obtainable, in due and fairly short cause. But the needs of situation will have been honorably and adequately met, for all concerned.

Thereafter, he may go back and pick up the threads of his relationship with the girl he professes to love. If theirs is a profoundly significant relationship, the breach can be healed and the pattern durably mended. Or it might develop, in the meantime, that the headlong attraction which drew you two together on that first night was the sign or symbol of a potentially greater affinity of feeling and understanding between yourself and him. Women's Panamas Bright and Light; Styles Are Varied

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

LAST winter a number of designers and buyers of exclusive millinery, on their return North from Florida, brought back news that the smartest resorters were hatless. With puckered brows and alarmed gestures, these stylists voiced the hope that hatlessness, the bane of the millinery world, would not penetrate into the summer scene.

Marshall Adams

But just a few weeks ago a concerned Washington millinery buyer reported that she counted 29 hatless women in a radius of two city blocks. So perplexed were hatters over the growing nonchalance in headgear that at a recent Waldorf Astoria style conference, fashion experts decided to laugh hatlessness right off the streets. They ridiculed the sloppiness of supposedly responsible business girls lunching sans hat or gloves and advised an antidote of publicity on "hats even for slacks."

That was the beginning of fashion's war on the hatless woman. Just last week the soignee Waldorf was again the scene of a debutante get-together in which the season's most glamorous socialites came wholeheartedly to the rescue of summer hats, especially the brimmed one. They cited the damage a merciless sun could do to luxuriously cared for hair dos.

In keeping with the swing toward a happily hatted Washington is the arrival of an attractive collection of pastel panamas. These are cool and airy, and handwoven under water by Knox, the haberdasher. Summer weight, comfortably designed in pork pie or head conforming styles, they are becoming to any age or type. Knox blended the colors with care, harmonizing or matching them with summer colors from better quality silks, spuns and cottons.

So casual are Knox lines, yet so prettily detailed, that even the junior miss will want to forsake her perukes, hair bows, snoods and what not for hats. The colors are delectable, far more appealing than the usual lifeless eggshell. They come in peony pink, flying canary, sky blue and sawdust beige, with white or natural for those who take their classics straight. Knox wisely banded these panamas in grosgrain or pugree bands in colors which contrast or exactly match the straw so "it will go with anything."

New Colors for Outdoor Furniture

Favored paint colors for outdoor furniture this season are burgundy, rich blue and green—the latter appearing frequently on wrought iron pieces in soft shades that give an antique effect to the metal. Black combined with gold is also a smart treatment seen on wrought iron pieces this season.

Something new in rattan furniture is a frosted effect applied with white paint, which is partly rubbed off. Rattan being nonporous, the paint does not sink into the wood and allows the natural colors of the rattan to gleam through the white finish.

Eyebrow Plucking

ALTHOUGH it's no longer smart to pluck your eyebrows to a mere hairline or into all sorts of queer arches and curves, it is still essential to keep them well groomed.

The upper line of the brows gives your face much of its individuality, so don't try to change it. Simply remove any stray hairs that grow about it. Also remove any that grow above the nose, and clean off the stragglers below the lower curves. A good pair of tweezers will take away much of the annoyance of plucking the eyebrows. There's a new kind of tweezer on the market with scissor handles that gives a completely unobstructed view in the mirror so that you can see what you are doing.

Before you start tweezing, apply a wet, hot cloth to your brows and hold it there a minute or two. This opens the pores and makes the hairs come out more easily. Cream rubbed in around the roots also helps. But remove the cream, mascara, eyebrow pencil or dust that may be lurking in your eyebrows before yo ustart plucking the stray hairs. Wash the brows with a bit of cotton dipped in alcohol, then sterilize the tweezers with some of the alcohol.

Grasp the hair tightly at the root and pull quickly in the same direction in which the hair grows. After you have finished tweezing, again wash the brows with alcohol to guard against possible infection in the opened pores. Once you have your eyebrows neat and hapely, accent them, if they need it, in those places that flatter your face most.

Chicken Stew With Dumplings, Favorite of J. Edgar Hoover

WHEN a child I often visited my maternal grandmother. She belonged to that great army of cooks who cooked "by ear." I remember that one of the delightful homespun meals that she made was old-fashioned chicken stew with dumplings. I had almost forgotten how delicious this kind of meal is until it was recalled to me recently at Harvey's Restaurant.

I am not the only one who finds such food a favorite for I saw Mr. J. Edgar Hoover investigating this very special childhood favorite of mine with as much interest as I imagine he does a great case. Since it is on the preferred list of this renowned G-man No. 1, it occurred to me that there might be others who would like to have it recalled to them. Since I don't habe my grandmother's recipe I have obtained the one used by Chef Lewis of Harvey's Restaurant.

Chicken Stew With Dumplings

Clean, singe and cut up one stewing chicken. Place in a pot and nearly cover with water. Cover pot and simmer gently. An old fowl will require at least 3 to 4 hours slow cooking but a year-old chicken should be done in 1½ hours. Remove cover during last half-hour of cooking to reduce the gravy to about 1½ pints. Make dumplings about three-fourths of an hour before time to serve.

Dumplings—Sift together 2 cups flour with 4 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Rub in ½ tablespoon fat. Add ¾ cup milk, or enough to moisten the flour, but do not make mixture too wet. Roll out dough on board, making it about 1 inch thick, and cut with biscuit cutter. Put pieces on plate in a steamer and steam 20 to 30 minutes. It is better not to steam the dumplings over the stew, as the rapid boiling required reduces the gravy too much. The dumplings may be cooked on top of the stew but they will be much lighter if steamed.

When dumplings are ready to serve add 1 teaspoon salt and pepper to chicken and make gravy by adding to liquor in kettle, 3 tablespoons of flour stirred to a paste in 1 cup milk. Skim out chicken, lay on platter, place dumplings on top and pour gravy over.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 27.

LAST WEEK Spencer Hare, press agent for the unique institution called the Fiesta Dancetaria, called Deacon Hall and me and asked if we would act as contest judges there—the idea being to pick the young girl who showed the most aptitude for professional modeling, the prize to be a course in that popular art at a local mannequin school. Well, judging of this amateur type is pretty common, so we said sure, why not, what can we lose, and so on.

We turned up in a whooping rainstorm, and got a great belt out of watching the young bugs jittering. This is the place where youngsters can get a good meal and dance till closing time for something less than $1 a head. All the patrons look like nice school and working kids, and the fun they have is a pleasure to see. There's none of this dime-a-dance atmosphere about the joint, and there is only a beer and wine license, so that the babes may not get tempted and befuddled by strong waters.

Then it was our cue for judging, and pretty soon 18 girls of various shapes and sizes paraded by. The bad night kept the crowd down, or there'd have been 100. The requirements, of course, were a good face, a nice figure and natural poise and grace. It didn't take us long to choose a pretty youngster named Annette Getty, who is 20 and now pounds the keys for a living. She has a nice uptilted nose, good lines and remarkably good carriage which is strictly untaught.

Aimless Rushing Creates Tension And Usually Isn't Necessary

Those Who Hurry Should Learn to Relax Between Times; Exercises Are Suggested; Should Be Done Slowly and Rhythmically

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT do we do with all the time we save hurrying? We sprint up an escalator instead of enjoy-the ride, race across streets to beat the red light, and allow so little time for keeping an appointment that we hurry and worry futilely in an effort to get there on the dot

There are times when hurrying saves minutes that are precious. But most rushing around is aimless and the minutes saved make little difference in what we accomplish by the end of the day. On the other hand, continual rushing builds up a terrific amount of tension and it is probably the main reason for the universal need for relaxation. Besides the students who are training to become teachers and the business people who are learning to combat pressure of work, there are a number of society women in Miss Josephine L. Rathbone's course in relaxation at Teachers College, Columbia University.

In the course, they learn that it is all right to hurry when there is need for it, but that the harm comes from making it a constant thing so that the pressure is continual. It is not the speed itself which matters as much as the internal tension it sets up. What we should all learn is to make fast movements when necessary without getting all wrought up, and to let down afterwards.

Neck Exercises

One of the places where we feel tension most is at the base of the neck. Since some of the muscles that help to hold the head in position also move the arms at the shoulder girdle, arm exercises are given to relieve tension in the back of the neck. Following is one of these:

POSITION: Sitting on the knees on the floor with the arms flung out at the sides, but not stiff. Arms and shoulders should be relaxed.

MOVEMENT: Swing the arms in a rhythmical motion downward, letting their weight carry them on up until they are crossed at about chest level. In a flowing motion, let the weight of the arms swing them back up to the original position at sides. The movement should be slow, lazy and rhythmical.

Now, stand up and swing alternate legs in a free, easy motion. Stand on the left leg and let the right leg swing up in front, down and up in back. Let the weight of the leg govern the action. Don't try to kick. The idea is to loosen up your joints and muscles.

One for the Spine

Another good relaxing exercise is to fold and unfold the spine to full extension. It follows:

POSITION: Down on the floor on the knees, head down, arms back and resting on floor parallel with legs.

MOVEMENT: Unfold very slowly, letting head and arms continue to hang down limply until you are almost erect, then finally with a spurt of energy, come up to full extension, standing on the toes, the entire body, stretched upward, arms stretched high overhead. Hold for a second, let the knees sag, and go limp, drooping down on the floor again in starting position.

All relaxing exercises should be done very slowly to help slow you up. After you have finished the exercises, lie down, warmly covered, and let go with all your muscles. The rest after exercise is as important as the exercise itself.

If you are a tense, hurried person, easy lessons in relaxation are probably just what you need.

Tea Dainties

For a new tea table fancy try this: Spread rolled out rich pastry dough with coconut mixed with a little cinnamon and nuts. Press well into the dough so that it will stick when baked. Using a sharp knife, cut into strips 2 inches long and ½ inch wide. Carefully transfer to a baking sheet and bake until brown—about 4 minutes. Cool and serve.

Thomas Leiter's Dance Sets Precedent of Fun

Hill Billies Supply the Music, Rustic Air Predominates, With Women in Gingham, Men in Overalls, Country Straw Hats

By Hope Ridings Miller.

AN OLD-FASHIONED barn dance with a new-fangled accent enlivened the social calendar for a number of younger set Capitalites and hunt country residents when Thomas Leiter, of Washington and Virginia, entertained at the North Wales Club, near Warrenton.

A band of 20 hillbillies from South Carolina, brought up for the occasion, furnished music from 9 o'clock until the not-so-early morning hours. Around 100 guests attended the affair, which chalked up honors as the gayest informal party given in the hunt country this season.

Hope Ridings Miller

Gingham frocks, pinafores and sunbonnets were favored attire for the feminine contingent; while the men appeared in overalls, set off with open-necked shirts and wide-brimmed straw hats. Cedar trees, corn stalks and bales of hay were decorations, and small tables were set up along the wall.

It's getting to be quite a fad for guests to assist the professional entertainers at any informal shindig; so the hillbilly band had plenty of help last night from self-appointed singers in the crowd. By midnight the gathering had turned into an impromptu "rural cabaret," featuring a supper of hot dogs, hamburgers and drinks of every brand and description.

BY FAR the most breath-taking round of parties this old town has noted in many a moon went on the calendar over the week-end. Not half the dinners, teas and luncheons that had notables out and about have been reported in print.

There was, for example, the informal dinner given Sunday evening by the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle. From what I've heard that party was a red-letter event on any number of counts. Entertainer for the evening—in addition to the President, whose radio address was followed closely by the entire company—was Malcolm Ross, who played the guitar and sang several numbers, some of which were his own compositions.

SMALLER but equally delightful was the luncheon given Sunday by Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long at their estate, Montpelier Manor, near Laurel, Md. Ranking guests were the Italian Ambassador and Donna Elly Colonna, the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan and the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring.

Still another luncheon enlivening the week-end's social whirl was given Saturday at the 1925 F Street Club by Mrs. Bruce Smith. Honor guest was Miss Martha Douglas, sister of Justice William O. Douglas, who has been visiting here from her home in Chicago several days. Accompanying her to Washington was her mother, Mrs. William Douglas, on her first trip to the Capital since her son was appointed to the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Douglas and her daughter will return to Chicago tomorrow. The luncheon Saturday was one of many fetes given for Miss Douglas during her visit. Guests included Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mme. Lombard, Mrs. Edward Noble, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. J. L. Houghteling and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Griffin gathered in a few friends for an informal mint julep party in honor of Miss Douglas.

Mention of the 1925 F Street Club reminded of another luncheon there on Saturday. In the small party were Lady Lindsay, wife of the former British Ambassador to the United States; Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Miss Irene Boyle and several others.

THEY SAY around Washington, "Anybody who talks fast enough has a wonderful time." I've decided it's more fun to listen. It was, at least, at the luncheon given by Senator and Mrs. Tydings on Sunday. Just by keeping my ears tilted at the right angle, I heard any number of amusing quips. But the one I'm sure not to forget came from Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, who, as usual, was boosting his home town, Reno.

"Yes," said he, "Reno's a wonderful place. Best in the world. It's the only inland city in the world where the 'tieds' come in . . . and the 'untieds' go out."

Exnicioses Hosts at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios were hosts at a gay dinner last night at the 1925 F Street Club. There were 28 in the party, seated at two tables centered with spring flowers.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Baron and Baroness Baeyens, Commander and Mrs. Anthony Coleby, M. and Mme. Charles Lucet, Christopher Bramwell, Arthur Bradley Campbell, Clarence Hewes, Robert Coe, Mrs. Francis Whitten, Col. and Mrs. Joseph Cecil and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

The attractive hostess wore a powder blue frock with a clip of brilliants on one shoulder. Later Mr. Bramwell and Mrs. Hurja took turns in playing the piano and some of the guests lifted their voice in song.

Argentine Envoy, Senora de Espil To Give Dinner

The Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil will entertain at a dinner for the latter's daughter, Miss Louise Stillwell, tomorrow evening before Arthur Bradley Campbell's dance at Grasslands.

Mr. Campbell also will be host at a dinner beforehand at the club on Nebraska avenue, and if the weather is pleasant, tables will be set up outside.

The Princesses Rospigliosi, Mr. Campbell's cousins, who came down from New York, will be here for the dance. They will leave Saturday for Westbury, Long Island.

Mr. Campbell and his other cousins, the Misses Meuser, for whom the dance is being given, will leave here June 15 for a "rest." They will go July 1 to Newport, where Mr. Campbell has leased Chetwode, the John Jacob Astor home.

Miss Towers Selects Date

Miss Marjorie Towers, daughter of Rear Admiral John H. Towers, has selected June 11 as the date for her marriage to Lieut. Herbert Douglas Riley, U. S. N. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at the Fort Myer Chapel and will be followed by a reception at the 1925 F Street Club.

Miss Towers will have as her matron of honor, Mrs. Willlam Ryon and Mrs. E. O. Rigsbee and Mrs. E. Gordon Riley, Lieut. Riley's sister-in-law, will be bridesmaids. Mr. Riley will be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Charles Towers, brother of Miss Towers, Lieut. Rigsbee, Lieut. Frank A. Brandley, Lieut. George Anderson and Lieut. Comdr. William Terrell, brother-in-law of Lieut. Riley.

The prospective bridegroom's next tour of duty will be as aide and flagship lieutenant to Rear Admiral Arthur Bristol, who is now in Honolulu.

Society of Cincinnati to Open Headquarters for War Fund

The president general and the members of the Society of the Cincinnati, with the patronage of the French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, will open Anderson House, their national headquarters and museum, 2118 Massachusetts avenue, for a reception and tea Wednesday afternoon, June 19, from 4 to 7 o'clock. Proceeds will go toward the fund being raised in this country for the foundation of canteens for French soldiers manning air defense posts throughout France—an organization known as Defense Contre Avions, of which Mrs. Larz Anderson is American chairman.

Anderson House, with all its treasures and museum pieces—paintings, priceless tapestries, sculpture, historical documents and rare furniture, will be on view, the first time the society has opened its doors to the public, its tribute to the French people who so materially aided this country in the Revolution.

It was in Revolutionary days, 1783, that the society was formed in the cantonments on the Hudson in New York, where many remaining continental regiments were stationed at the close of the war. George Washington placed his signature first upon the roll of members and accepted the office of president general. There were 13 societies, one for each State and one for France. Maj. L'Enfant, who later planned the city of Washington, designed the insignia, a gold eagle upon which is depicted the figure of Cincinnatus, the Roman who, having been called from the plough by the Senate, led an army to victory and then returned to his plough. The eagle, set with diamonds, was presented to Gen. Washington by the naval officers of the French fleet. It is still worn by the president general of the society on all formal occasions.

Everyone in Washington remembers that the house was given to the society by Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson in 1937, but few know that Capt. Larz Anderson, great-grandson of an original member of the society, built the house with the intention that it should eventually be the home of the society. Its insignia is everywhere a part of the decoration of the walls, and its eagle, surrounded with flags, fills the pediment over the entrance.

Tickets of admission will soon be available and all those who are interested in seeing the museum may come, knowing that all money will be sent direct to the Guaranty Trust in Paris to be used for establishing and maintaining canteens for French soldiers.

The Pastorizas To Give Party At Legation

Columbus Memorial Committee, Dr. Rowe To Be Honored

The Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza will entertain at the Legation Friday at 5 o'clock at a small reception in honor of the members of the national committee of the United States for the Columbus Memorial Lighthouse and of the director general of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe. The Dominican government has bestowed the Heraldic Order of Cristobal Colon upon the members of the committee and Dr. Rowe. The decorations and diplomas will be presented by the Minister on that occasion.

This order has been created by the Dominican government with the purpose of rewarding the meritorious deeds and works related to the glory of the discoverer, to his remains, or to the memorial which will be erected to his memory on the coast of the Dominican Republic.

Invitations have been sent to the chiefs of missions of the Latin-American Diplomatic Corps, officials of the Department of State and the Pan-American Union and their wives.

Sra. de Alfaro Is En Route To Panama

Early Return to D. C. Hinges on Outcome Of Election

Senora Ricardo de Alfaro is on the high seas bound for Panama where she will join Dr. Alfaro who is running for president there. Senora de Alfaro, who left last week, will reach Panama Friday—just two days before the election.

Meanwhile, all reports indicate that Senora de Alfaro will be greeted by an excited populace. Latest reports have it that a number of Dr. Alfaro's aides have been arrested. The government, or so the story goes, alleges that these men are responsible for a movement to stop the elections Sunday. Dr. Alfaro, it was reported, had taken refuge in the Canal Zone.

Senora de Alfaro expects to join her family, including a daughter, Yolande, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weller, and Mr. and Mrs. Rogelio Alfaro, at their home here the end of next month. However, everything hangs on the outcome of the elections.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

'Tall, Slender Young Gentleman' Promotes $2, but Not British Relief Benefit

IT COULD ONLY HAPPEN in Washington.

Several weeks ago a young man arrived in town with letters of introduction to some of our best people. He visited newspaper offices and told writers he was a Scotch monologist recently returned from a world tour. He described personal appearances before Indian maharajahs and even Hitler himself.

It was the young man's idea to stage a benefit here for British relief. He discussed the question of theaters and finally announced he would take over that of the Wardman Park.

"I think I'll have the benefit May 12, Mother's Day," he said, "A nice tie-up."

• • • •

HE SAID the British Embassy was interested in the idea and that he would get the staff to buy expensive seats while he sold the rest at one and two dollars each.

Tall, slender, he seemed to be a "gentleman," though a rather frail one. He explained that he was taking treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital for a tropical disease contracted on his world tour.

The day before the benefit he telephoned a Washington man who had befriended him. "I've had a heart attack," he said. "My benefit will have to be postponed, but I'll send you your two dollars."

That night the local man was again called to the telephone. A voice, which said it belonged to the monologist's brother, reported that the latter had died at Johns Hopkins.

• • • •

BUT THE HOSPITAL says it has no record of anyone by that name. The British Embassy states that it refused to sponsor the young man's program and that it warned him such a benefit would be against the spirit of our Neutrality Act. The Wardman Park Hotel says that no such person ever negotiated for the use of the theater. And our friend still hasn't received his $2.

It's all very mysterious. Could it be that this man belongs to some fabulous sixth column?

Pretty Betsy Barton, daughter of Representative Bruce Barton, has just sold another article. This one will appear in Mademoiselle and is about documentary films, those made by scientific and other groups, as well as by the Government . . . Mrs. Truxton Beale won the $1,500 diamond bracelet donated by Miss Isabella Cameron for Finnish relief and auctioned off here recently.

Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe has gone to Berry Hill, her home in Newport . . . Mrs. Betsy Cushing Roosevelt will spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. Harvey Cushing, at East Hampton, Long Island, where they have taken a cottage. The Chief of Aeronautics of the Navy and Mrs. Tower have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Marjorie, on Tuesday, June 11, at Fort Myer. A reception at the 1925 F Street Club will follow.

LOUISE STILLWELL is the only Spring debutante not worrying about what the weather will be on the day of her coming-out-party, June 8. As the Argentine Embassy has no garden, the reception will take place inside. The Ambassador and Mme. Espil will open up the large and seldom used ballroom of the embassy for dancing that afternoon.

The party held over the week-end there to mark the Argentine's national holiday was one of the gayest in weeks. The green and white flag of the country fluttered outside, and indoors among those milling about were:

• • • •

MRS. C. MATHEWS DICK, down from New York for the week-end and wearing a tricky white straw turban with a big bow of the same material with her black dress . . . Mrs. A. A. Berle, still receiving congratulations on her successful garden party for the scientific delegates . . . Thomas Burke, chief of communications in the State Department, who says he works about 12 hours a day, plus Sundays, in these depressing times . . . Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey, in a black and white print and a dashing black straw hat . . . Miss Stillwell, standing in a corner surrounded by beaus . . . the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, and dozens of others.

A.A.U.W. Hears Reports At Its Annual Meeting

Washington Branch Sees Presentation Of Oscar Wilde's 'Salome' After Business Session; 107 New Members

The Post Club Editor.

Members of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women heard annual reports of officers and committee chairmen and were entertained by a presentation of Oscar Wilde's "Salome" last night at their annual business meeting and dinner.

Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, filling out the unexpired term of Mrs. Robert Olesen, as president—an office to which she has been reelected—was in charge of the business meeting. The dinner followed the regular Monday tea at the clubhouse, given in honor of new members. Miss Floriene Hurley presented a program of songs, accompanied by Alvin Laidley.

Among the reports last night was that of the membership chairman, Mrs. Lawrence Radford, who announced that 107 new members had been received into the branch, 47 of them juniors. The total membership is more than 800.

Jobs Sought For Older Women

Miss Mary V. Robinson, reporting for the committee on the economic and legal status of women, gave her talk in the form of a radio broadcast, with flashbacks. The committee, she said, had had three distinct projects, the promotion of the idea of university training for nurses, an effort to find jobs for older women, and study of the problem of household employment.

Another report for one of the outstanding committees of the club this season was that of Mrs. John Donaldson, chairman of international relations. Under her group, forums have been held, foreign visitors and envoys from various countries have been entertained, and a study of the neutral nations carried on.

Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, the treasurer, announced the branch would close its fiscal year June 15, without a deficit despite the purchase of several items of clubhouse equipment and the refurnishing of the library downstairs.

Arts Committee Had Busy Year

Under the arts committee, of which Miss Mary Louise Brown is chairman, Miss Louise Newell reported for the art appreciation group of which she is leader. It has made visits to public buildings in the Capital and the members were guests at the White House and at the Greek Legation.

Reports also were presented by Mrs. Charter Heslep, whose committee on social studies sponsored the community-wide exhibit, "Tomorrow's Citizen," staged in the National Museum last winter; Mrs. A. S. McDaniel, chairman of the classical letters study group, in which 41 are enrolled; Miss Elsie Green, chairman of education, who reviewed the work of the language, book review and study groups; Madge L. Cook, chairman of finance, and Myrl Rhine, chairman of publicity.

Laywomen's Retreat League Shows Growth Over 10 Years

Organization Began With 33 at First Rites, Expands Into Hundreds as Captains In Parishes Form Teams to Aid Drive

The Washington Laywomen's Retreat League which closes its season this month, is an outgrowth of the founding in October, 1930, of the Washington Retreat House in Brookland for the purpose of retreats for women.

In November, 1930, a small delegation of Washington women met there and planned the retreat movement for the Catholic women of this city. The first retreat was held by 33 women. The movement made steady growth and, in 1932-33, 585 retreatants attended exercises.

In 1936, the Washington Retreat League was reorganized, the responsibility for the city-wide organization being placed in the hands of the women of Washington, under the guidance of a spiritual director, the Rev. John S. Spence, appointed by Archbishop Curley. At that time the parish system was put into effect, each of the 34 Catholic churches of Washington now being represented by a team captain and six lieutenants, who organize annual exercises for their parish women. There are at present 1,500 members in the league.

The Retreat League is a spiritual organization, having no dues of any kind. The Ladies Auxiliary of the Washington Retreat House, a separate organization, is responsible for the maintenance of the House. Eight members of the Franciscan Sisters of the Atonement from Graymoor conduct the Retreat House, 4000 Harewood street northeast, which is of colonial design, situated in the center of five acres of woodland. Accommodations are modern, with individual guest rooms and dormitories, chapel and assembly hall. The furnishings are Gregorian in style.

The activities of the league begin in September and continue through May.

Retreats are organized for Sundays and week-ends; aside from the parish groups attending their annual exercises, groups are organized for nurses, social workers, the Curley Club, Third Order of Franciscans, Catholic Daughters and other clubs and societies.

The Washington Retreat League holds its monthly meeting at the Retreat House, at which time the capacity is taxed by the attendance. Officers for 1939-40 are Mrs. Leo Kelly, president; Mrs. Francis E. Smith, jr., vice president; Miss Catherine Dolan, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Goodwin, chairman of publicity.

Parishes and team captains include: St. Aloysius, Miss Rose Juenemann; St. Ann's, Mrs. L. A. Martel; St. Anthony, Miss Emily Jamieson; Assumption, Miss Ruth Fowler; Blessed Sacrament, Mrs. Frank J. Paroni; St. Dominic, Miss Frances Appich; St. Frances de Sales, Miss Agnes Marceron; St. Francis Xavier, Mrs. Ludwig Seitz; St. Gabriel, Mrs. Joseph A. Egan; Holy Comforter, Miss Pauline Donnelly; Holy Name, Mrs. A. L. Mayhew; Holy Redeemer, Miss Eugenia Sayre; Holy Trinity, Mrs. Laura C. Taylor; Immaculate Conception, Marjorie S. Stuart, M. D.; St. James, Mrs. William Wersick.

Zontagram Gives June Luncheon Program; Southern Women to Hear Senator Pepper

THE MONTHLY ZONTAGRAM announced its luncheon programs during June. On June 5, Alice Rohrback, director of service for the blind, American Red Cross, and assistant at the Library of Congress, will speak June 12; Vera Lundquist, a member of the club will lead a discussion in which the club will participate. June 19, Edith M. Haydon, superintendent of nurses as St. Elizabeths Hospital, will speak. The final meeting of the month will be devoted to business.

Kay Fox, according to the Zontagram, was in Kansas City for the recent conference of the National Association of Public Employment Services recently held there and participated in a panel discussion broadcast over the N. B. C. Red Network on "The Public Employment Service From the Women's Point of View.

She was also interviewed by Eleanor Ritchie Johnston, feature writer for the Kansas City Star.

SOUTHERN WOMEN MEET—"The Probable Effect of War on Our Domestic Economy" will be discussed by Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, at the meeting of the Council of Southern Women next Wednesday. The meeting will be held at 12 at the Woman's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest. Mrs. Milo Perkins, council chairman, has asked that reservations for the luncheon be made with the club by this noon.

LODGE OPENS SOON—Vacation Lodge, summer residence maintained by the Y. W. C. A. for business women in and near Washington, will open June 1.

Only 30 minutes from the heart of the city, the lodge stands well back from the highway amid high, shady trees and green lawns. It has an air of hospitality with its large, cheerful living room, outdoor dining porch, tennis court, croquet grounds, outdoor fireplace and the individual garden plots, worked by the guests.

The lodge accommodates 44 women, who may sign up for short periods or for the whole season.

Miss Edith Young, who has been connected with the Congressional Club, will be the director for the season.

Mrs. James Craig Peacock is chairman of the Vacation Lodge committee, assisted by Mrs. Harold Brooks, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. A. A. Chenay, Miss Katherine Cox, Miss Edith Christie, Mrs. Frank Hoadley, Miss Minnie Hunt, Mrs. Luther Johnson, Mrs. J. G. Korner, Mrs. Karl Loos, Mrs. Frank Nesbit, Miss Florence Nichol, Miss Bertha Pabst, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Mrs. C. W. Ramseyer, Mrs. J. H. Walton and Mrs. Parker West.

MAINE SOCIETY ELECTS—The Maine State Society, organized not so long ago, has elected officers for the coming year, headed by Theodore I. Seamon as president, Betty Hall, vice president; James S. Spratt, secretary; Joseph L. Conley, treasurer, and Mrs. N. V. de Roquelaine, O. S. Cox and Raymond B. Payson, directors.

Mrs. de Roquelaine was founder of the society, which has already held a successful dance and plans another meeting toward the end of June at the Wardman Park.

FLOWER EXHIBIT—The home and garden section of the Silver Spring Women's Club will have a flower show at the Jessup Blair Community House this afternoon from 1 to 4.

Displays planned include dinner table arrangements, under the supervision of Mrs. John C. Keele; miniature arrangements, Mrs. G. Harris White; occasional arrangements, Mrs. George Ellington; economy arrangements, Mrs. J. E. Pope and Miss Mina Loeschke; large containers and baskets, Mrs. L. C. Leasure.

A breakfast table will be arranged by Mrs. Howard Smith, a bridge luncheon table by Mrs. R. C. Palmer.

A garden party table will be arranged by Mrs. Harry Falk on the lawn, from which the ladies will be served punch.

Speaking Class Prize Awarded

Mrs. Mary Schweinhaut won the speaking competition which closed advanced speaking training classes of the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday. Runners-up were: Mrs. Merle S. Whitford and Mrs. Austin Cooper Waller.

The speaking contest was similar to competitions being held throughout the country under the auspices of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee. Judges were: Mrs. David Tucker Brown, president of the club; Mrs. May Thompson Evans, assistant director of the women's division, and Mrs. Mary Steele Ross, diretcor of women's and professional projects, WPA of the District.

Mrs. Schweinhaut, who spoke on Vital Unity in America," made her debut as a speaker. She is the wife of the chief of the Civil Liberties Unit of the Department of Justice and a professional penologist with the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration.

Mrs. Whitford, secretary to Representative Laurence F. Arnold, of Illinois, hopes to be active in campaign speaking during the Presidential election.

Mrs. Waller, wife of a vice president of the Internatoinal Bank, Washington, is also the daughter of South Trimble, Clerk of the House of Representatives. She spoke on "The Record of an Emergency Administration."

Benefit Ball To Help Youth

Proceeds of the Pan-State Society benefit ball to be given at the Mayflower Hotel June 4, will be used to provide vocational aid and training for young people of rural districts.

Mrs. Roosevelt is a sponsor for the affair. It will benefit a project for which she enlisted the interest of members of the State societies a few weeks ago, when she invited their officers to a tea at the White House to meet Dr. Latham Hatcher, head of the Alliance for the Guidance of Rural Youth, with headquarters in Richmond, Va. This organization gives vocational aid and guidance and provides scholarships for boys and girls in remote country districts.

Many of the 15,000 members of the 45 State societies are from rural sections and it was decided to give the ball as a benefit for this project.

Sisterhood Gives Tea: Marks End of Season

The Sisterhood of Adas Israel Congregation closed its season yesterday with a silver tea at the Shoreham, proceeds of which will be devoted to Hebrew education in Washington.

Mrs. I. E. Levinson, the president, received, and Mrs. Louis Rosenthal was chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Mrs. Hyman Garfinkle, Mrs. Jack Rubin and Mrs. Abraham Nathanson.

2 Democratic Primary Men On Central Body

Katz, Wood Qualify; 22 File for Same Number of Posts

Two Washington Democrats identified with a movement for open primaries in the District similar to those in the States and conducted under rules established by Congress, have qualified as candidates for membership on the Democratic Central Committee, it was learned last night.

Party leaders admitted the pair—Sidney Katz, executive secretary of the Industrial Union Council, and Harlan Wood, attorney, had qualified for the party "primary" June 5, but denied that their presence on the ballot forecast an attack on the existing local Democratic organization.

Russell Balderson, committee chairman, declared "there will be no contest" because the number of candidates filing—22—equals the number of committee memberships to be filled by election.

List Withheld

Katz, whose "platform" calls for "democratization" of the local party organization and a "real primary," revealed he had filed "two minutes" before the 6 p. m. deadline for qualifiers last Friday. Wood, a director of the Independent Democratic Association, a group of Democrats leading the fight for an open primary, filed Thursday.

Since the closing date for filing, leaders of the regular organization have declined to make public the list of qualified candidates both for committee memberships and for election as delegates and alternates to the party's national convention in Chicago July 15.

Balderson explained yesterday that the names could not be revealed until Friday when the list of polling places is to be announced and after the present committee has met. Last night, after it had been learned that Katz and Wood were among the qualifiers, Balderson declared:

"We can't possibly make public the list until after a meeting of the executive committee tomorrow (Tuesday) morning. The names will be available for publication Wednesday morning."

Platform Given

Katz declared that his candidacy was a personal one and that he was not running with the open indorsement of the council which is the parent body of local C. I. O. unions. He said he and William Jett Lauck, who attended the 1924 convention and who is a candidate for delegate this year, are running on the following platform:

"A strong, unqualified pledge to keep America out of war and against steps leading to involvement.

"Continued strengthening and extending of all social and labor legislation enacted in the last seven years and protection of civil liberties.

"Full local suffrage for the District, including national representation.

"Democratization of the Democratic organization in the District with a real primary and no $200 and $25 fees necessary to qualify candidates for delegates and membership on the committee."

All residents of Washington who are either Democrats or interested in the party's aims are qualified to vote in the primary, according to Walter Bramhall, committee secretary. Polling places will be established in Georgetown, on Georgia avenue, in residential Northeast and Southwest Washington and in the Gridiron room of the Willard Hotel.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, has been asked by the committee to accept renomination as Democratic national committeewoman for the District and to hold office "even though her duties require her presence in Scandinavia." The invitation was framed in a resolution adopted at a committee meeting May 13 and announced yesterday.

Navy Chief Speaks At Harvard Club

Lieut. Comdr. B. L. Austin, of the U. S. Navy, spoke on the condition of the Navy at the twentieth annual meeting of the Harvard Club of Washington last night at Chevy Chase Junior College.

Charles Ragan Weaver, Woodrow Wilson High School student, was announced as winner of a scholarship to Harvard by the club's scholarship committee which interviewed a number of applicants here. Charles V. Imlay made the announcement as chairman of the committee. Mrs. Frederic Farrington was hostess to the club.

Optical Firm Fined by U. S.

New York, May 27 (AP).—Fines totaling $40,000 were imposed today upon the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. and three of its officers, who pleaded no defense to an indictment charging violation of the antitrust laws.

Thus ended an alleged German-controlled monopoly in the manufacture and sale of precision instruments, including range-finders and gun and bomb sights. Great Britain and France now can buy such devices here.

The government had charged that the monopoly was effected through an agreement between Bausch & Lomb, of Rochester, N. Y., and the Carl Zeiss Co., of Germany and New York, by which the former could not sell military instruments to foreign countries without the latter's consent.

J. F. Riordan, Jr., Athlete, Dies Of Rare Ailment

John F. Riordan, jr., 16-year-old Gonzaga High School athlete, died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital, the victim of a brain ailment that attacked him mysteriously a month ago.

He was taken to the hospital ten days ago. Physicians said they could not determine the cause of the malady.

Young Riordan was the son of a Standard Oil Co. supervisor. He lived at 710 Ingraham street northwest. Born in Washington, he was a second-year student at Gonzaga and a member of the baseball, football and basketball teams.

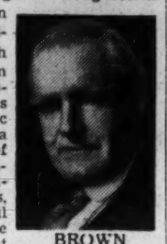
Funeral services will be at 9 a. m. Wednesday in the Nativity Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Lillian Evanti gives a song recital Monday night in Asbury Methodist Church with Winifred Lakeman as accompanist. Program of arias by Handel, Gluck, Bellini, Gomes and Verdi; lyric songs by Nin, Falla, Tipton, Hughes, Engel, Howe and Buzzi-Pezzia, and Negro spirituals arranged by Nickerson and Burleigh.

Making a farewell appearance in the city of her residence before departing on a tour of Latin-America, Lillian Evanti gave a song recital last evening in Asbury Methodist Church with a program which called upon her resources in both lyric and fioritura singing. One of the most accomplished of colored sopranos, she has a skill in flexible phrasing that was capably displayed in Handel's "Care selve," Gluck's "O del mio dolce ardor," Bellini's "Qui la voce," Gomes' "C'erna una volta un principe" and Verdi's "Ah, fors' e lui." Her choice of arias from "I Puritani" by Bellini and "Il Guarani" by Gomes was a commendable variation from the "coloratura" routine.



BROWN

On the lyric side she offered first three Spanish songs: Nin's "Granadina" and "Pano Murciano" and Falla's "Nana" which were read with clear diction and effective interpretation. A group in English contained Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," Hughes' amusing setting of the Mother Goose rhyme, "Hey Diddle Diddle;" Carl Engel's "Sea Shell," Mary Howe's "O Mistress Mine" and Arturo Buzzi-Peccia's "Colombetta," the last plentifully adorned with vocal ornamentation.

In a group of Negro spirituals were heard Camille Nickerson's arrangement of "A City Called Heaven," and Harry Thacker Burleigh's fine harmonizations of "Steal Away" and "Oh Didn't It Rain."

Mme. Evant's technical ease in fioritura is marked by both lightness in phrasing and security in intonation. She has a beautiful quality of high tones, particularly in pianissimo, and in "Care selve" there were some full open tones in alt that had exceptional roundness and transparence of color. When the tone was not forced and held evenly on the breath it rewarded the ear with its purity and evenness.

In the middle and lower registers, within the range of the speaking voice, the quality was frequently uneven. In place of her confident and accurate attack on high notes, there were often tones out of focus and blurred by a spreading of overtones. This was especially noticeable when emotional urgency pressed upon breath control.

Called Communist, Maverick Brands Accuser a 'Liar'

Waco, Tex., May 27 (AP).—Maury Maverick, mayor of San Antonio, was termed a "Communist" before the State Democratic Committee today and the former Congressman replied that anyone who made such a statement about him was a "liar and a coward."

Fred Rucker, committee member, protested against seating in the State party convention tomorrow the San Antonio delegation "and my friend, Maury Maverick, the No. 1 Communist of Texas." Friends of Maverick rushed to his defense.

Two hours later the committee on credentials, appointed to prepare the convention roll of delegates and hear any contests, received a scathing reply from Maverick, who said, "Washington was called a thief; Lincoln, a traitor, and Roosevelt, I have heard, a Communist."

"There is nothing worse than being called a Communist, unless it is a Nazi. They are the same.

"I denounce as a liar and coward any man who would make a statement like that about me."

HOW THEY DO SATISFY

"HIGHER and HIGHER"
That describes Chesterfield's increasing popularity and the new Broadway hit of the same name in which Marta Eggert, Leif Erickson, Lee Dixon and Billie Worth share honors with CHESTERFIELD CIGARETTES.

Do you smoke the cigarette that's COOLER, that's MILDER, that TASTES BETTER . . .

Are you getting all the pleasure that Chesterfield's RIGHT COMBINATION of the world's best cigarette tobaccos gives millions of smokers every day . . . the pleasure of a milder, cooler, better-tasting cigarette?

The Chesterfield combination really satisfies.

BETTER MADE FOR BETTER SMOKING

Every Chesterfield must conform to the one right standard of size and shape for a cooler, better-tasting, definitely milder smoke. Chesterfields are made right in every detail to give you the cigarette that really satisfies. (As seen in the new film "TOBACCOLAND, U.S.A.")

Georgetown Auto Parking Lot Asked

Citizens Favor Market Removal To Ease Traffic

A municipal parking center at M and Potomac streets was proposed last night by the Georgetown Citizens Association, meeting in St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O streets northwest.

To relieve traffic on M street, the association approved a resolution favoring the demolition of M Street Market, now leased by the District Government, and the erection in its place of a free parking garage.

In another resolution aimed at traffic conditions, the association favored a one-hour parking limit on M street in Georgetown and establishment of no-parking regulations on the south side during morning rush hours and on the north side during the afternoon rush.

The association expressed approval of the Washington Building Congress' proposals to increase appropriations for the District Building Inspector's office and to draft a new building code but turned down other building regulations favored by the congress.

The District snow removal parking restrictions, in force two years, were commended by the association.

Northwest Council

The Northwest Citizens Council, composed of seven citizens associations northwest of Rock Creek, last night asked information on what, if anything, is being done toward abolition of sororities and fraternities in District high schools.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Leslie Boudinot Wright, secretary, 4620 Thirtieth street northwest, the council appointed a committee to see Assistant Schools Superintendent Chester W. Holmes and determine what the Principals' Association had done since the council's previous request to stamp out such organizations because they had no place in "a democratic school system."

The council supported a Senate bill to increase the number of appointments to the United States Military Academy at West Point allowed the District. The District now is allowed 5 to West Point and 4 to Annapolis, as compared with 9 to West Point and 12 to Annapolis allowed Nevada, one of the least populated States, it was pointed out.

The council voted 100 per cent" indorsement of President Roosevelt's national defense program.

Approval of a movement to organize a junior citizens council also was expressed.

The council indorsed a proposal for a small recreation center in every school neighborhood, declaring that even every mill village in New England had at least a tennis court.

Mid-City

The Mid-City Citizens Association called last night for regulations prohibiting baseball, football and other sports in "areas set aside for public parks" in the downtown section.

The association, meeting at Thomson community Center, Twelfth and L streets northwest, for its last session until September, also expressed approval of President Roosevelt's rearmament program and condemned "Trojan horse and fifth column" activities as "a most treacherous way to betray our Nation."

The organization also asked the District Commissioners and Fine Arts Commission to permit construction of only "enclosed, ornamental" public garages in the city, opposed the Tydings bill to permit firemen and policemen to live as far as 12 miles outside of the District boundary and commended Policemen C. Burns, C. G. Edwards and other officers of No. 2 Precinct for their work in apprehending two suspected holdup men two months ago.

North Capitol

North Capitol Citizens Association last night adopted a motion expressing disapproval of the statement credited to Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal that Police Judge George Neilson was a ticket-fixer before going on the bench. The motion indicated disapproval of one official's making such a remark about another official.

John F. Hardie, speaking for the association's public utilities committee, reported Brookland Citizens Association's cooperation in seeking improved service on the Brookland car line.

The association, holding its final meeting of the season at McMillan Playground fieldhouse, saw an American Airlines film on air travel.

Society of Natives

John M. Howard, commercial supervisor of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., was elected president of the Society of Natives at the monthly meeting last night in Raleigh Hotel.

Roger Bradshaw was chosen first vice president; Miss Florence Thompson, second vice president; Mrs. Hazel C. Deutsch, third vice president; Miss Rachel Racoosin, recording secretary; Miss Mamie D. Sobotka, corresponding secretary; Frederick R. Umhau, treasurer, and James H. Duhamel, historian.

Howard, who is 31, was first vice president of the society. Father of two children, he is a graduate of Central High School and attended the University of Maryland.

He is a member of the Board of Trade, and a delegate to the Federation of Business Men's Associations. He lives at 6525 Thirtieth street northwest.

Father LeRue Named Rector in Philadelphia

The Rev. Joseph N. LaRue, procurator of Catholic University since 1936, has been appointed rector of the Church of St. Barnabas in Philadelphia by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia.

Father LaRue was ordained in 1925 by the late Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, then rector of Catholic University.

Dampened but Undaunted, Wilson Teachers Put On 'Pageant of Americas' in the Rain

Balboa Finds Pacific On Stage, Audience Discovers Puddles

Students of Wilson Teachers College portrayed the kinship of the American republics last night as they shivered sympathetically through a pageant in the rain in the Sylvan Theater.

Postponed last week because of rain, "The Pageant of the Americas" encountered a determined drizzle last night. But the show went on, while the college orchestra manfully tried to disguise the fact that the violins had been "drowned out" and were missing.

Among the scenes from history, Balboa discovered the Pacific simultaneously while the audience discovered puddles at their feet.

Marvis Gee, the May Queen, gowned in "jewel net" which twinkled with ground glass, sat without shelter on a dais in the spotlight while the pageantry unfolded before her. Members of her court, in filmy green and lavender dresses, clustered around her for the duration of the show.

The pageant was presented as a salute to "the fiftieth anniversary of Pan Americanism," tracing the history of the Americas' relationships.

More than 200 students took part in the pageant, with no visible qualms over their colorful costumes becoming drenched.

During the finale the rain had ceased, and a wind obligingly whipped up the damp flags in a sort of flourish. The flags of the 21 American republics were massed on the stage, while white doves of peace were released. Jane Fletcher portrayed Miss Pan America.

Mrs. Dorothy DeMuth Watson, of the college faculty, and 20 student committees arranged everything—except the weather.

Larger Staffs at Girls Clubs Recommended

For girls who hang around Washington street corners for lack of suitable recreation, a civic committee yesterday agreed that fuller use of existing settlement houses and community centers should come before any new organization of girls clubs.

"Larger staffs"—which would develop more inviting programs at present locations—was the thought voiced at the committee meeting at offices of the Community Center and Playground Department yesterday in the Force School Building.

The committee, headed by Miss Sibyl Baker, community center director, will continue with its survey to find out unmet needs in girls' recreation and to sum up what is being done by present facilities.

Only 55 Per Cent Reached

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Woman's Bureau, Metropolitan Police, a member of the committee, estimated yesterday that only "about 55 per cent of the girls who should be reached" are now being brought within the recreation programs.

"That is my guess, and of course we won't have a definite figure until the survey is completed within several weeks," Capt. Milliken said.

Capt. Milliken was one of the committee members who stanchly insisted on expanding the use of present facilities before setting up a new organization "which would require administrative overhead" and possibly a building program, with accompanying problems of fund-raising and choice of localities.

"Of course, when the survey is completed, we may find that some areas are not within reach of present facilities, and that might mean setting up new facilities. But I know of numerous places where a larger staff is the greatest need," she said.

One Instance Cited

"For instance, in one location here, there is a difficult group of teen-age girls. Two private agencies in that neighborhood offer programs, but they are much understaffed. The girls' interest has dropped off, for they need an intensive type of service. They have started to hanging around street corners again."

In the central area also there is "great need for activities for girls," she said.

"One small neighborhood house, which is a private agency, serves white girls. The E Street Y. W. C. A. could do a tremendous job if it had a larger staff."

"For colored children in the central area, the Northwest Settlement House needs a building twice as large as its present one, and about double the staff it now has," she added.

She told of a 13-year-old girl in the central area, who might have become a problem if a settlement house had not offered what she needed.

"The girl's mother is a charwoman who works from 5 to 11 p. m. While her mother was away, the girl started hanging around the corner where older boys congregated, and she was getting fresh and flippant. The mother went to the settlement house and arranged for the girl to come there in the evening to do her studying and to take part in activities.

"The girl isn't very strong, so she doesn't require a great deal of activity and this settlement was able to give her as much as she needed. The present program there might not be sufficient for a different type of girl," she added.

Capt. Milliken pointed out that many of the girls who come to the Woman's Bureau have been within reach of a recreational program, "but often there hasn't been a definite enough drive to interest them, and, of course, they are a group which is hard to interest. But, of course, recreation isn't the only answer to the problem," she added.

White girls under 18 years of age who came to the bureau in the past year numbered 768, while there were 741 colored girls in that age group. White girls from 18 to 21 years of age totaled 166, with 122 colored. They all added up to a slight increase over the previous year.

"Many people here don't know what a start has already been made in activities for girls," Capt. Milliken said. "The settlement houses have full-time girls' workers and are developing a wide variety of programs. These agencies reach some 8,000 girls.

"The Girl Scout program here has increased tremendously and now has about 2,000 members. In addition, the Campfire Girls have something like 600 members," she added.

Among the persons attending the committee meeting yesterday were Mrs. Frank Linzel, president, Washington Council of Church Women; Judge Fay Bentley, of the Juvenile Court; Mrs. Horace Phelps, chairman, department of welfare, Federation of Women's Clubs; James S. Vance, of the Georgetown Lions Club, and Miss Baker. The committee held its first meeting last week at the call of Commissioner John Russell Young.

Boys Club of Eastern Branch Opens Handicraft Exhibition

An exhibit of handicraft by members of the Washington Boys Club at the eastern branch of the club, Seventeenth street and Massachusetts avenue southeast, last night inaugurated the organization's fifty-fifth anniversary "open house" week.

Everything from printing to model airplanes was viewed by more than 200 visitors. Most popular field was home furnishings, with lathe-turned lamp bases, ash trays and tobacco stands the favorite subjects. All work of the exhibit was done in shops maintained by the club for the boys.

Trim airplane models were also a favorite subject of the youths. Stanleigh Jenkins, educational and vocational adviser in charge of the exhibit, pointed out that more work in wrought iron is being done than ever before.

A single mechanical drawing set by 17-year-old Roy Glisson covered a complete 2-year mechanical drawing course given by the club. Bead and art work were also exhibited.

Motion pictures of Camp Reeder, maintained by the club, and a film entitled "Building of Boys," released by the Boys Clubs of America, were shown.

The exhibits will continue open to the public tonight, tomorrow and Friday evening. Prizes will be awarded tomorrow evening.

House Votes Idle Benefit Amendment

McGehee Measure Provides Optional Retirement for Police, Firemen

The House yesterday passed the latest McGehee bill amending the District Unemplomeni Compensation Act, a 25-year optional retirement law for police and firemen, and three other minor measures during a brief District day which wound up local legislation in the House for the session.

The McGehee bill, which in various forms has been pending at the Capitol for the last two years, was adopted by the House under unanimous consent after it had been explained by several members of the House District Committee.

Expected to save employers, $1,000,000 a year, the bill cuts the pay-roll tax from 3 to 2.7 per cent and raises benefits to a maximum of $18 a week for 19 weeks.

The retirement law amendment, if accepted by the Senate, will permit police and firemen to retire voluntarily after 25 years of service without any claim of disability. Pensions are limited to half-pay.

The other three bills (1) remove the present restriction on Juvenile Court jurisdiction in nonsupport cases, (2) authorize the Commissioners to rent parking space in the Municipal Center, and (3) change the rate of compensation for members of the board of engineers from $150 a year to $10 a day.

Chairman Jennings Randolph, of the House District Committee, said no more local legislation will be presented to the House this year unless it is of an emergency character. He expressed delight that the Unemployment Compensation Act amendments had been adopted.

Among the bills which will die on the House calendar with adjournment are the Kennedy-Seal plan for reorganizing the District government, a proposal to lower the age restriction on juveniles appearing on the legitimate stage, and a fair trade practices bill which would in effect give the ABC Board authority to fix retail liquor prices.

Randolph explained that none of the controversial measures were called up because of an agreement with House leaders.

Representative Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, asked the District Committee chairman why the Schulte milk bill had not been called up. The measure has been on the calendar all session, but no attempt has been made to bring it to a vote. Randolph turned to Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, for the reply, but Schulte said nothing.

The McGehee bill was explained in some detail by Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, after Randolph had told the House it had the united support of the Board of Trade, the C. I. O., and the American Federation of Labor.

"Whatever action the House takes on this bill," McGehee told the House, "it should not be taken as a criterion for the States."

Dirksen praised the "fine spirit of cooperation between employers and labor," which had made the legislation possible, and predicted that the District law will be further liberalized at the next session of Congress.

Both McGehee and Dirksen called attention to the large accumulation of funds in the reserve fund. Under the present tax, McGehee said, it would amount to $21,000,000 by the end of the year.

Employ benefits that represent gains over the present law include a $6 weekly minimum and an increase in the maximum from $15 to $18 a week and from 16 to 19 weeks. The bill allows $1 a week for dependents up to $3 providing the total for a family does not exceed $18.

Besides the lower pay-roll tax, employers gain in that they will no longer have to pay taxes on salaries in excess of $3,000. The pay-roll tax cut is retroactive to January 1, 1940.

Woman Exonerated In Auto Casualty

Mrs. Ann F. Barry, 38, of 805 Twenty-first street northwest, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday in the traffic death of Christ Aravanis, 52, of 2133 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Aravanis, twenty-second traffic victim of the year, ran into the side of Mrs. Barry's car while running to a streetcar at Connecticut avenue and N street northwest May 18.

"BEARDED IRIS"—Betty Turner, of 1906 Rhode Island avenue northeast, with the best arrangement of "bearded iris" in last night's spring flower show of the Woodridge Garden Club at the Sherwood Church Hall. The flowers were exhibited by Mrs. Mathilde Bartlett, of 4511 Argyle Terrace northwest

Mrs. F. E. Burgess Wins First on Points Over 15 Entries in Sherwood Church Hall Exhibit; Rose, Peony Display Next

An innovation in exhibits of the Woodridge Garden Club last night introduced flower arrangements performed at the show held at the Sherwood Church Hall, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Mrs. F. E. Burgess, of 4012 Twenty-second street northeast, won the prize over 15 other entries. Within a limited time period the contestants had to arrange cut calendulia, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, iris, fever-few, bachelor buttons and fern.

Mrs. Burgess received a crystal bowl as first prize for the most points in the show—54. There were 44 entries. She was also awarded six blue ribbons, the most received by any contestant.

A group of iris in a sliver platter with flamingo won for Mrs. Freeman Weiss, of 3223 Vista street northeast, the prize for which any competitior who had not previously won a blue ribbon in a Garden Club show was eligible. Mrs. H. A. Linger, 2930 Carlton avenue northeast, won the blue ribbon in the miniature class under 3 inches and in the miniature class between 3 and 6 inches. Her arrangements were in forget-me-nots and baby doll roses.

Blue ribbon for her best arrangement of grouped iris in Japanese style on a flat bowl went to Mrs. Mathilde K. Bartlett, 4511 Argyle terrace northwest.

Iris, which is early this year, was the flower most widely represented in the show. Roses, earlier than usual, were also shown in great number. There was an unusual number of miniatures and corsages.

Judges were Prof. A. S. Thurston, of the University of Maryland, horticultural department; Mrs. Dion S. Birney, and Mrs. Charles Bittinger.

The annual rose and peony show of the club will be held next Monday at the same location. A long list of prizes will be awarded. Officers of the club emphasized that all roses entered must be in bloom and must have been grown outdoors.

76 Drivers Escape Fines In Violations

Four in Embassies Immune to Penalty; Deputy Marshal Gets Warning

Four persons with diplomatic immunity, two who said they were on official business, and a deputy United States marshal were among 76 persons who had traffic tickets adjusted last week, according to the list released for publication yesterday. There were 15 cancellations and 61 warnings.

Deputy United States Marshal Louis Guaragna got off with a warning for disobeying an official sign by explaining that he parked unlawfully while waiting for a party to come out of a restaurant on whom he was to serve a writ.

Six persons said their cars were pushed or disabled, eight asserted they were on emergency calls and two claimed they were unfamiliar with the regulations.

Unusual was the excuse of Richard H. Sinclair, 1626 Thirtieth street northwest, tagged for passing a red light. Sinclair explained that his "foot slipped off the clutch." He was let off with a warning.

Agnes Callahan, 620 Fifth street northeast, talked herself out of a fine for parking in a loading zone by pointing to her good record. She said it was her first offense in 15 years.

William J. Cole, 1020 Thirteenth street southeast, and Leonard S. Baker, 1247 C street southeast, pleaded they were victims of last week's heavy rain. Each said his truck was stalled due to wet ignition wires. They were warned.

Among the four who escaped through diplomatic immunity was Roger Goiran, Naval Attache at the French Embassy, who was excused for two violations of parking in a restricted zone. Others pleading diplomatic immunity were Gregory G. Rosenblum, employed at the Russian Embassy; Salvador Duhart, second secretary, Mexican Embassy, and Jose Cuadrad, employed at the Mexican Embassy.

No Test 'Tie-Up'

Washington motorists who receive through the mail suggestions from local garages on methods of passing the District's annual automobile inspection tests need have no fears of a commercial "tie-up" with the Traffic Department, J. Earl Steinhauer, supervising inspector, said last night.

Steinhaeur's statement was prompted by reports from car owners that unsolicited garage advertising matter has been received in the same mail with official notification of inspection dates. In most cases, the advertising guarantees a passing inspection mark if the car is first brought to the particular garage.

"Our list of tag numbers to be called for inspection during the year is open to public scrutiny," said Steinhaeur. "There is no way we can prevent garage or service station operators from securing this schedule and obtaining names and addresses from public records and then mailing their advertising matter."

Playwrights' Company Reviews Its Two Years

Admits Failures and Outlines Season's Plans; Marjorie Rambeau Recalls 'Good Old Days;' News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

BECAUSE THE FORMATION of the Plywrights' Company—comprised of Maxwell Anderson, S. N. Behrman, Elmer Rice, Robert E. Sherwood and the late Sidney Howard—marked a distinct innovation in the producing wing of the legitimate theater, the net results of its two years of operation are interesting.

BELL

A recapitulation of the company's productions, chronologically noted, indicates that Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," starring Raymond Massey, was a huge success that "set the company up in business." Anderson's "Knickerbocker Holiday," starring Walter Huston, had only average success, but did finish with a profit. Rice's "American Lanscape" was a financial failure, but the loss was "only $15,000." Behrman's "No Time for Comedy," presented in association with, and starring, Katherine Cornell, belongs in the hit column. It played 57 weeks, visited 60 cities and grossed more than $1,000,000. Last season's initial production, Sidney Howard's "Madame, Will You Walk," played only Baltimore and Washington and then was withdrawn, owing to George M. Cohan's dissatisfaction with his role. Anderson's "Key Largo," starring Paul Muni, wound up in the black by a narrow squeak—it was profitable in New York and unprofitable on the road. Rice's "Two on an Island" was a failure, even with the sale of the picture rights to RKO-Radio for $50,000. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," starring the Lunts and produced in association with the Theater Guild, promises to surpass the success of "Abe Lincoln." A tryout tour of four and a half weeks—which included a capacity week at the National—grossed $98,000. Since opening in the Alvin Theater, New York, this tragedy of Finland has played to capacity audiences at all performances.

Among the many other virtues of the Playwrights' Company is that of utter frankness—else these revelations never would have been possible.

For the season of 1940-41, the Playwrights again will offer a revision of Sidney Howard's posthumous comedy-fantasy, "Madame, Will You Walk," as its initial production, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in the role Mr. Cohan did not fancy. This was disclosed here many months ago. Maxwell Anderson will have a new play, "A Journey to Jerusalem," and both S. N. Behrman and Elmer Rice are at work on new scripts. An interesting possibility is a topical musical revue that may be done with Irving Berlin. The idea originated with Mr. Berlin and, if successfully consummated, each of the firm's four authors will contribute one or more sketches to the show.

Col. Heinie Miller, president of the National Boxing Association and secretary of the D. C. Boxing Commission, is a patron of the other arts, too. He writes: "Seeing George Bancroft turn in his usual high-grade job as Mickey Rooney's father in 'Young Tom Edison,' reminds me of the first time I saw Bancroft on the stage. It was in a ship's minstrel show on the quarterdeck of the armored cruiser Pennsylvania, in Manila, 1907. George was a water tender, one of the 'he-men' of the black gang, raceboat stroke oarsman and all that sort of thing. He could be the father of a boy older than Mickey. Such wartime, 1917—18, sailors as Walter Winchell, Rudy Vallee, Paul Whiteman, Jack Benny, Spencer Tracy and others were just young fellers on the muster rolls compared to Bancroft."

Joe Morgan, former manager of the Crandall enterprise in this city—now the Warner Brothers theaters—could verify that. He did a hitch on the same ship with Bancroft—whose real name, by the way, is Pollard.

And that reminds me—although I don't know quite why it should. Every time Marjorie Rambeau appears on a local screen—as she did recently at RKO-Keith's in "Primrose Path" and is again this week in "Twenty-Mule Team," with Wallace Berry, at the Capitol—many Capital old-timers are reminded of the days when she and her then husband, the late Willard Mack, presented a series of his early plays at the Columbia Theater. "So Much for So Much" was one of them. In that same remote period John Barrymore scored one of his outstanding hits in Mack's "Kick In." Having been a Georgetown student, under his real name of Charles W. McLaughlin, Willard Mack was immensely popular in Washington. So was Marjorie. And so she still is.

Thanks to Mons. Francois La Falce, of the Warner organization, for the copy of "All This and Heaven Too." Since Bette Davis and Charles Boyer will be coming along soon in the Warner Brothers picturization of the story, we shall hasten to read it. The picture ought to hit the Earle screen in late June or early July.

Signs-of-the-Times Note

DEANNA DURBIN—"IT'S A DATE"
With MICKEY MOUSE

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 27.

Adolphe Menjou will do another picture for Darryl Zanuck instead of "The Great Profile." And everything between them is peace and harmony. 'Twas the story of Barrymore's wife, and studio was threatened with all kinds of lawsuits unless Jack did it himself. In fact, when the same studio made "Sing, Baby Sing" with Menjou, Barrymore served everyone in the company with a summons, but nothing came of it. I believe it was then that Jack was given "Hold That Coed."

HOPPER

And the studio had all the legal difficulties they wanted over "Rose of Washington Square" (which starred Ty Power), and I believe had to pay off Fanny Brice and her former husband. So with war over Europe, they're not courting any legal war over Hollywood.

There are a couple of nice juicy lawsuits coming up that should be settled out of court, too. One is Myron Selznick's suit against Errol Flynn for his commission on one of the finest deals ever given a human being. I like Errol. He's a swashbuckling, happy-go-lucky, devil-may-care guy with a million dollar personality, who, in less than four years has gone from a salary of $350 to $5,500 weekly. Now that ain't hay.

And the other suit concerns Harry Joe Brown, who was signed to a fine contract with Darryl Zanuck three years ago when, I believe, they weren't even friends.

Mary Livingston is very self-conscious, but her new bobbed nose is—to say the least—classy.

Dotty Lamour and Herbie Kay's Tulip Festival in Holland, Mich., joined them again in friendship, without thought of matrimony.

Charlie Chaplin has more than the war to worry about now. It's his million and a half production of "The Dictator," which everyone says is his greatest picture, but with the condition of the world at present no one feels like laughing at any dictator. As Molly says to Fibber, "'Tain't funny, McGee."

I don't wonder that poor little rich girl Barbara Hutton flew in from Honolulu with serious business on her mind. Her husband, from whom she's not yet divorced, is in Denmark, can't get out. Her son is a ward in chancery to the British Crown, with his money tied up over there, so it looks as though Barbara will have to skimp along on nickels and dimes for the duration of the war.

Barn Theaters Are Readying Summer Plans

By Richard L. Coe.

The sheep'll be in the meadow, the cows in the corn, in a scant 13 days when the local barn theater season opens at Roadside Theater, to be followed a week later by the summer's opener at Cross Roads Theater on Monday evening, June 17. Already the Roadside group on the Rockville pike has announced its plans and now comes word from Baileys Cross Roads in Virginia.

With Catherine Ryan in the leading role, "Meet the Wife" will usher in the latter's season of seven plays. Mary Boland and Clifton Webb played this comedy originally, which marks the second time for the blonde Miss Ryan to follow the blonde Mary Boland. The first was in the Cross Roads' "The Vinegar Tree."

Most provocative of the Virginia news is the return of Izetta Jewell, jr., who will star in the unfamiliar Noel Coward antiwar play, "Fallen Angel." That aurora borealis of Virginia's last midsummer is winding up a season's engagement with Maurice Evans in Shakespearean repertory. Reginald Allen, of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will return and Howard Wentworth, who did half the plays last year, will direct all seven this semester.

Rehearsals began last night for the Roadsiders' "The Sealed Well," set to spout on June 10 under the direction of Ralph Fowler. Eldred Wilson and his stage crew are busying themselves in the "meller" red barn, and Designer-Technician Don Jones arrived yesterday from New Haven with his blueprints.

There's a minor Moliere festival in our midst. The Catholic University School of Speech and Drama's production of "The Miser" will be repeated tonight in the University Theater with Martin Murphy in the title role. Murphy, a special student at the university, played in the group's memorable "Murder in the Cathedral" and, again with Robert Speaight, in "The Comedian." As in "My Son, My Son!" a father competes with his spendthrift son for the beautiful lady's hand. Fred Horton and Mary Finnerty complete this pivotal trio, with Charles Grunwell, Alfred Laritsch, Gordon Gray, Paul Tisdale, Helen Kerins and Catherine Knockey in other supporting roles. Walter Kerr directed and the setting was designed by the Harlequin's Ralph Brown. Catholic University's group, by the way, is justifiably proud of the meaty spread Life's current issue gives its George M. Cohan musical, "Yankee Doodle Boy."

The French classicist will be represented again tomorrow evening when "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" is played by the Drama Group of the Federal Playhouse in the Agriculture Auditorium at 8 o'clock. Jacqueline Beryl Lawless is directing a cast that includes Violet Hellman, Irma Rutley, Harold Langsdorf, Herbert Lupton, George Detmers, Leo Covaleski, Cecelia Cronan, Rex Tyler and C. Austin Brannen.

The Patent Office Players are promoting a candid camera contest for the best shots taken during the performance of their newspaper comedy, "Hot Copy," scheduled for Thursday evening, June 6, in the Department of Commerce Auditorium. Those who would sit in the front rows must be accompanied by their cameras!

Action is promised by the Agriculture Players in "The Thirteenth Chair," played in the department auditorium Friday and Saturday, June 7 and 8. Irma Griffin, James Northey, Jack Selby, Edith Aymar, Corliss Peck, Edward Stallings, Anita Zorn, John Shantz, Ralph Sorrentino and Elizabeth Ellsworth are cast.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 27.

SCHOOL DEPT.: The University of Virginia has invited President Roosevelt to make the commencement address at Charlotteville, on June 10. Although that date now is not too distant, the President as yet has not indicated whether he'll accept the invitation . . . The current crisis is occupying all his time. An added complication is the fact that his son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., whose marks have been excellent, is a member of the university's law school graduating class, but the results of the final examinations have not yet been tabulated.

SOCIAL NOTES: W. C. Fields has a portrait in his home which appears to be a masterpiece. At first glance, it seems to be a painting of Queen Victoria—but close inspection reveals that the face is that of Fields, and in the background is a bottle of his favorite Scotch . . . Fields now is preparing to install a new educational system in the public schools in America. He is ready to contribute $5,000 to a fund for the purpose of having all the public schools accept as a standard textbook "Liquor, the Servant of Man," by W. H. Smith and F. C. Helwig, which describes liquor as "one of the most beneficial medicines" . . . Gene Fowler has pledged an additional $2,000 to this Fields Enlightment Fund.

ART DEPT.: William Schack, author of "And He Sat Among the Ashes"—the biography of Louis M. Eilshemius, the erratic artist-visited the Eilshemius home, and asked him to autograph a copy of the biography. "Nothing doing," the artist shouted to his biographer, "I want $10 for that" . . . Schack autographed his book for Eilshemius, but it has been stolen from the studio, together with the few pictures which remained in the possession of the aging painter.

MUSIC DEPT.: At the Paramount Theater last week, the featured entertainers were Tony Martin, the singer, and Charlie Barnet's Orchestra . . . The singer and the band leader met when they both were students at Ohio University. At that time Tony Martin conducted the college band. And Charlie Barnet supplied the vocalization.

FINANCE DEPT.: Toots Shor's, at 51 W. 51, is one of the most elegant and inviting restaurants in town. It was opened a few weeks ago at a cost of $150,000, and now is an assured success . . . Shor, an exuberant and amiable host, had worked as greeter at Leon & Eddie's and a number of speakeasies during the prohibition era. Then he purchased LaHiff's Tavern, but lost it more than a year ago. He spent the past 12 months getting the financing for his new place and then supervising its construction. He devoted all his time and money to this. And on the recent day when he held the premiere, Toots arrived to give effusive greetings to the legion of New York notables who had come to pay him homage . . . None of them knew he had walked from his home because he didn't have the fare. And that he couldn't have called for aid—for the telephone company, that morning, had shut off his phone because the bill was unpaid.

LOCAL NEWS: The jury which convicted Happy Maione and Frank Abbandana, of Murder, Inc., arrived at their verdict by acclamation. They spent their time in the jury room smoking, and didn't even bother to take a vote . . . The Federal Government already has blue-prints for making the NBC and CBS building bomb-proof . . . Tallulah Bankhead was one of the victims fleeced by a Canadian veterans' league. The prosecutor found her $10 check in possession of the two men convicted in Toronto.

BUSINESS DEPT.: Lew Gensler, the producer, was one of the the many American clients who received the regular sesonal advertisements from Anderson & Shephard, the famous London tailors . . . The accompanying letter apologized for the absence of sample cloth. "We regret this inconvenience," the note explained, "owing to the little trouble we're now having over here."

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT: Will Morrissey, who went to Hollywood after long service in the Billy Rose army, was invited to reenlist this season. Rose sent Morrissey a plane ticket, but Will cashed it and with the proceeds he produced a Morrissey extravaganza. When that flopped, Rose renewed his invitation and sent him another ticket. Again Will cashed it . . . Last month Rose offered a final chance. He sent the ticket to Sid Grauman, who placed Morrissey on an eastbound plane. And when the plane was 10,000 feet over Nashville, the hostess, with Mr. Rose's compliments, presented to Morrissey the $100 salary due him.

Bette Echoes Ancient Words

Words spoken by the participants in a real life Paris drama 93 years ago will be heard in Warner Bros.' "All This, and Heaven Too."

During the murder trial scenes in the picture, Bette Davis is questioned as a possible accomplice of wife-killer Charles Boyer. The dialogue is based on translated transcriptions of the de Praslin case obtained from the Paris police and the French House of Peers.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, May 27 (INS).—Lew Ayres isn't going to get much time to brush up on his rhumba in South America because M-G-M is paging him right now for the lead in "Golden Fleecing," with those lovelies, Rita Johnson and Virginia Grey. Lew's success in the "Dr. Kildare" pictures has been little short of phenomenal and Metro is naturally hoping the Kildare series will prove the same sort of springboard for him that the "Hardy" series proved for Mickey Rooney, catapulting him to the top of the list of box-office favorites.

LOUELLA PARSONS

However, for the moment, Lew will desert his role of the earnest young doctor to play an entirely different type of character—a Caspar Milquetoast, who becomes a hero when he hands Public Enemy No. 1 over to the G-men—by accident. Leslie Fenton, who traded his make-up box for a megaphone will direct "Golden Fleecing."

When "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" first reached the screen just a year ago, much of the most exciting footage had been eliminated because it was considered too dangerous with world affairs in such a precarious state. Now that everyone's worst fears have been confirmed and Europe is aflame, it is no longer necessary to pull punches. So Warner Brothers have reedited "Nazi Spy," putting back this previously censored footage and adding a new ending which brings the picture up to date with the Nazi conquest of Norway, Holland and Belgium. The new and "Unabridged" version will open at the Globe Theater in New York on June 1.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Dorothy di Frasso whipped up a spur-of-the-moment party Saturday night for Barbara Hutton. Among those who tried to forget the war and be gala were Marlene Dietrich, the Dick Barthelmesses with their house guest, Countess Tolstoi.

At the boat to bid your favorite columnist, her favorite doctor and Mecca Braham bon voyage were the Jules Steins, the Dan Dankers, Mrs. Harry Brand, Mrs. Hal Roach, Fieldsie and Walter Lang. And don't think L. O. P. didn't have a glint in her eye when she said:

"That's all today. See you next month!"

Lewis Worsham Tops Open Qualifiers at Manor

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, May 27.—Our old friend Fred Lieb makes out a nice case against baseball writers in his Collier's piece. He rattles a few skeletons to illustrate that zaniness is not exclusive with the ball players. The writing fraternity is no model of behavior, he points out.

POVICH

We can't quarrel with Lieb's thesis. Our only complaint is that he hasn't told the whole story. For every screwball ball player there is a frolicsome fellow in the press box. Without attempting to explain how they get that way, we give Mr. Lieb a fill-in.

He might have told the story, for example, of the late Bill Ryder, dean of Cincinnati baseball writers who had his own private sense of humor and went to great lengths to satisfy it. The late Bill Hanna, of the New York Herald Tribune was driven to the verge of despair by at least one of Ryder's pranks.

Hanna was in the habit of taking a morning constitutional on upper Broadway when Ryder, walking in the opposite direction, met him on the sidewalk. "Hello Bill," said Ryder, "you're not looking well this morning. Are you sick?" With that, Ryder passed on.

But a block up the street he boarded a street car, rode for three blocks, alighted and walked again toward Hanna. Meeting him, he waved a cheery hello and added, "Is anything wrong, Bill?" You're not looking well." He left Hanna in complete wonderment before the latter could answer.

Up the street, Ryder again boarded a street car that took him once more in Hanna's path, and for the third time he greeted Hanna with a cheery hello as if it were their first meeting. "You look pale, Bill," he said to the startled and wide-eyed Hanna and passed on.

Hanna did not show up to the ball park that day. He advised his office he was going to a sanitarium for a long rest.

A bunch of the boys traveling with the Giants were at the Schenley Hotel in Pittsburgh playing cards one evening in the room of Boze Bulger, the old World correspondent whose emergency appendix operation during a World Series elicited the crack that Bulger was "the only baseball writer ever to get a cut in the World Series." Bulger was not one of the card players. The boys were merely using his room, using his cards and using some of his spirits.

Buck O'Neill was in the midst of what he believed to be a grand slam in a hearts game when a freak distribution of the cards robbed him of a chance to win a big pot. O'Neill, with justifiable anger, pounded his fist on the table and then looked about for something else on which to vent his spleen. Of a sudden he jerked from his head a big, expensive Panama hat, held it at full length and plunged his fist squarely through the crown, then gazing relievedly at $25 worth of ruined Panama.

Then he was suddenly reminded of something. "Holy smoke," ejaculated Buck, "that was Bulger's hat, not mine."

Another baseball writer, who shall remain nameless because he is bigger than we are, once was invited to a party at the country estate of Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, in company with other baseball writers following the Giants into St. Louis. Late in the evening somebody suggested a swim in Breadon's fancy outdoor pool.

Our hero, who had been some shucks as a swimmer, professed interest in the pool, and asked what the record was for the length. "14 seconds" said Breadon, whereupon our hero grunted disdainfully and vowed he could better that time.

"Okay, I'll hold the watch," said Johnny Drebinger, of the New York Times, and our hero stripped for the plunge. Thrashing the water like a harvester, he sped the length of the pool. Drebinger, looking at his cupped hand, shook his head. "Too bad, 16 seconds," he said.

"I can do better than that. I'm trying it again," said our hero. At the end of his second sprint, he shouted to the other end of the pool to inquire the time. "Sixteen and 2-5," said Drebinger. "I must be out of shape," said our hero, "but I'm trying it again." At the end of his third dash, tuckered and heaving, he once more inquired the time. "Sixteen and four-fifths," said Drebinger sadly.

Our hero never did learn that Drebinger never owned a watch and didn't feel like going to the trouble to borrow one despite his duties as timekeeper. All that he was holding in his cupped hands was a packet of matches.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 27.—That old truism, to the effect that if you hang around the racing game long enough you wind up behind a dark round object with an 8 painted on it, seems to be working in the case of the man who seemed for a long time to be immune to bad luck. I mean Charles S. Howard.

CONSIDINE

It isn't likely that he'll show up in a mission bed line. Among several other things, he is the owner of the Howard Automotive Co., with 24 retail sales outlets and 175 Buick agencies in California and Nevada. Which isn't so bad for a fellow who started out penniless after leaving his bicycle business to ride up San Juan Hill with Teddy Roosevelt. Howard, most prominent owner of thoroughbred horses in recent years, probably has done more to eradicate the horse from the golden West than any other one man.

He had fabulous success in the toughest sport of them all. He bought Seabiscuit from the Wheatley Stable for a price which now seems to be fixed at $6,800. Under fine handling by Tom Smith, the squat old boy took a new lease on life, began winning on the Coast (and in such a way as to make the new California tracks prosperous), then went on to become the greatest money-winner of all time, and certainly the most beloved horse since Man o' War.

His son, Lin, accidentally kicked up other nuggets for Howard. Lin took a trip to South America after some domestic squall, and was amazed to find that Argentine thoroughbreds could really step. And that they were easy to buy. He picked up a parcel of them, gave his Pop the pick and Pop drew a little number named Kayak II. Later Howard bought Sorteado for a song, whose name escapes me at the moment. As you know, Seabiscuit won more than $400,000, and Kayak paid for himself ten times over by winning the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. Sorteado broke the American record for the mile-and-a-half at Belmont and was headed for greater things when he buckled a leg so badly he had to be destroyed.

But even in that tragic instance, Howard's luck persevered. He had insured Sorteado for about $40,000, and collected. In the space of a couple of years, Howard's bargain-counter chargers won more than $500,000 in purses.

Now the cycle has changed. He picked up Mioland for $15,000 and got more than that back in one race, and Mioland seemed to be improving enough to make him a feared 3-year-old. But recently Mioland broke away from an exercise boy, jumped a fence, pounded down a hard pavement and hurt himself. He may be out for a year.

Seabiscuit is retired. Sorteado's gone and Kayak II may never recover from the illness that had veterinarians hovering around him him night and day earlier this month. Other setbacks for Howard; Fair Knightess, who cost him more than his great money-winners, couldn't win a race for him and hurt herself so badly she had to be retired. Limpo, who was supposed to be the best of the South American colts, can't score. Advocator turned out to be a bleeder, Exhibit flopped, the $10,000, Chanceview couldn't win and Red Pollard, Howard's No. 1 rider, has been on the shelf with bone breaks more often than he has been on the backs of Howard's speeders.

Howard is one horse player who won't die broke. But, like the others (and so far as his racing budget is concerned) it might turn out to be a photo finish after all that early foot.

Bill Terry displayed some excellent psychology—and better handling of a rookie than we gave him credit for—when he benched Nick Witek, who was the most valuable player in the International League last year. Terry planned to let him sit and watch for a while almost from the opening day when Nick suffered a case of buck fever and tossed away Hubbell's game. But he bided his time, waiting for Witek to have a real good day.

Finally, one day Witek had a swell day in the field, and he banged out three hits to raise his batting average to .349—which at that time was the best mark on the team. The next day Terry told him to remain seated, and put in Glossop, who is a better fielder but who has little of Witek's potentialities.

Then Bill explained to a friend, "If I had benched Witek when he was going badly, it would have made him doubt his ability to make good. I benched him after the first good day he had, and I hope he's good and sore at me for doing it. For that'll make him more eager to get back in there and show me up. That's just what I want."

Walter Winchell writes that he was flagged down by Pat Ross, the sports editor, for giving me credit for calling Jack Doyle "the wizard of odds." We used the term as the best available description of the man, saw it first many months ago in Lew Burton's piece and several times since, and hooray for Gus Uhlman for coining it. We'll use it often. In a future column we plan to go out on the limb and call Joe Louis the brown bomber and Jack Dempsey the Manassas mauler, and we want to warn Walter ahead of time that if he gives us credit for coining either of these hardy clinches he'll get a tart note from Charley Ward, of the Detroit Free Press, who dubbed Joe the bomber in 1934, or from Damon Runyan who pronounced Dempsey the mauler in 1917.

New York Homers Beat Nats, 5 to 0

DiMag, Keller Get Circuit Clouts; Lone Nat Makes 2d Base Off Spud Chandler

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

New York, May 27.—Washington pitchers held the Yankees to four hits today, but at this point it would not be wise to jump to conclusions. It seems that two of the Yankee hits were home runs, and it seems also that a Yankee pitcher held Washington to four hits, none of which was a home run. The upshot was that the Nats took a 5-0 beating.

Spurgeon Chandler was the fellow who shut out the Nats. Zeke Bonura was able to distinguish himself among the Nats today by the feat of getting to second base. He was the only Washington athlete who did. A three-and-two count on a Washington hitter was a comparative batting rally for the Nats this afternoon.

The victim of the Nats' futility at bat was Ken Chase, whose clever pitching was unrewarded. The urgent need of a pinch hitter in the eighth inning removed Chase from the game, but to that point he had pitched two-hit ball in a vain attempt for his third straight victory.

Of course, there was the little matter of that hit Chase pitched to Joe DiMaggio back in the second inning. That was a home run into the leftfield stands, DiMaggio's third of the year. And in the third inning he lost his control to the extent of walking four batters in succession and forcing over a run, but he did a valiant job of keeping the Nats in the ball game.

Any notions the Nats had about reclaiming the ball game were thoroughly dispatched in the eighth inning by the twin evils of Bucky Jacobs pitching for Washington and Charley Keller batting for the Yankees. With two pals on base, Keller straightened out one of Jacobs' curves on a quick trip into the rightfield bleachers for a three-run homer, his fifth of the year.

In contrast to the Nats, who achieved nothing more than a single, the Yanks weren't trifling much with singles today. The force of the Yanks' attack slumped when

Gene Larkin, Diffenbaugh Make Grade

Jack Isaacs Cracks Course Record in Taking Second Spot; Gibson Wins Play-Off

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A pair of young golf professionals who broke into the game together, Lewis Worsham, Burning Tree, and Jack Isaacs, of Langley Field, Va., shattered par, course records and predictions to top five National Open qualifiers from the District, Maryland and Virginia yesterday at Manor Country Club.

The bronze medal for medalist went to Worsham, whose afternoon 66 for a course mark stood only until Isaacs finished with a 65. The Burning Tree pro's total for the 36-hole test was 138, 2 under par, and just a stroke ahead of his former boss. Next in line was Gene Larkin, Woodmont, who tacked together a 70 and 71 for a 141, followed by George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood, with 73, 71—144, and Andy Gibson, Baltimore's lone qualifier, with 72, 73—145.

Gibson Undecided

Gibson won a 5 o'clock playoff from Wiffy Cox, who knocked in a 100-yard approach shot on the final hole for a 145 total and then watched Gibson drop a birdie three to gain the fifth place on the first extra hole. However, Gibson has not definitely decided to make the trip and if he foregoes the Open, the seventh place finisher, Leo Walper, will play, as Cox has already declined as first alternate. Walper finished with 72-74, 146, missing a 6-footer on the thirty-sixth hole that would have put him in the playoff.

Thus the ratio of three Washington qualifiers against one from Baltimore and one from Virginia was virtually in exact proportion with the 33 entries, 20 from the District, 7 from Baltimore and 6 from the Old Dominion State.

Harper Disappoints

Biggest disappointment was the failure of Chandler Harper, Virginia Open champion of two weeks, to make the grade. The Portsmouth shotmaker, over whose questioned eligibility the recent Midatlantic P. G. A. was canceled, took 6 on the eighteenth hole in the morning, four shots from the edge of the green, for a 73, and in the afternoon he played a tattoo on the trees and finished with 77 and 150.

Freddie McLeod, the 58-year-old 1908 Open champion from Columbia, hoped for fair weather and a fast course but with the week-end rain the layout was a little too heavy and Freddie finished with 79-81 for 160.

Tied with the fifth lowest score at the end of the morning round, Al Houghton, veteran of many Open championships from Beaver Dam, saw his chances nullified on the first hole of the afternoon round when he and his playing partner, Eddie Stevens, of Manor, were disqualified for starting before their appointed time, and without permission from the officials. Houghton played the round under protest but did not file afte he finished with a second 74 and 148. However, it was very doubtful that the officials would have been overruled.

Ball Ruined on Last 9

Back of Walper in the third alternate's place was Errie Ball, of Charlottesville, Va., with 75-73, 148, ruining his chances with a last nine 39. The only other 150 breakers were Ralph Beach, Baltimore; Buck Worsham, Chevy Chase, and Cliff Spencer, East Potomac, who had a morning 72 but watched his hopes fade away in the form of a big nine on the fourth hole of the second nine. He was hole-high in three but wasted six shots around the green.

At the end of the morning round Cox was low with an easy 69, just an average round for the Congressional master and the fans were speculating on the size of Cox's margin over the field when he hit a bad streak in the afternoon. He missed par in the last four holes of the front nine, three-putting the last two, and added three more bogeys on the return trip before his sensational finish. In the playoff, he hit two good shots to the green and his putt barely trickled off

Reds Beat Bucs Twice, Close in on Dodgers

Cincinnati Wins, 2-1 and 7-3, Over Cellar-Dwellers

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, May 27.—In championship stride, the Cincinnati Reds won twice over the last place Pittsburgh Pirates today, but failed by four percentage points to tie the Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League leadership.

The 2-1 and 7-3 victories gave the Reds 22 games won and 9 lost for .710, while Brooklyn's win over the Philadelphia Phillies boosted the Dodgers' victories to 20 and their losses to 8 for a percentage of .714.

After getting off to an unsteady start in the first game, Mace Brown pitched masterful ball for the Pirates, allowing only two hits in the final eight innings.

Gamble Singles

Lee Gamble, subbing for Ival Goodman, opened the first inning with a single. Frankie Gustine, the Pirate's 20-year-old second baseman, took Linus Frey's slow roller and tried to catch Gamble at second, but his throw to Arky Vaughn was too hot to handle and both runners were safe. Gustine was charged with an error.

Singles by F. McCormick and Ernie Lombardi scored two runs, all the Reds needed to win. Leo Handley doubled in the fifth and scored the only Pittsburgh run with two out when Vaughan singled.

Joe Beggs relieved Whitey Moore on the mound for the Reds in the fifth and held the Pirates to two hits thereafter. He got credit for the victory.

Turner Wins

Brooklyn Blanks Phils, 6-0, Behind Wyatt's 4-Hitter

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 27.—The durable Dodgers shut out the Philadelphia Phillies, 6 to 0, today on the four-hit hurling of Whitlow Wyatt and maintained a slender percentage margin at the top of the National League, although they dropped half a game behind the Cincinnati Reds in won-lost computation.

The Dodgers now have won 20 and lost 8 for .714, and the Reds 22 and 9 for .710.

Until then the game was a pitching duel and the only run a third-inning bite on two singles and two flies. But in the fifth the Dodgers put together five consecutive hits off the Philly southpaw for three runs and in the seventh scored two more with a single and two doubles off Frank Hoerst.

Tigers Trim Tribe Behind Newsom, 6-1

Greenberg's Homer In 8th Features Floodlight Game

By International News Service

Cleveland, May 27.—The Tigers tonight coasted to a 6-1 victory over the Indians behind the six-hit pitching of Buck Newsom.

The Indians were off to an early lead, tallying their only run of the game in the second, but the Tigers quickly tied the count at 1-all in the third and then punched out two in the fourth, one in the eighth and two in the ninth.

Hank Greenberg featured the attack with a home run in the eighth.

The Tiger batters pounded the offerings of Pitchers Naymick, Eisenstat and Humphries for a total of 10 hits. Naymick, the starting pitcher, was charged with the loss.

First Victory In 8 Games With Rivals

Cuccinello Slams Two Doubles and Two Singles as Bees Get 13 Hits

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 27.—The lowly Bees, who hadn't beaten the New York Giants in seven tries this spring, accomplished the trick easily today, 7 to 1, on a four-hit pitching performance by Bill Posedel and a 13-hit offensive.

Tony Cuccinello, back at third base for the Bees, had a perfect day at the plate with two doubles and two singles to lead the attack. He made one of three singles that figured in two runs in the second and climaxed a four-hit, three-run third inning with a double that brought home two of the tallies. He opened the sixth with another single and scored one of Boston's two runs in that frame.

The victory was Posedel's third against three defeats and the first loss for Bill Lohrman, who had beaten the Bees twice previously. The Giants' only run came in the fourth on a walk and Mel Ott's double.

Chisox Regain Victory Trail, Beat Browns

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 27.—The Chicago White Sox, whose winning streak had been interrupted by a loss to Detroit Saturday, regained their victorious ways—and fourth place—by defeating the St. Louis Browns today, 7 to 5, behind the veteran Ted Lyons.

Lyons and Bob Kennedy, the Sox third baseman, each got three hits, and both came through in the sixth inning when Chicago ganged up to score four runs and drive Jack Kramer from the box. Taft Wright's single with the bases loaded tallied two of the runs.

The Browns threatened in the seventh inning when Joe Grace came in as a pinch-hitter and homered with a man on base. Walter Judnich followed with a triple and scored on an infield out.

Ghecas Named Captain of G. U. '41 Baseball Club

Twenty-one-year-old Lou Ghecas, of Danbury, Conn., one of the best outfielders in the District college ranks, yesterday was named to captain Georgetown University's 1941 nine.

Ghecas, a leading star on undefeated Hoya football teams in 1938 and 1939, played shortstop and outfield the past season and compiled a batting average of .362 in pacing Joe Judge's diamonders to a highly successful season. Not an exceptionally hard hitter, Ghecas hit often enough to finish third among District college batsmen, yielding only to teammate Johnny Schmitt and Hugh Keller, of Maryland, who had marks of .420 and 392 respectively.

Giants Sign 2 Tackles For 1940 Grid Season

New York, May 27 (AP).—The New York football Giants today announced the signing of two new tackles—Jack Sanders, of Southern Methodist, and Gilford Dugan, of the University of Oklahoma. Both were on the Giant's 1939 negotiation list but had another year of college competition left.

Red Sox, Noland Play

Cubs Open Lengthy Home Stand; Leiber, Herman, Galan Star

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs opened a 14-game home stand today with a 7-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals behind the seven-hit pitching of Claude Passeau.

The game, played in intermittent showers, was Passeau's third victory as against four defeats. Bob Bowman made his first start of the season and was touched for seven hits and four runs in six innings. He has now lost three games.

HUTCHINSON

Form Prevails In Net Play

Form generally ran true yesterday in the first round of the District of Columbia area qualifying tournament for the national scholastic tennis championships at Merion Club, July 1 to 6.

The feature engagement of the day, between Farrington, of Roosevelt, and Marl Mair, of Central, was called because of rain after Farrington had captured the first set, 9—7, and trailed, 3—4, in the second. They will resume from that point at 3:30 today, at which time many second round matches will be held.

FIRST ROUND—Martin (W. W.) defeated G. Holland (Bethesda-Chevy Chase), 6—3, 6—1; Waits (Rockville) defeated Wagner (Central), 6—1, 6—0; Dulcan (Friends) defeated Pratt (Leland), 6—3, 6—2; Hegstrom (Eastern) defeated Alford (Landon) by default; Fisher (Roosevelt) defeated Piola (Devitt) by default; Farrington (Roosevelt) was leading Mair (Central), 9—7, 3—4, when rain postponed match. They will resume from that point.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS

Pawnees Lose, 11-9, To Aztec Rally

After being shut out for three periods last night, the Chicago Aztecs flashed back with a fine uphill fight to nose out the Washington Pawnees in the seventh game of their Roller Derby series at Riverside Stadium, 11 to 9.

A ladies' night crowd of 2,800 saw Jack Hatcher, Chicago's speed merchant, spark his team to victory with a total of six points. The teams entered the "open house" period deadlocked at 8-8, whereupon Norma Farrell and Hatcher scored the determining three points.

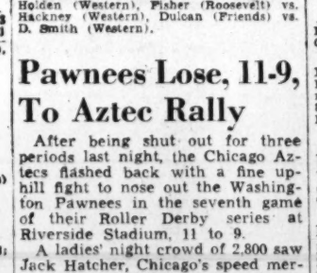
Kuntz, of G. U. Prep, Wins Prep Net Title

Mary Kuntz made it a clean sweep for Georgetown Prep yesterday in the Preparatory School Tennis League by winning the individual tournament championship over Landon School's Krendall Alford, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3, in finals at Prep.

The Prep netmen won the team play in the annual league tournament.

Kid Cocoa Wins

Baltimore, May 27 (AP).—Louis (Kid) Cocoa, Puerto Rican welterweight, smashed over hard rights to the jaw early in the second round tonight to knock out Billy White, Baltimore Negro. It was Cocoa's second victory over White, who has tasted defeat only at the hands of the Puerto Rican.



Briarley Wins Baseball Title

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., May 27.—One-hit pitching and rain, which called the game at the end of the fifth inning, sent Charlotte Hall down to defeat and gave Briarley the Maryland State Military School championship. The score was 11 to 1.

Orest (Smokey) Intindola's excellent pitching was the outstanding factor of the game. Both teams played errorless ball. Intindola, in his one trip to the plate, came through with a two-base hit. He also scored three of his team's runs. It was Briarley's second victory in three games over the Charlotte Hall nine.

Paul Riganti 25th to Enter 500-Mile Race

Argentine Driver Qualifies for 28th Indianapolis Classic

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—Climaxing three weeks of preparation, Raul Riganti, of Buenos Aires, today qualified for the twenty-eighth annual 500-mile race next Thursday.

The veteran Argentine pilot, a past master at road racing and "mountain circuit" events, turned the four required laps around the 2½-mile oval at an average speed of 121.827 miles an hour. He was the twenty-fifth driver to qualify for the Memorial Day classic.

"I feel entirely satisfied with the qualification I just made," he said as he stepped out of his eight-cylinder Italian-built Maserati. "The car handles beautifully," Riganti added; "there was no trouble at all with the steering."

First Was Fastest

Riganti's entourage of South American friends and Buenos Aires newspapermen also were elated with his success, and his relief driver, Osvald Parmigiani, let off steam by taking the streamlined yellow and blue mount out for a half-dozen practice spins.

The Argentinian's fastest qualifying lap was his first when he circled the oval at 122.800 miles an hour. From then on his speed dropped slightly. The second was 122.067 miles an hour, the third 121.507 and the fourth 120.951. His elapsed time for the four laps was 4:55:50.

Dodgers Trade Cullenbine for Joe Gallagher

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 27.—Joe Gallagher, husky outfielder, was traded by the St. Louis Browns today to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Roy Cullenbine, the outfielder who cost them $25,000.

Cullenbine was one of the Detroit players declared free agents by Commissioner K. M. Landis last year, and the Dodgers signed him after outbidding several other clubs.

The Browns obtained Gallagher from the New York Yankees. He had played with their Newark and Kansas City farm clubs.

The latest averages show Gallagher, a right-handed hitter, is batting .279, while Cullenbine, a switch-hitter, is at the low mark of .180. He started brilliantly for the Dodgers but fell into a slump and has been on the bench recently.

The Cardinals announced Gene Lillard, right-handed pitcher, had been optioned to Rochester of the International League. A converted infielder, he was obtained in a winter deal with the Chicago Cubs and was sent to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League.

Jannazzo Joins Phil Furr At N. J. Camp

Izzy Jannazzo, the lad who handed Steve Mamakos such a scientific thrashing in Steve's last local fight, yesterday joined the list of advisers to Phil Furr, Washington welterweight now in training at Mme. Bey's New Jersey camp for a 12-round date with Mamakos Monday night in Griffith Stadium.

Furr has been working out with Jannazzo and Frankie Cavanna, who holds a knockout victory over Milt Aron, No. 1 welterweight, and later this week expects to get in a bit of sparring with Henry Armstrong, welter champion. Armstrong is working out at Mme. Bey's for his date with Lew Jenkins, New York's lightweight champion.

Two "Titles" at Stake

Local matchmakers have been trying to bring Mamakos and Furr together for years, but because of general ill feeling managers have blocked such a move. Because of its local drawing power, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez was happily predicting a $5,000 gate yesterday.

Show a "Natural"

As far as local fans are concerned, the show is a "natural," and if it doesn't draw Promoter Joe Turner might as well give up any ideas of making money off the home-town fighters.

If Furr wins, he'll get a shot at Cocoa Kid, second-ranking welterweight, in the near future here. A Mamakos victory will bring Bill McDowell, two-time conqueror of Furr here, on the run to meet Mamakos in the ball park.

Both boys will be rated on a fairly even basis for the affair. Mamakos defeated Abrams and lost to Kenny LaSalle. Furr lost to Abrams and defeated LaSalle. Both boys have been beaten by Jannazzo. Favoring Mamakos' side, however, is the $750 guarantee Turner and Menendez put up to induce him to step into the same ring with Furr.

Bacigalupi Will Sub On Wrestling Card

Sailor Ed Franer, on duty at Naval Hospital, will wrestle Mickey Ames instead of Luigi Bacigalupi on Thursday night's double feature card at Turner's Arena.

Luigi will take on Zim Zam Zum, incidentally. The main dramatic offerings bring together Gino Martinelli and the Irish Angel, and Karol Krauser and Pat Corrigan.

Spring Season Leaves Race Picture in State of Confusion

What Country Needs Is Horse That Can Win Consistently

By the Associated Press

New York, May 27.—What this country seems to need, in addition to more airplanes, is a "big name" race hoss that can run two races alike, consecutively!

The spring racing leaves us with a topsy-turvy lot of alleged leaders in the 3-year-olds and upward thoroughbred ranks.

Eight Thirty, Third Degree, Andy K., Gallahadion, Pictor, Calory, Straight Lead, Dit and—well, he started off the season all right, but—Bimelech!

Eight Thirty won the Toboggan Handicap of 6 furlongs at Belmont in 1:09 4-5. Considered a real rival for Johnstown and Challedon in the 3-year-old division last summer, he went wrong, but was thought to be ready to reestablish himself. Then he wilted in the Metropolitan Mile last Saturday.

All Is Confusion

Third Degree, held at prohibitive short odds in a 6-furlong Belmont Park dash, May 18, tired and wound up third. Saturday, the Greentree colt won the Metropolitan in 1:35 2-5—one of the fastest 8 furlongs in turf history.

Andy K. won his first start as a 3-year-old this spring, then proceeded to take drubbings in the Chesapeake, Wood and Preakness. So what? So suddenly he emerged from his slump last Friday and romped to a smashing success in the Peter Pan Handicap.

Pictor won the Chesapeake and became a Kentucky Derby menace. But the pride of Maryland has failed to run back to his promising early-season flash.

Experts Confounded

Calory did not seem close to his fine juvenile form when he burned up tons of money this spring, but he regained his lost speed to win on a later afternoon. Dit, the Wood winner, tried hard in the Derby and Preakness, but went back instead of forward. Mioland injured himself right out of the picture after the spring classics.

Straight Lead, a $41,800 money gleaner as a 2-year-old last year, took a pair of bad lickings to start the 1940 season at Jamaica. Then what? He pops down in front at Belmont galloping off from such once highly regarded oat absorbers as Victory Morn and Ekwanok.

Bethesda Nine Beats Landon, Ends Season

Faris Mirhige Fans 11 as Countymen Win Ninth Game, 3-2

Faris Mirhige fanned 11 Landon batters as Bethesda closed its season with a 3-2 victory over the prep team yesterday at Garrett Park. The victory gave the winners nine victories against six defeats and two ties for the season.

Sager started for the losers and walked Miller, Hashagen singled and Cremins tripled. Paul Baker came in from third base and took over the mound duties and held the Bethesdans to five hits, although tagged for the winnin run in the fifth.

Cameo, Brewers To Play 'Rubber'

Cameo Furniture and Heurich Brewers, tied for first place in The Washington Post-Industrial Baseball League, will play the rubber game of their series today at 5 p. m. on the West Ellipse. Each team has won five and lost one and they stand 1—1 in previous games.

Otis Printz or Frank Deavers will be on the mound for the furniture nine, with Jimmie Schwab coaching. Ed Coliflower will start for the Brewers and Fee Collier will catch.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Distribution of Man of the Month points today is comparatively simple on the basis of yesterday's performance by the Nats at Yankee Stadium. Only two fellows, Ken Chase and Zeke Bonura, merit points.

To Chase, ten points, because he kept the Nats in the ball game by pitching two-hit ball and allowing only two runs before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

To Bonura, four points, because he singled to start a potential rally in the eighth, and otherwise hit the ball hard all afternoon.. The totals:

Inter-High Playoffs for Baseball Title Will Start Today

Central Nine, Western Play At Stadium

2 Remaining Games Of Series Schedule Canceled as They Made No Difference

By Bill Burnett

With the four berths in the inter-high championship round robin settled in last Friday's games, public school officials yesterday decided to dispense with the two remaining games on the schedule and launch title hostilities today.

Central and Western, then, will come to grips in the first game of the play-off at Griffith Stadium at 3:30. Originally set at Western's diamond after rain had forced its postponement on April 12, the regularly scheduled game will now determine one opponent for the title clash next Tuesday at Anacostia field, with the crown at stake.

The other championship team will be decided in a battle tomorrow at Anacostia between Eastern and McKinley Tech. Though it will have no bearing on the championship race, Anacostia and Roosevelt nines will meet today at Roosevelt to complete their seasons. Last place in the final standings is all that hinges on the outcome.

The new set-up brings to a head the championship tournament which was tentatively set for June 3, 4 and 7. It also does away with the necessity of Central and Western meeting twice in two weeks when nothing would be at stake in the first set-to. Both Eastern and Tech contingents will have had four days' rest since their last games before entering tomorrow's tourney game.

Central, of course, will be heavily favored against the Red Raiders today. It has romped through five interhigh games with as many victories. Its closest approach to defeat was a 6-5 decision over Roosevelt.

As defending champions, the Vikings have a further incentive to better Western. It was the Raider football team which lifted Centrals' grid title last fall.

Barring last-minute shifts, Central's starting battery will be Billy Fisher on the mound and Zello Lagos behind the plate. Western's crucial outing will be in the hands of Southpaw Carmel Nance, who figured in all the teams' triumph's as it finished third in the standings. Young Teddy Bright will be handling the backstop job.

Yanks Blank Nats, 5-0, on 2 Home Runs

Chandler Allows Griffs Four Hits; Keller, DiMag Star

Bill Knickerbocker inserted a single into the eighth inning proceedings, but every other Yankee blow was for extra bases.

Chandler was a lucky guy to gain a shutout triumph, at that. In the first inning the Nats made a brave bid to score, but George Selkirk came to the rescue of the Yankee pitcher. George Case greeted Chandler with a hit to start the game and he started a dash for home when Buddy Lewis walloped a long drive into left center. Selkirk raced behind DiMaggio for a spectacular gloved-hand catch of the ball and Case was doubled up at first base.

DiMaggio's homer put the Yanks in a 1-0 lead in the second inning and in the third they scored without the aid of a hit when Chase walked Chandler, Crosetti, Knickerbocker and Keller so fast it made your head swim. Buddy Lewis pulled him out of the inning by starting a clever double play on DiMaggio's hot grounder with the bases still loaded.

The only hit Chase allowed besides DiMaggio's homer was Knickerbocker's double in the sixth, but DiMaggio again obliged him by hitting into a double play.

Jacobs took charge in the eighth and got two out before sealing the Nats' fate. He walked Crosetti, pitched a single to Knickerbocker and then served the home-run ball to Keller.

Johnny Welaj singled with two out in the fourth to no good purpose, and the Nats didn't get another hit from Chandler until the eighth, when Bonura singled and started what appeared to be a productive rally with the Nats trailing only 2-0.

Jimmy Bloodworth struck out in this emergency, but Sammy West, batting for Pofahl, drew Chandler's only pass of the game to put the tying run on base. But West was wasting his time. Rick Ferrell and Jake Early obliged Chandler with a pair of fly balls to Selkirk.

Lincoln Fields Double Pays $415

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Two long shots won the second and third races at Lincoln Fields today, producing a daily double payoff of $415 on the second day of the meeting.

Clyde Trout's Barbara S. won the the second race, paying $19.40 to win. Air Play, owned by Lonnie Copenhaver, took the third event, paying $25.

Our Haven finished first in the fifth race, a 6-furlong dash for 4-year-olds and up. New Discovery was second and Wild Pigeon third. Our Haven paid $12.20, $6.80 annd $4.60.

Sandy Sanford, Alabama Star, Joins Redskins

Field-Goal Artist To Further Strengthen 1940 Pro Eleven

One of the Nation's leading college field goal kickers of 1939 became a member of the Washington Redskins yesterday when Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, University of Alabama end, sent his 1940 contract to the 'Skins office.

As a sophomore in 1937 Sanford almost literally lifted Alabama into the Rose Bowl with his talented right foot. He booted one goal to break a deadlock and defeat Tulane, 9-6, with two minutes of play remaining, and when called on in the season's finale against Vanderbilt, with only seconds to go, kicked another from an extremely difficult angle to give the Tide a 9-6 victory. In the Rose Bowl, 1938, Alabama was defeated by California, 13-0.

Sanford suffered a broken leg in the fall of 1938 and did not play again until last season, when he regained his form and produced a much-needed extra point to enable 'Bama to win over Fordham, 7 to 6. In a special exhibition preceding the North-South game at Montgomery, Ala., after close of the season, he outshone "Bo" Russell, sensational rookie tackle who did most of the Redskins' placement-kicking last year. He does the 100 in 10 flat, incidentally.

Miss Rood Beats Devon Show Field

Devon, Pa., May 27 (AP).—Miss Deborah C. Wood, of Wilmington, Del., riding his gray gelding, Silver Clay, beat down stiff competition to win from a large field of green hunters today at the opening of the six-day Devon Horse Show, America's most famous outdoor tanbark classic.

Second place went to Miss Patricia du Pont, of Montchamin, Del., riding her bay mare, First Call. Third place was won by Palm Springs, entry of the Springsbury Farms of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh, of Berryville, Va. More thna 25 green hunters competed in the event.

Worsham Tops D. C. Qualifiers For Nat'l Open

Burning Tree Pro Has 138; Isaacs Second With 139

After Worsham played the first five holes in the morning, qualifying was probably furthest from his mind as he was a total of four over par and playing sloppily. The four on the fifth was his last bogey of the round, however, as he pulled himself together and dropped eight foot birdie putts on 10 and 15 and finished with a 72.

In the post-lunch round, the 22-year-old professional started with a birdie, drove out of bounds on the fourth for a six but dropped a 12-footer on seven for a birdie and was out in 34. On the back nine he really went to work. He dropped birdie putts on 8-20 and 4 feet and on the twelfth chipped in the cup from off the green. He missed a short one on the sixteenth, three-putted the seventeenth and rimmed the hope on the eighteenth for his 66.

He accepted course record congratulations, only until Isaacs came in with a great 65 for a new mark. The Langley Field pro, who led the Richmond qualifiers in 1936, knocked the ball within 6 feet of the cup hole after hole and canned seven of the putts for birdies. He took five on the second and five on the eighteenth, trapping his second shot.

Larkin showed a complete disregard for the woods, ditches and other hazards of the tightly bound first nine as he played it each time in 33 strokes, two under par, with five birdies and a single bogey.

He started back with par on 19-11-12 each time but in the a. m. finished with one-over par on the last two holes and in the afternoon, with a qualifying place assured unless he broke an arm or leg, he played easily and took three putts on three of the last six holes for a 71 to his previous 70. The Woodmont mentor was the last player out all day but his scoring was so low his place was virtually reserved.

Ffubs Wedge Shot

Diffenbaugh, with a birdie, bogey and 12 pars for the first 13 holes, scrambled to a six on the par four fourteenth to save his chances in the morning. Hole high on the fourteenth in two, he flubbed a wedge shot, then hit one in the "belly" and knocked it over the green in the woods. He chipped back short and when it looked as though he would take seven or eight he holed an approach shot for the six. He finished with 75 in the morning.

On his second trip, the Kenwood professional parred the first six holes and dropped 7 and 15 foot putts on the seventh and ninth, to go out in 33. The power of suggestion by a well meaning galleryite cost George a big six on the back nine. When he was about to shoot a spectator said loudly, "The man before George knocked one in the woods." George followed suit, but was in easily with his 71-73.

Gibson went out in the afternoon just to duplicate his 72, but, according to the Scotchman, "I loafed on the back nine and found myself in the play-off."

Little Leads Nation's Qualifiers

Ben Hogan Misses; Worsham's Total 3d Lowest in Country

By the Associated Press

New York, May 27.—William Lawson Little, jr., former "grand-slam" amateur golf champion of the United States and Great Britain, came into his own as a professional today as 139 hardy survivors of a field of more than 1,100 earned starting places in the 1940 National Open Golf championship.

He "belongs" when he led the entire field in the 25 sectional qualifying tests for the open with an amazing 36-hole score of 134.

Little put together rounds of 65 and 69 over the difficult No. 4 and No. 1 courses at Chicago's Olympia Fields Club to show the way for the largest field to attempt to qualify in any of the 25 districts. His 65 was a course record and he cut eight strokes off par for the two rounds. He was three strokes better than the next-best scorers among the 1,132 starters. Leonard Dodson, who led the Kansas City district qualifiers, shot 68-69—137. Lloyd Mangrum, second at Chicago, and Lewis E. Worsham, leader at Washington, D. C., shot 138.s.

Little's feat was all the more remarkable when it is considered that some of golf's most famous figures couldn't make the qualifying grade at all. With the field for the open at Cleveland, June 6-8, limited to 170 and with 31 players exempted from the sectional qualifying, only 139 places were left to be decided today.

Among those who failed to qualify were Ben Hogan, sensation of the winter "swing" who earned only an alternate's berth in the big New York district where Al Brosch led the way with 140. Hogan was just ten strokes behind. Willie Macfarlane, 1925 open champion, Willie Turnesa, 1938 amateur champion, and Ray Billows, last year's amateur runner-up, also missed out in New York.

Chick Evans, open and amateur champion in 1916, and Jock Hutchison, jr., British open champion in 1921, were among the prominent players who missed out at Chicago. Others included Al Krueger, Bill Mehlhorn and amateur Art Doering. Incidentally, Jock Hutchison jr., made the grade.

Billy Burke, winner of the Open in 1931, failed to get by at Cleveland, another big district, but two of golf's "grand old men" were successful. Gene Sarazen, who had to play through for the first time since 1920, and Walter Hagen both shot creditable scores. Johnny Goodman, Tony Manero, Johnny Farrell and Sam Parks, jr., all former Open winners, qualified easily. Goodman, also a former amateur champion, was five under par with a 138 at Omaha.

Two of Argentinas three-man, delegation, Martin Pose and Aurelio Castanon, came through with 145 scores at New York, but Enrique Bertolino missed out. At Chicago Jim Ferrier, Open and Amateur champion of Australia, came in with the same score.

Exempted from today's sectional tests because they placed in the low 30 at last years' Open were Champion Byron Nelson, Craig Wood, who lost to him in a title playoff; Marvin (Bud) Ward, 1938 Amateur champion; Sam Snead, John Bulla, Ralph Guldahl, Dick Metz, Ky Laffoon, Jug McSpaden, Paul Runyan, Harry Cooper, Ed Dudley, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Sam Byrd, Olin Dutra, Clayton Heafner, Amateur Wilford Wehrle, Jimmy Hines, John E. Rogers, Tommy Armour, Jimmy Demaret, Johnny Revolta, Bobby Cruickshank, Jim Foulis, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Mat Kowal, Victor Ghezzi, Ed Oliver and Felix Serafin. Waldo Crowder, the pro at Cleveland's Canterbury Club, where the big tournament will be played, also was exempt.

Blablah, Carrying $5.60 Price, Wins at Charles Town

Red Wrack Runs Second, Caidon Third

Jockey PalumboRides Victor in Baltimore Purse; $72.60 Shot Comes Home

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 27.—The combination of O. S. Jennings' Blablah and Jockey Sammy Palumbo proved too much for the opposition today and bounced home by a length in the Baltimore Sun Purse, featuring the wash day program at this turf point. Blablah, in turning in her second straight victory here and her fourth success of the year, proved the favorite with the crowd and paid a $5.60 mutuel.

Mrs. M. Knieriem's Red Wrack was second and Jane Waugh's Caidon was third in the field of seven that competed over the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs. Although the weather overhead was ideal, the track was deep and heavy as the result of recent rain, and Blablah clocked in a mediocre 1:21 1-5, an even six seconds above the track record.

Among the defeated was P. H. Falconer's Roman Boy. The one-time sprint champion of these parts was burdened with 120 pounds and stopped badly after Jockey R. Tilden tried to keep him up with Blablah's pace. He wound up in last position. Blablah took the lead in the opening jumps, saved ground and was not seriously threatened, although Red Wrack saved much ground and might have been closer had not he lugged in through the final sixteenth.

A blanket finish, one of the closest of the meeting, brought victory to Alice Dodge, a $72.60 shot, ridden by Jockey George Witmer. The lightweight rider, who was married last week, pushed the filly along with a bold rush and she finished a head in front of a dead heat for second money involving Roving Eye and Notoriety.

Know Your Dogs—

No. 76 of a Series

By George Berner

THE NEWFOUNDLAND

Although his ancestry is undetermined, it is known that he originated in Newfoundland, where he has been used for centuries as a work dog. He pulls the fisherman's heavy net carts and is sometimes packed much the same as a horse. He is probably the strongest swimmer of all dogs and many are the stories told of his rescue work in the water.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Jockey Pappy Witmer, bridegroom of last week, was seen yesterday morning working out horses. Now that he has two mouths to feed instead of one it seems he's getting ambitious for it has been some time since he has been around the track during training hours. More power to him. Tiger Finkelstein, the one-man telegraph office, bought a bag of chickens and departed for Delaware Park. Frank J. T. Brooke, a breeder of thoroughbred horses for a number of years, is a member of the State racing commission. He is a resident of Charles Town. Brother Bradley and his fellow stewards have the jockeys here toeing the mark. Reprimands to riders have been few and far between simply because the saddle artists know that the rough stuff is out. Jockey Willie Obert, grand old man of the saddle, came back after two spills. Willie's wife is a trained nurse and he had given her a lot of opportunity to show her skill. Jockeys F. Munoz and H. Lauch left for Wheeling to get into action during the meeting at that point. Several other riders left here over the last week-end. Owner and Trainer Marshall A. Smith arrived from Narragansett Park with his Wahcoo and Mugal. Wahcoo won two races up there. By coincidence, Smith arrived on the same day that a horse named Marshall A. ran in the first race. Cecil McHugh, that pitcher I was trying to peddle to some Washington sandlot club, fanned nine and allowed two hits in a game at Leesburg last Sunday. Brother Boo got three hits for three. The Bennings Stable sends Chief Evergreen to the post today. He should like the longer route and will be in there knocking. If he don't win what will you bid for him? Apprentice Jockey C. Walters is now under contract to Cy Butler. Steward Bradley has appointed Gregg Johnson to take charge of the track collection for the Red Cross. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Adriatic may be the right one in the day's opener. Appears capable of carrying 114 pounds to victory. Stubbs was a good one once, but the old pinning ain't what it used to be. However, a flash of the old form would be embarrassing to the opposition. Dabs has shown some early foot and could upset the cart.

Second race—Secreta has been showing fair form and appears ready for a set of brackets in this field. Danzig is a good juvenile and will not be long in the maiden ranks. However, he must beat the top one. Butcher Boy for the minor award.

Third race—Kitty's Rival led all the way against somewhat similar company in a recent test. Needs only the same hustling ride. Bubbleworth won that last and is dangerous. Sour Cherry might threaten if taken off the also eligible list.

Fourth race—Brainchild can't be half as bad as that last, and I'm going right back to this one. However, I want more energetic handling. Waugh Scout showed excellent form in winning here and is a threat. Tavern belongs with this kind.

Fifth race—Lena Girl finished close up under green handling in her recent test. With a change of riders this one will be right there, if not the winner. Cut Emerald turned on the heat to win and then came back against too much speed. Call It for part of the pay.

Sixth race—Wayriel is moving up, but has shown too much to be placed anywhere except on top of this heap. Molasses Julia's last was encouraging and she is dangerous. Connamista had a rough trip recently.

Seventh race—Goodwine, with intelligent handling, can whip a field of this brand. The rail post position should help. Kissin Kid, a winner here, is going to be prominent. Star On dr

Auto Plants Ready to Meet Defense Needs

Military Supplies Called Possible In 'Twinkling of Eye'

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 27.—A mass production facility unequaled anywhere is available in the automobile plants for armament manufacture, says Ward's Automotive Reports in its current issue.

"Painstaking survey of the present situation," says the trade publication, "indicates that the widespread worry over tooling for volume output of airplane engines may be somewhat over done; that our ability to produce motorized equipment is available almost in a twinkling, and that the stage for the transition from industrial to armament output has been fairly well developed."

The survey, it adds, emphasized these facts:

About 90 days is needed to clear toolmakers from their present jobs, and then a small army of craftsmen can be transferred to aviation, tank, truck and ordnance tooling.

Bottlenecks in plane output lie in individual parts of engines, rather than in complete units.

"Insofar as production of military trucks is concerned," Ward's says, "enough educational work of this sort has been done to grease the lines for true volume output. Some 12,000 scout cars, general utility trucks, ambulances and reconnaissance vehicles have been made for the Army in recent months. They have proved very satisfactory and War Department specifications for these are understood to be fairly complete now.

Holiday Brings Decline

Forecasing a drop in car and truck production this week to around 60,000 units because of the Memorial Day holiday and the likelihood that most plants will remain closed on Friday, Ward's speculates on the possibility of a production rise before the conclusion of the current model year.

"There are interesting stirrings below the scene in the planning departments of the automobile companies," it says. "Some of these came to the surface in decisions to . . . augment operations despite the fact that field stocks are high and the end of the model year near.

"One conclusion that can be drawn is that the automobile makers are seizing time by the forelock to turn out cars while the opportunity is clear."

While asserting that the possibility of Government requirements interferring with 1941 model presentation is a small lone, Ward's says:

"At least one prominent firm in the industry has made wholesale shifts in its planning for 1941 models. This company had originally intended widespread changes in models for 1941. Now, as a result of shortage of toolmakers accruing from their heavy hiring by aircraft and aircraft auxiliary plants, the bulk of these plans have been abandoned. Interchangeability of models of this company, seen as abandoned a few weeks back, has been reinstated by necessity through 75 per cent of the forthcoming lines; the remaining 25 per cent will not reflect much change from current models."

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler
A Special Correspondent.

Investors Are Wary, Lacking a Decisive Turn in Battle for Channel, but List Moves Up Although Trading Is Moderate

New York, May 27.—The stock market improved nearly three-quarters of a point on the average in moderate trading today, without the benefit of better news from abroad.

Investors are not inclined to get too far out on a limb on either side of the tree and their trading today reflected a hesitant attitude, awaiting a more definite decision in Flanders.

Aside from the war, other factors affecting prices include the better tone of business—aided by war orders and the efforts of this country to bring its Army, Navy and air force up to effective fighting strength—and also the improved technical position of the markets themselves after the recent sharp decline.

Aviations Are Active

Aviations were more prominent on the tape today than any other division and they also led in point of strength, although the situation within this industry is more mixed up by uncertainty over the plans of the Federal Government than any other.

At the recent meeting of executives of leading aviation companies in Washington there was no sign of a Federal program. After hearing a speech of welcome, a few minutes of idle talk and then being called back to have their picture taken as they were about to leave the room, the executives were excused to go back to their jobs.

Investors appear to be paying more attention to the aviation securities than to others despite such evidence of muddling with the defense program. They assume that while the program is largely a blueprint matter, if that much, there will yet come a time when orders rather than politics and publicity will come out of Washington.

Curtiss-Wright Off

The most active aviations today included Curtiss-Wright, off a fraction; North American and Aviation Corporation, unchanged, and Lockheed and Boeing, up fractions. Less active but strong members of the group included United Aircraft, up a point, which announced plans to increase its productive capacity, Grumman, Sperry & Wright Aero.

Steels were strong and were supported by the expected increase in the operating rate for this week, which is now at its best since the close of January. United States Steel closed up 1⅝, Bethlehem 1¾, and Republic, a fraction.

Metals joined with the other war stocks to move higher. Higher prices for scrap copper and the prospect of increased demand influenced buying. American Smelting was up 2¼. Kennecott about a point, and Anaconda a major fraction.

Listed Bonds Are Firm

Listed bonds were firm, save for fresh unsettlement in various foreign dollar issues. Canadian obligations broke sharply, and some Latin-Americans were off as traders wondered where the markets for products might be found hereafter. United States Treasury issues were firm, however, while corporate bonds moved upward with few exceptions. Turnover was $3,840,000 indicating an increasing tendency to await developments.

Australians were steady to firm. German bonds attracted more buying, and the upswing in Scandinavian and Belgian issues continued. Italians were weak on renewed reports that Italy soon may take a hand in the European slaughter. Argentines were marked upward in the Latin-American department, but there were only a few other firm spots.

Treasury bonds showed gains to ¼ point in the formal trading. The improved sentiment about speculative American securities was reflected in better levels for cheap railroad and other bonds.

Exchange Seat Sells At 25-Year Low

New York, May 27 (AP).—Bearing the lowest price tag in 25 years arrangements were made today for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock Exchange for $43,000. No lower price has been paid for a seat on the big trading floor since 1915, when one changed hands for $38,000.

K. C. S. Line Elects

New York, May 27 (AP).—Two new directors, Elbert G. Bennett, of Ogden, Utah, and Paul H. Saunders, of New Orleans, were added to the board of the Kansas City Southern Railway Co. at a meeting today.

Demand Lifts Cotton 11 to 16 On Trade Buying

By the Associated Press

New York, May 27.—Cotton futures advanced 11 to 16 points today on demand which largely reflected last week's sharp advance in Southern spot markets and the current limited supply of "free" cotton.

Trade and mill accounts bought vigorously and shorts covered, principally in July. Later deliveries attracted considerable outside support.

Range follows:

SEC Is Upheld In Corporate Debt Policies

Supreme Court Finds Reorganization Rule Protects Investors

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court upheld yesterday a contention by the Securities Commission that a corporation with securities held by the public may readjust its indebtedness only under a section of the Federal Bankruptcy Act which "provides detailed safeguards designed to protect the interests of public investors."

Justice Stone delivered the decision that applied specifically to proceedings instituted in the Southern New York Federal District Court by the United States Realty & Investment Co., of New York City.

The proceedings were brought under another section which the Securities Commission said "provides merely a rudimentary system of creditor control designed for the corporation which has only trade and commercial creditors."

The district court denied a commission motion to dismiss the proceedings and the decision was affirmed by the Federal Circuit Court at New York.

Appealing to the Supreme Court from the circuit court, the SEC said such a ruling would "render it impotent in a large class of cases to perform the duty intrusted to it by Congress of protecting investors in corporate reorganization proceedings."

The company said it was solvent, with assets of $7,076,515 and liabilities of $5,476,500 as of June 1, 1939. The commission said the company had "suffered a net loss" since 1936.

Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Roberts and McReynolds dissented. Justice Douglas, former SEC chairman, did not participate.

Newport News Shipyard Has Peak at Work

J. B. WOODWARD, Jr.

Employment at the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.'s plant at Newport News, Va., has reached a 20-year peak of 10,450 men, J. B. Woodward, jr., general manager, announced yesterday. This is an increase of approximately 2,550 over a year ago and is the largest since July, 1920, when 11,000 men were on the pay roll.

Ship construction work in progress is the largest in two decades and an extra shipway is being rebuilt to supplement the seven now in use. In all, the company has under construction or under contract to be constructed 15 vessels with contract prices totaling about $135,000,000 and upon which work equivalent to approximately $100,000,000 remains to be done.

Among these are 13 merchant vessels aggregating 137,000 gross tons and including 7 combination passenger-cargo ships of the C-3 type of the United States Maritime Commission, 2 national-defense tankers for the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, 2 cargo vessels for the Matson Navigation Co. and one cargo ship for the International Freighting Corporation. Also included is the S. S. America, which is the largest passenger vessel ever to be built in the United States and is in the final stages of construction.

In addition to the merchant vessels, two capital ships are being built for the United States Navy, the 31,000-ton battleship Indiana and the 20,000-ton aircraft carrier Hornet.

Wheat Sags On War News, Less Activity

Canadian Market Weak, Disappoints Chicago Traders

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 27.—Wheat prices backed down today in a market depressed by disappointing war news, lagging European demand for grain and diminished commercial activity following the placing of large cash wheat and flour orders last week.

Chicago wheat fell as much as 1¼ cents at times while Winnipeg losses amounted to almost 2 cents. Weakness of the Canadian market, which advanced 4 cents Saturday, caused some disappointment here as many traders had expected favorable war or export developments might be revealed over the week-end.

Wheat here closed ¾@1⅛ cents lower than Saturday, July 84@84⅛; September, 83¾@84; corn, ¼ off to ⅛ up; July, 63¼; September, 62⅝@62½; oats, ¼ down; rye, ⅝@¾ lower, and lard unchanged to 3 higher.

Foreign Markets

London, May 27 (AP).—The undertone of the stock market was generally steady today. Prices in several sections tended lower, but largely because lack of definite war news checked buying. Government bonds received moderate support, especially long-dated issues. The new 2 per cent conversion loan appeared for the first time, opening and closing around 98½. Domestic rails and industrial leaders were trimmed a few pence. Kaffirs stiffened toward the close after early neglect. Oils and foreign bonds were ignored.

Paris.—Rentes held up moderately well in the bourse today, but domestic and foreign issues fell back as support waned. Losses predominated among Mediterranean issues. Ordinary rentes ended 30 centimes higher to 35 lower, but the dollar guaranteed issue lost 230.

Boston Wool

Boston, May 27 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—A waiting attitude prevailed in the Boston wool market today. Mills and topmakers were out of the market and dealers were not pressing for wool for sale. The price situation remained unsettled because of the lack of trading. Country-packed three-eighths and quarter blood bright fleece wools offered from accumulation points in the Midwest were quoted at 34@36 cents, in the grease, delivered to users. This price range was lower than at the close of last week, but the volume of wool offered reported to be very moderate and there appeared to be no severe selling pressure.

Belmont Park Feature Won by Lady Maryland

'Old Grey Mare' Comes From Behind to Take Doreen 'Cap; Pays $5

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 27 (AP).—The "old grey mare" was all that she used to be here today. Lady Maryland, 6-year-old daughter of Sir Greysteel from the Gustave Ring barn, staged one of her well-known stretch rushes and just got up for a photo triumph in the featured Princess Doreen Handicap of a mile and a sixteenth, named after one of America's most renowned stakes winning mares. Lady Maryland, an entry with Charlotte Girl and favorite at $5 for $2, defeated seven rivals of the fillies and mares division, finishing the journey in 1:44 1-5.

G. D. Widener's Rosetown could not hold a long lead and finished second, only a half length before W. C. Winfrey's One Jest.

The attendance this blue Monday was 8,695 and the betting on the first six races amounted to $393,182.

Rosetown, showing improved speed with a recent race to aid her condition, shot into a daylight lead after a tussle with Torchlight and Jessie Gladys that lasted to the bend leaving the backstretch. Taking a long lead, Rosetown gave the impression that she would stick it out to the end. But the elderly Lady Maryland had been improving her position at every pole. Driving up on the inside rail through the stretch, the popular veteran wore down the suddenly tired Rosetown at the wire. One Jest easily defeated Charlotte Girl for the show.

J. E. Widener's Knickerbocker, which won the famed Metropolitan Handicap a year ago at long odds, ran with a $5,000 claiming tag attached to him in the fifth race of 6 furlongs and easily prevailed by three lengths in 1:12. The Teddy colt, with a recent race under his belt, had the speed to race along with the speedy but not so stout-hearted Early Delivery. He put that sprinter away inside the final furlong and clicked by three lengths, paying the talent $6.50. Early Delivery held a half-length margin over My Porter.

Army and Navy Lacrosse Aces To Play Last Game

Annapolis, May 27 (INS).—Two of the most outstanding athletes to represent the Naval and Military academies in recent years will end their careers next Saturday, when Navy and Army clash in their annual lacrosse game. They are Allen Alfred Bergner, first four-letter man to graduate from the Naval Academy in a score of years, and Harry Stella, one of the most popular cadets at West Point in recent years. Both Bergner and Stella are from the same home town, Kankakee, Ill., and were mates on the high school football there. Bergner won his letter in football, boxing, wrestling and lacrosse. Stella starred on the gridiron and lacrosse fields, and won the Eastern Intercollegiate heavyweight boxing championship last year.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 27.—Trainer Joe Paoli saddled his second winner on the program when Nugget held to a scant lead to win a photo finish from Bright Chance in the eighth race. The winner paid $18.60 and was capably handled by Jockey Mike Sarno, who sat in the jockeys' room all day to ride the one horse. Unlawful was third in the field of eight.

Jockey Sammy Palumbo rode his second winner of the day aboard Petee Lad, an $8 shot, in the seventh race. The gelding won by a length over The Swagman, with Worthowning third.

N. C. Grid Star Signs With Yanks

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 27 (AP).—George Stirnweiss, University of North Carolina football and baseball star, said today he had signed a contract with the New York Yankees, and would report to the Yankee farm at Newark after his graduation.

Stirnweiss is the son of a New York policeman. He played second base on the North Carloina team.

Michigan Grid Captain

Britons Capitalize on Parachute Troops

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Getting some fun out of the war, darts booth owners in Pinner, England, built this unique dart board at the annual fair. A sign to draw players read: "Poison Darts—4 for 2—Pin the Packet to Win the Coin." Pennies went to an ambulance fund. (Photo yesterday by Clipper.)

Guerilla Beats Crack Field in Suffolk Feature

Boston, May 27 (AP).—Max Hirsch's Guerrilla topped a band of 3-year-old maidens in the $1,000 sprint which featured today's card at Suffolk Downs. Clear skies finally greeted the runners, but the strip remained extremely heavy.

Guerrilla, making his seventh start, was pinched back at the start and was last away from the barrier. Jockey Maurice Berger drove the grey colt hard all the way, however, collared R. A. Coward's Count Fitz and R. W. Collins' Sweet Willow inside the eighth pole and came away to win by three-quarters of a length from Count Fitz. Sweet Willow, the favorite and pace setter, was third, three lengths farther back.

The winner ran the six panels in 1:17 4-5 and paid $5.80, $3.80 and $2.80. Count Fitz paid $10.40 and $4.60, while Sweet Willow paid $2.80 to show. Eight started.

Boulder, Colo., May 27 (AP).—Nothing will top a grand slam, so Colorado U. is champion of champions in major sports in the Mountain Big Seven Conference.

The Buffaloes won the football, basketball, baseball and track titles in one school year.

They also won the Eastern Division tennis and swimming titles, the conference golf and gymnastics crowns and the divisional singles and doubles in Tennis.

Tin Export Quota Fixed by Committee

London, May 27 (AP).—A sharp increase in shipments of tin was authorized today by the International Tin Committee, which fixed the export quota of tin-producing nations at 100 per cent of standard tonnage for the third quarter of 1940. The quota in the current three months is 80 per cent; in the first three months of the year it was 120 per cent. Quotas in the four quarters of last year were respectively 45, 40, 120 and 100 per cent.

Eastern Air Lines Offers 100,000 Shares

New York, May 27 (AP).—Public offerings of about 100,000 shares of common stock of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., at $30.75 a share was announced today by a syndicate headed by Smith, Barney & Co.

The stock represents the unsubscribed portion of an issue of 110,909 shares which was originally offered to the company's stockholders on a pro rata basis at $32 a share. The stock closed today in the New York Stock Exchange at $30.87 a share.

Steel Mills Boost Operating Rates To 76.9 Per Cent . .

New York, May 27 (AP).—The Nation's steel mils will boost operating rates to 76.9 per cent of capacity this week, a jump of 3.9 points from the preceding week and the fifth consecutive advance, the American Iron & Steel Institute said today.

The advance will put production schedules back to the level prevailing in late January. A month ago output was at 61.8 per cent of capacity and a year ago 52.2 per cent.

Sheel circles said larger production was due in good part to foreign demand, both from belligerent and neutral nations. One trade source estimated Allied orders alone would run to arcund 500,000 tons a month for the duration of the war.

Listen!
with Slocum

Apparently enough so that one of the children can grow up to be one of radio's most prolific writers—Irna Phillips.

On May 30 she observes 10 years of serial script writing which, thus far, has averaged 2,000,000 words a year. And Miss Phillips says most of her story material has come from personal experience.

Her amazing output (equivalent to 22 full-length novels) requires a regular 8 to 5 office-hour schedule . . . dictating to secretaries . . . consulting with directors, producers and advertising representatives . . . "riding herd" on broadcasts . . . and answering a seemingly endless flood of fan mail.

Thus, because of this rigorous routine, millions of listeners have followed with avid interest the C. B. S. dramatic serials "Road of Life" and "Right to Happiness," among other network programs.

Miss Phillips guides th edestines of more than 82 mythical citizens in her radio dramas—which provide daily jobs for more than 100 actors, directors, clerical workers and technicians. However, Miss Phillips can't remember names.

Miss Phillips began her radio writing career on May 30, 1930, with a timely broadcast entitled, "Gold Star Mothers," which immediately won her recognition as a scriptist.

"Orphans in Love"

by Marion White

Roger's sister nodded, noticing heads inclined toward each other casually; she sensed the sly glances in their direction, the whispered comment.

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm since both were children. They take refuge from a storm in the old Tucker house, an unoccupied mansion and notice the resemblance of Peter to Jonathan Tucker. As the result of a tenement fire, Peter became Public Hero No. 1 and the papers connect him with the Tucker House. Attorney John Abbott and his wife, who abandoned the only heir of the Tucker estate at the orphanage 25 years ago, fear their deception may be discovered. Abbott offers Peter a position in his law firm. Ellen is wounded when Peter tells her Millicent Abbott is the most beautiful girl he has ever seen. Mother Rosa at the orphanage hears Ellen's plight and sends her to Rosalind a famous designer. Rosalind hires her as a model. Peter calls for Ellen to celebrate and is astounded by her new glamour. They go dinner-dancing, but Ellen's happiness is ended when Millicent and her friends monopolize Peter. Peter assures Ellen nothing will ever come between them and they will be as close as any brother and sister ever were! The Abbotts, seeing Peter and Millicent together, decide it would be a good match.

Chapter 22

ROSALIND jotted down notes on a large yellow pad. "No, that wouldn't do at all. I want nothing to clash with your hair. Blue might do, if we got the right shade . . ."

"Blue isn't very autumnal." Ellen spoke mechanically.

The showing was scheduled for the first Tuesday in November. Tuesday, Rosalind thought, was always a good day. Debutantes were tired on Monday, after their weekends, and the latter part of the week was reserved for social engagements.

The first Tuesday would be a full week before election, so everybody would be in a cheerful mood. Too frequently the social register class of Manhattan was in the doldrums after election.

The salon was crowded with small ivory and gilt chairs, arranged on each side of the room in theatrical regimentation, not too close together, and with no one seat too far from a main aisle extending from the dais.

Organ Music

Autumn flowers were mirrored in the triple screens at either side, tall candles lent a wavering, romantic glow. A special transcription of organ music would provide the ecclesiastical reality.

By 2:30 many of the seats were taken; the faces of their occupants were familiar to any New Yorker who read the rotogravure sections regularly. The guest list had been carefully prepared.

Cream of the debutante crop was here, with aristocratic mothers and dowager grandmothers . . . a very smart representation of the press. Nobody from the trade; no competitors, no reporters, no copyists who might reproduce these gowns for the popular market.

The showing was scheduled for 3 o'clock promptly. At exactly the hour two last-minute arrivals presented their cards. The young woman was a frequent caller at Rosalind's.

"Good afternoon, Miss Maillard," Robert greeted her.

Her companion followed reluctantly, hesitated at the entrance to the salon.

"If I must come in here with you," he pleaded in a low whisper, "will you pick a seat as near the door as possible?"

Sits Beside Her

He sat down beside her, looked about the room uncomfortably, sank back with obvious relief when he discovered that he was not the only male present. He was a tall, loose-jointed young man; he walked with a loping gait more fitting to the open plains than the cramped salon of a fashionable couturiere.

His hair was blond; against the rugged bronze of his skin it gave the impression of being much lighter than it was.

A middle-aged woman across the aisle noticed him; she nudged her daughter as surreptitiously as possible, pointed him out with the faintest motion of her eyebrow.

She Smiles

Instautly the girl's eyes brightened; she smiled over at him, waved her hand in a gracious greeting. Attracted by the gesture, other heads turned, other girls smiled their prettiest for him.

He acknowledged the recognition courteously, inclining his head in each direction, but a slow flush darkened his face.

His sister smiled reassuringly. "Three o'clock now. The showing will begin immediately." She knew how he detested anything like this.

"Why the devil didn't you bring Arthur?" he muttered under his breath. "He's marrying you——"

"Hush, Roger! I told you Arthur is at a meeting this afternoon. If you won't wait for me I'll have to take the train."

"We'll skip out then the moment it's over. No hanging around for the social chats."

He noticed heads inclined toward each other casually; he sensed the sly glances in his direction, the whispered comment. "Roger Maillard, my dear. Back there . . . See, over by the door."

He fidgeted uncomfortably on the fragile chair, wondered with a sudden uneasiness whether it would continue to support his weight throughout the entire performance.

It wasn't that he was unaccustomed to such popular recognition; wherever he went people pointed him out. Roger Maillard, the polo player. Roger Maillard, popular sportsman . . . inherited $12,000,000, you know.

To Be Continued.

Export Trade Toboggans During April

$27,000,000 Decline; Scandinavian-Dutch Losses Heaviest

Signs of spreading war—a flight of refugee money to this country and a sharp drop in American export trade—were reflected by reports made public yesterday.

A decline of $27,000,000 in exports during April, with the heaviest decrease in Scandinavian and Dutch trade, was shown in a Commerce Department report.

A Treasury announcement revealed that in February, for the first time in ten months, foreign investors bought more American securities than they sold. They increased their holdings by $3,879,000, as frightened money left Europe for a safer haven here.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Federal Reserve Board's economists, led by Dr. E. A. Goldenweiser, are taking part in the Administration-wide study of the consequences of a possible German victory in Europe.

The drop in export trade, part of the war problem the economists are studying, was the heaviest in the newly invaded countries. Trade with the Scandinavian nations fell from more than $19,000,000 in March to less than $4,000,000 in April, while exports to the Low Countries dropped $3,000,000.

Hardest hit in the export decline were farm commodities, with cotton shipments down to $21,000,000 from the January peak of $60,000,000, and decreases registered also in tobacco, wheat, flour, oats, dried fruit and vegetables.

Foreign buying of motor trucks dropped to $5,500,000 in April and iron and steel-mill products to $32,600,000 from respective values of $13,500,000 and $37,000,000 in March, which was the high point since the start of the war.

Swiss orders were one-fifth of the $49,110,000 in securities purchased. The Netherlands had net purchases of $1,081,000. The remainder of Europe took $1,010,000 worth.

Britain Curtails Cotton From U. S. To Save Dollars

London, May 27 (AP).—The British Board of Trade tonight prohibited import of cotton from the United States and other non-Allied countries except under a license in a new move to conserve dollars and shipping space for war requirements. The order becomes effective May 30.

It was explained that since the outbreak of the war imports of raw cotton from the United States have been particularly heavy—nearly 1,900,000 bales from August to mid-May or more than for the whole of any recent year. Future imports will be discussed in talks with United States authorities.

Previous licensing orders restricted the import of fruit, tobacco and other United States products.

Woman Asks $2,000 For Chevy Chase Crash

In a declaration filed yesterday in circuit court at Rockville, Edith C. Garguilo, of Washington, asks $2,000 from William Rose and Henrietta Reichold, trading as Suburban Lines & Cab Services, and Clifton Baxter, as an outgrowth of injuries she claims to have suffered in an automobile collision on Elm street, Chevy Chase, October 2, 1939.

It is represented that Baxter was operating a taxicab owned by the other defendants and that the plaintiff was in charge of another car involved in an accident. Attorney Thomas M. Anserson, of Rockville, represents the plaintiff.

Station PDS Presents Piano Soloist

Miss Louise Gunlock will be the feature artist this morning on the PDS program over station WMAL.

Miss Gunlock lives at 1708 Massachusetts avenue northwest. She has had experience in church music and as accompanist and is a member of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints Church.

"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Stores Studio, Eleventh and G streets northwest, is presented each week-day morning from 7:30 to 8:30 over Station WMAL by Peoples Drug Stores in cooperation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. Studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Contract Bridge

Although grand slams are rare, small slams are relatively frequent, and the more skillful a player is the more small slams he dares bid and the more he will succeed in making.

There are many devices known to fine players for developing additional tricks when as many as 10 or 11 are held—the end lay, the squeeze, the strip and various other maneuvers—some purely psychological—are used successfully by the experts.

Today's hand, taken from the World Bridge Olympic, offers practice in the bidding and playing of a small slam contract. The bidding shown in the box is that suggested by the Olympic committee. Their solution to declarer's play follows immediately. How would you go about winning the hand?

Today's Hand

6 NT	ass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 7 ♣.

Solution

South probably opens a club. Declarer is sure of the contract unless he finds a very bad break in hear'-. But he must not cash the heart king at once, as that is his only entry to make the spades. Also, he must be wary of cashing all the spades before developing the hearts, since he might have to lose a heart trick to a defender who holds a fifth spade. These considerations dictate the correct order of play. The king and queen of spades are cashed, then a small heart is led for the finesse of the ten.

U. S. German Attache Makes Trip to Rome

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 27.—Alexander Kirk, American charge d'affaires in Berlin, is in Rome today on what he says is a private visit. Kirk saw Ambassador Phillips this afternoon and there was some speculation over his presence when the situation is so critical.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

BE SNOBBISH ABOUT IT

Good advice—when it comes to picking whiskies. So why be content with anything less than America's most distinctive whiskies—Carstairs? If you're "The Man Who Cares" you'll appreciate Carstairs. And your friends will appreciate your good judgment of whiskies. Carstairs has been a name of character since 1788.
